Beard Convicted With 12 of Aids In Gaming Trial

Jury Acts in Few Hours; Justice Allows All Freedom on Bail.

12 Years in Jail May Be Imposed

Defense Counsel Serves Notice It Will Appeal Wire-Tapping Case.

By Frederic B. Tuttle.

Big Sam Beard, accused "boss" of the most highly organized gambling underworld Washington has ever known, was found guilty late last night of conspiracy to violate the gaming laws. With him were convicted 12 co-defendants, "little men" in the empire of chance Sam is alleged to have dominated for 12 or more years.

As a result of the decision of a jury of seven men and four women, Beard faces a maximum sentence, under three counts, of 12 years, and, if the Court of Appeals sustains the verdict, a minimum sentence of two years and ten months.

Specifically the jury found Beard guilty of setting up a gaming table, providing a place where a gaming table was maintained and conspiracy to violate the gambling statutes of the District. The first two counts provide for minimum sentences of one year each, and maximum sentences of five years each, and the final count provides for a sentence of from 10 months to two years.

Defense Moves for Bail.

Immediately after the decision had been announced to the hushed courtroom the chief defense attorney, John Sirica, who has fought the battle for burly Sam since the trial opened eight days ago, pleaded with Justice Joseph W. Cox to admit Beard and his codefendants to bail.

Mr. Sirica, together with his associates, Martin O'Donoghue, jr., and Maurice McInerney, served notice that they would appeal immediately. Justice Cox then granted the bail request.

However, he had the bonds of Beard's co-defendants raised from $1,500 each to $2,500. Beard's bond, which has been $10,000, was allowed to remain the same.

The jury which convicted Sam Beard was out only 4 hours and 35 minutes. Justice Cox charged the venire promptly at 4 p. m. and the decision was returned at 8:35 p. m.

Verdict Smashing Victory.

A verdict of guilty against Beard and his co-defendants was seen as a smashing victory for the District last night. The case was prosecuted by Assistant District Attorneys John W. Fihelly and Roger Robb, Mr. Fihelly closing the trial with a scathing denunciation of Beard and Washington's "gambling rackets."

Atmosphere at the courthouse was tense as a drawn bowstring for fully an hour before the jury returned. In the hallways, smoking and talking and shifting about nervously were Beard and the 12 others. Sometimes they conversed with friends and sometimes with their attorneys.

When word came that the jury had reached a decision, a few charwomen scrubbing the floors of the Criminal Court room were sent to other duties, and officers from the United States marshal's office were summoned. There was considerable delay while defend-

By the United Press.

New York, May 6.—A woman dramatist and a sports writer tonight won the highest awards in the world of letters, the Pultizer drama and journalism prizes.

"The Old Maid," dramatized by Zoe Akins from a story by another woman, Edith Wharton, won the $1,000 award as the finest American drama of 1934.

William H. Taylor, young New York Herald-Tribune sports writer, was awarded the $1,000 prize for his series of articles on the international yacht races as "a distinguished example of a reporter's work during the year."

"Now in November" Chosen.

Women fared unusually well in capturing the coveted awards, announced tonight by President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, at a banquet of the Journalism School Alumni Association. They won the Pulitzer novel and poetry prizes, also.

For her first novel, "Now in November," Josephine Winslow Johnson, of Webster Grove, Mo., was awarded $1,000 for the "best novel published during the year by an American author."

For the "best volume of verse" published during the year, $1,000 was granted Audrey Wurdeman, wife of Joseph Auslander, the New York poet, for her work, "Bright Ambush."

A Washington correspondent for the New York Times, Arthur Krock, received the $500 award "for distinguished service as a foreign or Washington correspondent during the year."

The Solution

To the Radio Thriller, 'What Would You Do?'

The solution of the twelfth thrilling "What Would You Do?" real life drama broadcast Monday at 5:30 p. m. from WJEJ, Hagerstown, Md., follows:

"But John—son—there's right and there's wrong in this world. You did wrong. Your wife has no right to money earned——"

With a furious wave of strength the dying man raised himself in bed. "I know right from wrong. Mother Morgan. I lived—right—for years. Then bad times came. My business melted from under my feet. I—I couldn't find any work at all. I couldn't earn—even a dollar. I walked the streets for months trying. Then all—all our savings were gone. That was when I—I went wrong." The dying eyes burned into hers. "But who are you to judge—Mother Morgan? Should a man allow his wife to starve because a system has broken down?" He slumped back into bed, perspiration breaking out on lips and forehead.

"I—I won't judge you, son," the woman answered gently. "You did right—according to your heart. But wrong according to the world. And you're being punished now. I won't add to your punishment. I will never tell Florence."

John smiled as he died.

Ruler Kneels While Britain Pays Homage

English Mingle Prayers, Merry-Making at King's Jubilee.

7,000 Casualties Recorded at Celebration in Honor of Monarch.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

London, May 6.—King George V of England knelt today with the reverence of an humble pilgrim in ancient St. Paul's Cathedral to give thanks to God for completion of 25 years on the throne, while all his vast empire celebrated his jubilee with mingled prayers and merry-making.

So tempestuous was the shouted acclaim that rolled along with him as his state procession proceeded from Buckingham Palace to the cathedral and back that the King was obviously stirred deeply.

Queen Mary was as deeply affected by the thunderous ovations. Observers along the route thought they detected tears in her eyes.

The day's most touching moment came in the cathedral when the King-Emperor, his right hand over his brow, knelt while the Archbishop of Canterbury pronounced his blessing and at its conclusion, oblivious to the others rising about him, remained on bended knee as if offering one final touch of personal prayer.

Colorful Gathering.

Subdued alike by the gray shadows of the cathedral and the humility of the King and Queen were the crimsons, golds, silvers and ermines worn by the dignitaries of the Empire and representatives of almost all the nations of the world gathered in St. Paul's for the thanksgiving.

For Englishmen, whose love for their monarch derives in great part from his simplicity and lack of ostentation, the ceremony provided one homely touch to be cherished.

After the prayer the king—like any British grandfather—put on his glasses and fanned through the program to refresh his memory on the order of the service.

In the clock-like movement of the day's program there were only minor mishaps.

Many Hurt in Crush.

Hospitals handled 37 cases resulting from the crush of the many hundreds of thousands jamming the routes of the state processions, while an ambulance corps composed of 50 doctors, 1,000 nurses and 3,000 orderlies treated more than 7,000 persons who fainted, sprained their ankles or otherwise were injured.

At Newcastle some 60 persons were injured in the collapse of a stand overloaded with spectators watching a military parade.

Communists, who had boasted loudly of the counter-demonstrations they were planning, managed to break out one banner almost over the King's landau bearing the slogan "Workers of Our Land, Unite Against Capitalism."

Evidencing the temper of the vast throng gathered to cheer the sovereign, however, was a swift, angry mass movement to rip the flag down, tear it into tatters and trample the pieces under foot.

Blazing Bonfires.

Otherwise all was good humor, serenity broken only by thunderous cheering, rejoicing and, above all, obviously sincere adulation of Britain's House of Windsor.

Tonight lord and cockney, Briton and Scot, African and Australian, Canadian and Indian joined in drinking the king's health while bonfires blazed the length of the land in symbol of the jubilee.

A flourish of trumpets signalized the arrival of the royal party at the cathedral, and its members moved with measured tread to their places facing the chancel steps while the

Hopkins Gets Wide Powers In Work Plan

Order of President for Board's Set-up Gives Him Leading Role.

Swift Developments Are Expected; Allotment Unit Meets Today.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Vastly expanded powers were conferred on FERA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins by President Roosevelt last night in creating, by executive order, the machinery to handle the $4,000,000,000 works fund.

The President formally set up the Division of Application and Information, under Frank C. Walker, the advisory committee on allotments, headed by Secretary of Interior Ickes, and the Works Progress Administration, which is under Hopkins.

One of several changes in original plans was the appointment of the President's uncle, Frederic A. Delano, vice chairman of the National Resources Board, to membership on allotment board. This board will hold its first meeting to pass on allotments today at the White House.

The President's order makes clear that Hopkins is to have the dominant position in the new works setup, as forecast many weeks ago. The hard-working, 45-year-old former welfare worker was elevated by Mr. Roosevelt to the driver's seat, in general charge of the whole works machine.

Action Expected.

Now that the framework for the forthcoming program has been erected, developments are expected to come with a rush. Other angles to the works situation yesterday included:

The arrival in Washington of sharp-tongued Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, who lost no time in declaring that the New Deal "is a combination of communism, frenzied financing and wet-nursing." The Governor will speak over the radio tonight.

An announcement by Representative Adolph J. Sabath, chairman of the Illinois Democratic delegation, that the group will call on Hopkins today in an effort to obtain sufficient funds to tide the State over until the Legislature can pass pending relief measures.

As executive director of the National Emergency Council, Walker was instructed to receive all applications for projects, to have them examined by the various Government agencies concerned, and then to pass them on to the allotment committee. Walker's division also is made a bureau of public information on the works program.

Allotment Personnel.

As constituted by the order, the allotment committee consists of:

Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator.
Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.
Secretary of Labor Perkins.
NEC Director Walker.
Works Progress Administrator Hopkins.
Admiral Christian J. Peoples, director of procurement.
Daniel W. Bell, director of the budget.
Maj. Gen. Edward M. Markham, chief of Army Engineers.
Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation.
H. H. Bennett, director of soil erosion.
F. A. Silcox, chief of forest service.
Robert C. Fechner, director of emergency conservation work.
Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads.
Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, head of the Resettlement Administration.
Morris L. Cooke, head of the Rural Electrification Administration.
Federal emergency relief administrator (presumably a subordinate to be named for Hopkins).
Horatio B. Hackett, chief of the PWA housing division.
Frederic A. Delano, of the National Resources Board.
Representatives of the Business Advisory Council of the Department of Commerce, organized labor, farm organizations, the American Bankers Association and the United States Conference of Mayors.

Only one of the latter five members has been named—Gen. Robert E. Wood, to represent the business council—but indications are Maj. George L. Berry, of Nashville, will be the representative of labor on the board.

LaGuardia May Be Named.

Either Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York, or Paul V. Betters, executive director of the mayors' conference, is expected to be chosen for the mayors' group. The other members will be designated by the agencies they are to represent, it was said.

Besides the Delano appointment, the only change in the allotment line-up was the dropping of the chief of the projected division of grade-crossing elimination. This fact lent weight to the belief that MacDonald, as head of the highway program, will be in charge of grade crossings, too.

The works progress administration of Hopkins is made responsible "for the honest, efficient, speedy and coordinated execution of the work relief program as a whole." Further, Hopkins is charged with providing work for "the maximum

Heavy Taxes Drawn to Beat Bonus Passage

50,000 Telegrams Pour In on Senate After Speech by Fr. Coughlin.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Administration's fight to stop full and immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus yesterday gave way to long-range strategy designed to forestall overriding of a presidential veto.

As the probably victorious Vinson full payment bill neared a final showdown in the Senate today, leaders were discussing a new tax bill, designed to defray its cost and lessen popular enthusiasm for the outlay.

Virtually all hope for the Harrison compromise was abandoned yesterday, as Senators lined up behind either the Legion-sponsored Vinson bill, or the inflationary Patman measure, championed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

A deluge of more than 50,000 telegraphic demands in behalf of the Patman plan poured down upon Senators following the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin's radio broadcast, but the Detroit priest, who called forth a similar outpouring against World Court adherence, this time may have defeated his own purpose.

Administration Senators, some of whom had planned to vote for the Patman bill to insure a White House veto, reconsidered their course in the light of the Coughlin barrage. To vote for the Patman bill now, they argued, would imply they were influenced by the broadcast.

New taxes to finance the bonus, or anything else at this time for that matter, are distasteful to Senate and House leaders, even though Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has insisted that even a modified bonus bill, of the Harrison compromise type, would require from $200,000,000 to $600,000,000 in new revenues. Morgenthau suggested a graduated inheritance and gifts levy.

It was learned last night that if the Vinson bill is approved today, a tax bill of even more rigorous character will be urged by Senate leaders. But such legislation must originate in the House.

Questioned last night, Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat),

Fuel Line Blocked, Quiz Told; Cutting Mourned in Capital

Ship Had Gasoline Left in Tanks; 3 Others Killed in Wreck.

Roosevelt Pays Tribute to Progressive Leader; Congress Adjourns.

By the Associated Press.

Macon, Mo., May 6.—Out of a foggy sky, United States Senator Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico, a young woman and two pilots plunged to swift death today in a giant air liner, its five gasoline tanks nearly dry, its cabin echoing the shout, "Buckle your belts tight."

The sleek night-flying TWA "Sky Chief," a low-wing monoplane, crashed with terrific force in a mud-soaked farm pasture near Atlanta, Mo. All of the nine passengers who escaped death were brought here, several of them severely injured.

"I was forced down because of lack of gasoline," Pilot Harry Bolton gasped before he died, Roy Nuhn, a farmer, testified at a coroner's inquest.

Russell Delaney and Phil C. Salzman, airline inspectors for the Department of Commerce, were observers at the inquest which will hear more witnesses tomorrow.

Paul Richter, vice president of TWA in charge of operations, said there were 30 gallons of gas remaining out of a capacity supply of more than 500, but "whether that was enough to feed the engines I can not say." The pilots were seeking the airport of Kirksville, Mo., 15 miles away, when the crash came.

Nuhn said "some woman with a baby," who was on the ship, told him that just before the crash "the pilot suddenly turned around and said 'buckle your belts tight."

2 Bodies Pinned in Cabin.

The bodies of Senator Cutting and one of the pilots were imprisoned in the overturned cabin. The other occupants were flung free among the widely scattered wreckage.

Senator Cutting, 46 years old and a bachelor, was hastening to Washington to join in the fight for payment of the soldiers' bonus. Also in the plane, loaded to capacity, was a group of Hollywood film officials, bound for Annapolis, Md., to make a picture.

The dead, in addition to the Senator, were:

Miss Jeanne Anne Hillias, 20, Kansas City.
Harvey Bolton, 28, pilot, Kansas City.

A Republican, whose liberal principles traversed party lines and political friendships, carving a rugged niche all his own in the ranks of independent Progressivism, left the Senate yesterday.

He was Senator Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico, who died in the crash of a fog-bound plane while returning to the Capitol to vote on a subject close to him—the soldiers' bonus.

The news cast a pall over the Capitol. As a mark of respect, House and Senate adjourned. Tributes poured into the home of his grief-stricken mother, Mrs. Olivia Peyton Cutting, with whom he lived here.

Roosevelt Voices Sorrow.

Among friends who expressed their sorrow was Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whose own social background closely parallels that of the New Mexican.

The President said:

"I am greatly grieved to learn of the untimely death of my very old friend, Bronson Cutting."

A Republican, Senator Cutting had deserted his own party's candidate to support Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign. As the New Deal progressed, that friendship seemed to cool. An outright break occurred when the Senator two years ago opposed Administration slashes in veterans' benefits, and was largely instrumental in overriding the President's veto.

They Remained Friends.

These differences grew, and in the last campaign the Administration ran its own candidate against Cutting—former Representative Dennis Chavez.

Yet the two remained friends. When the President needed support for the World Court adherence resolution, he called the Senator to the White House. The court protocal was doomed, but Cutting voted for it.

Word of his death was brought to the Senate by his Democratic colleague, Carl A. Hatch, and to the House by another Democrat, Representative John J. Dempsey. A few minutes later both bodies adjourned.

Progressive associates of Cutting—Senators Borah, of Idaho; Norris, of Nebraska, and Johnson, of Cali-

Statistics on Airplanes Show U. S. 5th Among Major Powers

By the United Press.

New York, May 6.—Figures showing that the United States is a poor fifth in its battle plane strength among the seven major air powers of the world were made public by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce today.

The table showing comparative war-plane strength gives France first place with 3,600 ships and Russia second with 3,000.

The United States followed both Great Britain and Italy, with only 2,060 war planes. And of these, the report says, only 1,600 modern, fast fighting ships could be mobilized in an emergency.

This table, compiled for the aircraft year book, shows the relative strength of the air powers since 1932.

	Jan. '32.	Jan. '34	Jan. '35.
France	4,000	4,000	3,600
Russia	1,500	2,250	3,000
British Empire	2,000	2,500	2,600
Italy	1,800	2,300	2,300
United States	1,800	1,700	2,060
Japan	1,300	1,500	1,850
Germany		200	600

The report lauds the United States equipment, but warns that, while it is equal or superior to any on earth, numerically the Nation is falling behind and should catch up. It says:

"At the beginning of 1935, American squadrons were equipped with the best planes, type for type, in the world. Their pursuit fighters, actually in service and carrying full service loads, could fly at 230 miles an hour and perform the most advanced aerial acrobatics.

"Experimental military and naval planes had much higher speeds. The United States led all nations in the performance of its service planes and had under development machines designed to maintain that superiority, provided the development was not stifled.

"But the air forces did not have enough planes.

"The Army Air Corps was short more than 300 of the 1,800 planes allotted to it under the Air Corps act passed by Congress in 1926. The Baker board, the general staff and Congress Denied Right to Levy Financial Load to Aid Workers.

Held Worst Blow At New Deal Rule

Roberts, Stone Speak for Majority; Hughes for Minority.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Creating serious doubt of validity of the proposed social security program and certain aspects of the NRA, the United States Supreme Court, in a 5-to-4 decision, yesterday held unconstitutional in its entirety the railroad retirement act, affecting 1,000,000 railway workers.

Significance of the court's ruling in its application to other New Deal measures yesterday could not be fully appraised. But the sweeping and positive nature of the majority opinion caused widespread apprehension within the Administration and among New Dealers on Capitol Hill.

There was no doubt the decision represented the worst defeat the New Deal has suffered in the courts, a defeat which may cripple President Roosevelt's program for social legislation. In all quarters of the Capital lawyers last night were busily engaged seeking to apply the court's ruling to that program.

Recited From Memory.

In a strongly worded opinion, parts of which were recited apparently from memory by Justice Owen J. Roberts, the majority of the court not only invalidated the entire railroad retirement act on the ground it was obectionable to the due process clause of the Constitution, but went on to rule that Congress lacked power to enact any compulsory pension act for railroad employes.

Briefly, the majority held that, while under the commerce clause of the Constitution Congress has authority to regulate interstate commerce, it has no power to place a financial burden on railroads for a pension system which does not contribute to economy, efficiency or the safety of transportation.

Thus, led by the pivotal Justice Roberts, who sometimes votes with the so-called conservatives and sometimes with the Liberals, the majority of the court, comprising also Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler, based their ruling on a narrow and strict construction of the commerce clause.

Led by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, the minority—including Justices Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo—took a more liberal view of the powers of Congress under the commerce clause, holding that the majority had departed "from sound principles and places an unwarranted limitation upon the commerce clause."

Robinson Admits Concern.

"The fundamental consideration which supports this type of legislation is that industry should take care of its human wastage, whether that is due to accident or age," the minority declared, adding that "the expression of that conviction in law is regulation" and when expressed in the government of interstate carriers "is a regulation of that commerce."

On Capitol Hill there was a reluctance to express opinions regarding the ruling, pending a detailed study of the decision. Senate Democratic Leader Joe Robinson, however, asserted that undoubtedly the Senate Finance Committee when it meets in executive session today to consider the President's social security bill must do so in light of the Supreme Court decision.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, a constitutional authority, declined to discuss the decision pending further examination of it, except to say that "it does not seem to me that in the settlement of a national policy a 5-to-4 decision is conclusive."

The Supreme Court majority so clearly cut all constitutional ground out from under the railroad retirement act that congressional leaders were in a quandary as to whether any part of that measure might be salvaged without first obtaining a constitutional amendment.

Spokesmen for the railway workers were bitter in their denuncia-

Starvation Casts Its Shadow Over Illinois as House Stalls

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 6.—The cold and hungry among Illinois' jobless tonight learned there was no possibility of relief for them before Wednesday, as already the specter of suffering spread its shadow across the State.

The House at Springfield in a five-minute session adjourned without taking action on the 3 per cent sales tax bill designed to raise the State's share of relief funds to guarantee further Federal grants.

The House action leaves the bill on second reading. By advancing it to third reading tomorrow, it could be passed Wednesday. Passage of the bill would bring Federal relief money promptly.

Even as the House refused action, orders went out to assemble extra guards at the capitol, where a delegation of demonstrators was expected tomorrow from Auburn to demand reopening of relief stations.

House leaders said consideration of the bill was postponed because of rumors that Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, had indicated that he would furnish funds to tide the State over July 1 if a bill were passed to supply $3,000,000 monthly from State funds.

In Washington, however, Hopkins merely said he was "standing pat" on the demand that Illinois supply its share. He had no comment on the rumor. Federal funds ceased April 30 for Illinois and efforts have been made to pass the sales-tax bill as an "emergency measure" to make it effective immediately. Such legislation requires 102 House votes. Already the bill, passed by the Senate, has obtained 88 House votes, 10 more than enough to pass it as a regular measure, which, however, would not become effective until July 1, the start of the fiscal year.

Officials in 15 counties reported to the Illinois emergency relief commission that their hundreds of clients have "reached the point of actual suffering" and faced "hunger and privation" because of the commission's financial collapse.

The commission disclosed 84 of the State's 102 counties were without State or Federal funds due to the failure of the Legislature to provide $3,000,000 a month as its share of the relief burden. Illinois was dropped from the Government's allotment lists May 1 as a result of the legislative delay. Some 143,000 downstate families were thrown upon their own resources, private charity and various makeshift local arrangements.

Representative A. J. Sabath, chairman of the Illinois Democratic

HouseRequests Roosevelt Bare Talk to Press

Transcript of Comment on Chamber Attack Asked in Resolution.

The House yesterday asked President Roosevelt to violate one of his unwritten rules—never to make public the transcript of his semi-weekly conferences with the press.

Without debate, the chamber adopted a resolution by Representative John A. Martin, 67-year-old Colorado Democrat, "requesting" him to send up a copy of his remarks last Friday on the subject of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Martin's only explanation was that he wanted Mr. Roosevelt's reply to the business men for the Congressional Record. He declared the attacks on the New Deal by the Chamber of Commerce marked the "biggest break, politically," of the year for the President.

At the same time, a telegram was addressed to the President by George A. Sloan, chairman of the Consumers Goods Industries Committee, giving the indorsement of that group to the Administration's plans for two-year extension of the NRA.

Sloan asserted that "the great majority of consumers' goods manufacturing industries" concur in the recommendations of the Business Advisory and Planning Council, which last week came out in support of the President's NRA program just after the Chamber of Commerce adjourned.

These same manufacturers, representing 200 coded industries, are "unalterably opposed" to the ten months' extension proposed in the pending Senate Finance Committee resolution, Sloan declared. Likewise, they are against provisions of the measure which "would open the door wide to devices that would promote unfair competition by activities of concerns which are technically intrastate but nevertheless vitally affect interstate commerce."

The Martin resolution asks the President to send to the Speaker a copy of his press conference remarks "if agreeable to him and available." A stenographic report of Mr. Roosevelt's talks with the press is kept for reference purposes, but no copy has ever been made public. The White House reserved comment until the resolution is formally received, but doubt was expressed that the President would comply with the request.

"The chamber resolutions," Martin declared off the floor, "are just the reactionary expressions of Big Business. I don't agree with the President that the resolutions misrepresented the views of business—business never has been for the President's policies.

"But I think the country generally will resent the attitude of the Chamber of Commerce. I think the President got the biggest break, politically, out of that that he has got since Congress has been in session.

"If the chamber had expressed itself otherwise," he went on, "there might have been a real danger to millions of votes for the President from those who thought his program was more favorable to those interests than it really is. I am glad to see them out in the open against him, rather than to have them behind him trying to hamstring his program."

The Coloradan obtained leave to extend his remarks. Questioned about this, he commended an editorial in The Washington Post, "A Bungling Attack," and said he would follow the same line.

Pilots Drop Flowers As Funeral Tribute

Long Beach Calif., May 6 (AP).—From 20 airplanes flying low over the funeral procession, floral tributes were dropped today by the "air cronies" of John G. Montijo, 40-year-old air-mail pilot killed Wednesday in a plane crash in Colorado.

Scores of other fliers and representatives from aviation concerns rode in the cortege of the pilot who gave Amelia Earhart early instruction in flying.

Between You and Me

Digging Up Justiciary's Past; Left Wing Getting Haughty; Hoover and Smith Agree!

By Raymond Clapper

GENERAL CHARLES G. DAWES finds it hard to break an old habit and renews his prediction that prosperity is just around the corner. The general, following the view of many others, makes revival of the heavy durable goods industry the test of recovery.

While the restoration of this important sector of the industrial front is universally desired, there is serious argument as to whether this is a necessary precursor of recovery or whether it follows recovery as a matter of course. In a study of capital equipment, the Brookings Institution has taken the view that the primary need at this stage is a larger flow of funds through consumption channels. Its report challenges the view that recovery usually is initiated by improvements in the capital goods industries. On the basis of past experience with depressions, the Brookings report finds that in most cases changes in the direction of business appear to have originated in forces affecting the output of goods destined for consumption rather than with developments in the capital goods industries.

Those, it says, who have argued that periods of business expansion and contraction always begin with changes on the side of capital goods—that is machinery which is used to produce consumers goods such as automobiles, clothing, household articles and food products—have simply failed to distinguish between the forces which produce a change in business conditions and the situation which develops after a change has occurred.

That is, Brookings puts the egg first while Gen. Dawes votes for the chicken.

Recently when a lawyer arguing before the Supreme Court cited in support of his case an argument which Chief Justice Hughes had made some years before as a practicing attorney, Associate Justice McReynolds threw up his hands in horror and stopped the attorney, who was so distressed that he made a special appearance in court the next day to apologize for having appealed from Lawyer Hughes to Justice Hughes.

He ought to feel better now because the chief justice, himself, had followed his example and dug back into the past life of another member of the Supreme Court, Justice Sutherland, and hauled it out in broad daylight.

Justice Hughes was dissenting vigorously from the majority opinion which knocked out the railroad retirement act yesterday. The chief justice recalled that when Justice Sutherland was a United States Senator, he also was a member of a commission which held that Congress had authority to do in substance what he yesterday, as a member of the court's majority, held it had no authority to do. He pounded Sutherland's inconsistency hard.

It's going to make things a whole lot more lively around the court if the justices go back and pull out old skeletons on each other.

An echo from the dead past comes back as Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, in his Mayfield (Ky.) speech, advises President Roosevelt to make a "forthright repudiation" of the Huey Longs, the Coughlins, the Townsends and the other left wingers.

There is a chapter in American political history that may be of interest to Mr. Roosevelt as he is about to shift over further on the shoulders of the left wing. That is the experience of William Howard Taft, who found that the left wing of his time offered uncertain footing.

Selected and elected largely through the efforts of Theodore Roosevelt, Taft attempted for a time to hold the progressives with him. He rode the trust-busting issue even harder than Roosevelt the First, though he may not have talked as loudly about it. The number of antitrust prosecutions undertaken by Taft probably was larger than under T. R. His famous "midnight injunction" which checked a railroad rate increase, was another move in line with the progressive attitude.

Yet he found it difficult to please the progressives. Gifford Pinchot was on the warpath. They were as hard to keep in line as silver Senators are now. Progressives poured tales of betrayal into the ears of Colonel Teddy as he returned from his African lion hunt and he landed back home with blood in his eye. From that time on Taft didn't have a chance. He went over into the arms of the right wingers, and climbed aboard the Payne-Aldrich tariff act, but it was too late. He had become the tragic figure of presidential politics.

Donald Richberg is a more recent witness to the precariousness of left wing support. In 1924 he helped draft the third party platform for the elder La Follette. He was the hero of the liberals and was an able pleader of their cause in Congress and before the Supreme Court. Now he is poison to them. Of no one have they spoken more harshly.

In embracing the left wing, Mr. Roosevelt will find that it is a jealous mistress, and not to be led around by the nose as the bankers were here last fall when they grasped at a fragile White House olive branch like drowning men at straws.

The difference between left and right wingers is that the political southpaws are riding the crest and are in no joining mood. They won't even join each other. You have to join them. The right wingers, on the other hand, have been driven from pillar to post for several years like wandering pariahs. Therefore they are grateful to anyone who offers hospice. If pushed off now into the arms of the Republicans, they may be lost forever.

Political parade: Something is doing in West Virginia on the Republican presidential boom for Comptroller Gen. J. Raymond McCarl . . . Hoover and Al Smith are both talking down Government relief and talking up private charity. They sound more like each other every day. What was said here recently about them running together on a coalition presidential ticket has been taken seriously by some. Sorry, the joke should have been labeled . . . If anybody living in the 1600 block on Pennsylvania avenue were seriously thinking that it would be swell to wear a crown, one look at the London silver jubilee pictures should discourage the idea. In the first place, King George's pre-war crown looks as old-fashioned as one of Queen Mary's hats. In the second place, the real rulers of today find it more comfortable to go bareheaded . . . Population experts have been worrying over statistics showing there are more women of marriageable age than men in this country. Another surplus crop for AAA to plow under!

Attorney Gen. Cummings gets another five-to-four decision against him. Johnson Urges Roosevelt Lash At 'Bogey Men'

Long-Townsend - Coughlin Plans Scare Business, He Charges.

By the Associated Press.

Mayfield, Ky., May 6.—Terming the Coughlin-Long-Townsend economic plans bogey-men scaring the Nation's business, Hugh S. Johnson tonight advised a "forthright repudiation" of them by the Roosevelt Administration.

The former NRA chief and sharp-tongued foe of the three made his remarks in an address to a Democratic rally here.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which recently concluded a session at Washington, in which it condemned by a series of resolutions much of the Administration program, was right, said Johnson, in asking for a declaration against those proposals.

Johnson swerved away from the personal comment he had directed against Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit priest, and—to lesser degree—Dr. F. E. Townsend, of California, in previous public discourses.

His sharpest designations were "political will-o'-the-wisps and nine-day wonders."

He did, however, refer to the two recent meetings in Des Moines and Detroit, attended, respectively, by Senator Long and Father Coughlin, in this fashion:

"I don't know what happened in Detroit the other day. But the menace that thundered in the index to organize one by one all the discontented of each of the most populous States in the Union into powerful lobbies for particular measures—some of which had not even been discussed with the radio congregation—certainly fizzled and failed in the first chapter.

Reports Dictator Was Urged.

"The proposal of a marriage between share-the-wealth and social justice was rejected by the latter. Huey stole Milo's (Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers' Holiday Association) show at Des Moines, and the radio priest was conspicuous by his absence in the great Iowa farm revolt.

"Whether funds failed at Detroit or the good father couldn't get permission to talk in any other diocese than Michigan is unimportant. The abortive union of politics with religion is on the run and Huey isn't getting anywhere with his nonsense, either."

"The only reason we haven't a dictator right now," Johnson said at another point, "is that the very idea was hateful to the President. In March of 1933 there were many who urged that step and—strange as it now seems—the principal urgers were some of the very barons of big business who recently came to Washington and passed resolutions telling the New Deal to fold up and die.

"Those resolutions are very interesting. They all come from a single thought—that the crisis of the depression is over—that business would go ahead now on its own steam if it were only sure that Congress would pass no laws regulating banking and public utilities or extending NRA or giving AAA more power over the conduct of private business.

"Business might get much better if it were relieved of uncertainty. It ought to be relieved of that. But business is not yet ready to relieve Government of its emergency duties. The crisis is not over. • • •

"Yet there is a thought in these resolutions that is perfectly true. Government can never finally solve the problems of depression. Only a return to normal activity in industry can do that • • •

Not "Really Dangerous."

"There is only one answer and that is to get business going again. Business does not go now because it says it sees bogey-men behind every door. I think its present jitters are pretty silly. It should have seen enough of President Roosevelt to know that he is preparing no pineapple to blow it up. The present fear is supposed to be the share-the-wealth, flat money and Dr. Townsend bugaboos—slight figures in false faces • • •

"To the extent that they appear to threaten our existing system, they are holding back recovery • • •

"I don't think any of these threats are really dangerous, but I think they ought to be set at rest by a forthright repudiation of them by the Administration and by concerted action of all good Democrats against them whenever they appear.

"The Chamber of Commerce is right in asking for a declaration on that, but wrong in opposing pending legislation in Congress."

Youth Faces Court In Double Slaying

Four Selected for Jury in Steinmetz Case.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 6.—Joseph Lieb Steinmetz, 22, strained and nervous, sat with bowed head today as he went on trial for murder in the double slaying of his actress-wife and the Rev. Joseph L. Leonard, former pastor of the Chapel of Our Lady of the Rosary at Lawrenceville, N. J.

Steinmentz, a Protestant divinity student, although a son of a Rabbi, was arrested in an uptown hotel last November 20 after his wife, the former Ruth Armstrong, a film actress, and the priest werefound shot to death in the clergyman's hotel room following what authorities described as a drinking party.

Upon recess of court tonight four jurors had been chosen from the special panel of 150. Steinmetz's attorney, Samuel Leibowitz, who defended the Scottsboro Negroes, indicated by his questions the defense would be built on temporary emotional insanity.

All mention of the "unwitten law" was ruled out by General Sessions Judge Charles C. Nott, jr., after it cropped out in early questioning.

"There is no such thing as the unwritten law," Judge Nott said.

Colonists Reach Promised Land, Only to Face Measles Epidemic

Royal Welcome to Greet Emigrants as They Dock in Alaska.

By the Associated Press.

Seward, Alaska, May 6.—The Government's great band of colonists came to the promised land today—and seemed likely to be stricken with measles.

The Matanuska Valley emigrants, coming to the land of "milk and honey," in the U. S. Army transport St. Mihiel, were preceded by conflicting reports, one that measles had broken out, another that some of the colonists had diphtheria. The hospital here was advised to prepare for six patients.

The St. Mihiel, due here at 6 p. m., was prevented from docking by the Government motorship North Star, which was discharging the cargo of the colonists, a hardy band of farmers, their wives and families.

"You won't find a lily-fingered guy in the crowd," Alaskans said here. "They've all been chosen for some specific ability in the farming line. Some can run a tractor. Some can jerk stumps. Some are carpenters, and so on."

Every available man toiled at the North Star's dock, while the whole town planned to suspend its ordinary activities and give a royal welcome to the colonists when they step down the gangplank. Whistles will toot, flags will wave.

The CCC men who are to clear the ground will leave first, with the farmers remaining on board the transport for a few days, according to present plans.

The golden Matanuska Valley isn't quite ready for the colonists, but those in charge said fast progress would be made.

New Kind of Laurels To Roosevelt Family

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 6.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, jr., added to the family laurels today by winning high honors at a needlework exhibition.

The daughter-in-law of the late President won three awards—more than any other woman exhibiting—with her pieces of petit point, one of the more exacting types of needlework.

The judges said the show, in which society women took part, proved that women are "going back to the needles" for relaxation. Some of the pieces, they said, compared favorably with the exquisite "fancy work" of Queen Victoria's day.

West Virginia Rally Is Opened By Advertisers

Optimism as to Future Expressed as National Unit Convenes.

By Felix Bruner.
A Staff Correspondent.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 6.—A cheerful attitude toward the future of business was expressed by many of the members of the Association of National Advertisers today as they opened their twenty-sixth semi-annual meeting. A hopeful view was taken by Allyn B. McIntire, president of the association, in his report on the affairs of the group.

Meetings today consisted almost altogether of shop talk and were attended only by members of the organization.

In the general meeting a report by Bernard Lichtenberg, chairman of the Government Relations Committee, was read by G. S. McMillan, assistant managing director. It dealt largely with the Copeland food and drug bill, pending in the United States Senate, and with proposed trademark legislation in the States. The Copeland bill report dealt only with the status of the measure, not going into its merits.

Legislation Balked.

Lichtenberg reported the organization had been successful, in cooperation with the American Association of Newspaper Publishers and the American Association of Advertising Agencies, in preventing the enactment of legislation that would require State registration of trademarks. Such a bill was passed in Nevada, but vetoed by the Governor. Similar legislation was defeated in New York and Maryland. Lichtenberg also reported legislation requiring a 5 per cent tax on advertising had been defeated in Minnesota.

A. O. Buckingham reported an increase in membership of the association and Harold B. Thomas reported on program arrangements.

The afternoon program consisted of five group meetings at which problems of individual industries were discussed. The department store merchandising group, over which Buckingham, in charge of advertising of Cluett, Peabody & Co. Inc., presided, discussed specific problems in connection with retail outlets.

Trend in Stores.

Distribution outlets also were discussed at the grocery products group meeting at which W. W. Wachtel, of the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co., presided. The discussion indicated the general trend in the country is toward complete food stores, rather than specialized stores, and that the number of the former is increasing. Speakers urged that instead of stressing price, displays be complete, consisting of groups of food products that usually would be found together on the dinner table.

Other group meetings were: Distilled products, Carleton Healy, of Hiram Walker & Sons, Inc., presiding; drug and toilet articles, H. W. Roden, of Johnson & Johnson, presiding, and industrial advertising, Ralph Leavenworth, of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., presiding. The only meeting tonight was that of the steel group, with C. G. Congdon, of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, in charge.

Radio Major Topic.

The morning session today, open to members only, will discuss radio advertising. Radio advertising has been made the major subject for the convention. This is the first time this form of advertising has been given such an important place. The first public meeting will be this afternoon and a banquet will be given tonight.

Most of the members kept to the hotel while not attending meetings. Rain spoiled most of the planned golf matches. Registration of membership is somewhat larger than usual, with more than 300 present. This number is expected to increase with registration of guests for the open meetings today.

Few social activities are on the program and the number of set speeches has been held to a minimum. The convention consists for the most part in an interchange of ideas on specific merchandising and advertising problems.

U. S. Airs Plan To Transplant Dust Farmers

10,000 Plains Families Could Be Moved East, Wilson Hears.

By the Associated Press.

A double-barreled plan for quieting future dust storms and moving already stranded farm families from the Great Plains area to the Atlantic seaboard and south Texas was submitted yesterday to the Department of Agriculture.

Walter B. Pitkin, professor of journalism at Columbia University, who for many years has devoted part of his time to farming and a study of farm management, told M. L. Wilson, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, that he could place 10,000 farm families along the Eastern seaboard and 200,000 in south Texas.

Areas from which these families would be taken, he explained, could be planted in grass to prevent a recurrence of the wind erosion so disastrous this year.

Before Hopkins, Tugwell.

Pitkin hopes his plan will be made a part of the Rural Resettlement Administration under the $4,000,000,000 works program. He will confer with Rexford G. Tugwell, resettlement administrator, after a Western trip. However, he said that both Tugwell and Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, were familiar with the general outline of his proposal.

"I have not talked to any one who has not expressed a favorable attitude toward the plan," Pitkin said.

Already operating a 1,600-acre farm of his own in eastern Maryland, Pitkin is president of Eastern Shore Farm Associates, a farm management organization operating 16 farms along the seaboard. In addition, he is serving as technical adviser to the Texas industrial survey, a State unit working toward adjustment of farm and industrial problems.

Experiments Successful.

"I have found in Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and New Jersey," he said, "an astounding number of good farms where the owners are willing and eager to bring in good tenants and families.

"I have been experimenting myself and have brought several tenant families from the Midwest to the seaboard. The experiment has proved highly successful.

"Under the plan I have suggested, picked and able tenant families from the stricken areas of the Great Plains would be brought to the East or transferred to Texas. They would be placed on individual farms and a public management would supervise contracts between owners and tenants. This would insure fairness to both tenants and owners and certainly should afford the tenants considerably more than subsistence. The families I have brought East have been very happy.

"After a few years' time the new families probably would become adjusted to Eastern farming conditions."

PackersSue Government On Processing Taxes

Wichita, Kans., May 6 (AP).—The Butzer Packing Co. of Salina, Kans., has filed suit in United States District Court here to recover $99,127.50 paid the Federal Government in processing taxes on hogs. The company contends it is doing a strictly intra-state business and that the hog processing tax of $2.25 a hundredweight is not, therefore, applicable in its case.

President's Son To Manage Farm

James Also to Run Forestry Unit at Hyde Park.

By the Associated Press.

James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, is going to run the dairy farm and forestry experimentation station on the family estate at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Contrary to persistent reports that James was coming to Washington to work with his father in the White House, it became known yesterday that smiling "Jimmy" wants to get some rest and outdoor life and at the same time the President wants to test accounting and management on the farm. The President has about a dozen cows in the dairy herd.

He also is vitally interested in the forestry experiments being conducted by the State on the family estate and has asked James to conduct a study in this field to see if it is possible to maintain permanent employment in this activity.

Young Roosevelt will maintain his insurance business, but will reside at Hyde Park.

Italian Soldier Slain By Ethiopian Raiders

Asmara, Eritrea, East Africa, May 6 (AP).—A terse official Italian statement issued here today revealed that roving Ethiopian bands once again have drawn Italian blood in the East African frontier territory.

An Italian soldier at the frontier outpost near Gogula was found dead shortly after he left camp to get water, the communique said, adding that the body was found on Italian territory.

The commander of the outpost was quoted as saying he had found traces showing Ethiopian marauders tracked the man into the Italian lines before killing him.

Floyd Dead, Bank's Raids Hit New Low

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City May 6.—Bank robbing isn't what it used to be in Oklahoma.

In 1932—when the name of the late Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd made criminal news in the State—62 banks were raided.

For the first four months of 1935, authorities announced today, the total is six.

The total loot in 1932 was $127-858; this year, up to now, the total is $7,427.

A good share of the credit is given generally to the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation agents. They heightened co-operation among county officers.

5 Branches Opened By Justice Office

By the Associated Press.

Expanding its drive on bank robbers, jewel thieves and other criminals, the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation was disclosed yesterday to be establishing five new field offices in Cleveland, Ohio; Atlanta, Ga.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Trenton, N. J., and in a city either in North or South Dakota.

The purposes of the new anti-crime bases which already have been organized in Cleveland and Atlanta, are to enable special agents, with their high-powered guns and fast automobiles, to swing into action more swiftly against roving gangs of desperadoes.

The other offices are to be organized as rapidly as possible. With their completion, the five additional offices will bring the total of field headquarters to 35, with the possibility that two more may be set up later in the Midwestern "crime corridor."

Tribute Is Paid To KingGeorge In Washington

Impressive Rites at Cathedral Attended by Distinguished Persons.

Prominent Americans joined with British subjects and members of the diplomatic corps to honor his Brittanic Majesty, King George V, at the Washington Cathedral yesterday at 11 a. m.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt led the list of distinguished persons who witnessed the service of prayer and thanksgiving patterned after the one which took place earlier in the day at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, at which King George and Queen Mary were present. The occasion was the official opening of the King's silver jubilee, celebrating his quarter of a century as Britain's monarch.

The service was offered by the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, for Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador. Canon Raymond L. Wolven, the Bishop's chaplain, led the chants and prayers, Dean G. L. F. Bratenahl, of the cathedral, read the scripture lessons and Bishop Freeman pronounced the benediction.

Full Diplomatic Dress.

Sir Ronald and Lady Lindsay were the first of the diplomatic corps to arrive. He was colorfully attired, as were the others, in full diplomatic dress, with cocked hat and sword. He was followed by the Belgian Ambassador, the Norwegian, Swedish, Danish, Rumanian, Canadian and South African Ministers and their wives. Only diplomats invited were those of the Empire and ones representing nations whose royal families were related to King George. The whole British Embassy staff attended in uniform.

Mrs. Roosevelt, attired in a light-blue ensemble, arrived with three ladies who are guests at the White House and the White House aids, Col. Edward Watson and Capt. Wilson Brown. The whole congregation rose as she was escorted to her seat by Mr. F. D. G. Osborne, first Minister of the British Embassy.

Cabinet Officers There.

Among others, in what cathedral officials termed one of the most distinguished gatherings ever to attend a service there, were Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Undersecretary of State William Phillips, Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who arrived with Mrs. Jesse Jones, Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, former Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, former Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William R. Castle, jr., Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Mrs. Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Underwood Bliss.

Several members of the Scottish order of St. Andrews were present in red and green kilts.

Anti-Nazi Arrest To Be Arbitrated

Berlin Agrees With Swiss Proposals for Writer.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, May 6.—The German government today notified Switzerland that her proposal to arbitrate the case of Berthold Jacob, allegedly kidnaped anti-Nazi journalist, was acceptable.

The Swiss charge that Jacob was illegally decoyed from Switzerland to German soil and there arrested.

This is the first occasion for arbitration under a German-Swiss treaty calling for it under such circumstances and there is no definite procedure prescribed.

In previous protests to the Reich government the Swiss charged that Jacob, who had written articles distasteful to Berlin, was kidnaped by secret Nazi agents. His return was demanded.

The Reich government contended that Jacob reached German soil of his own accord and was arrested.

strains of "God Save Our Gracious King" echoed and re-echoed through the church.

Behind the stately crimson-and-gilt thrones of the king and queen was the big square of 64 seats occupied by the royal family.

The Prince of Wales sat in the first row, directly behind his parents, while back of the king's right hand was the little footstool where Margaret Rose, 4-year-old granddaughter of the king and queen, perched. Near her was her 9-year-old sister, Princess Elizabeth.

As the venerable archbishop of Canterbury, richly clothed in gold and white vestments, paid impressive tribute in his strangely youthful voice to the sovereign, King George looked back on 25 years which the archbishop called "years of almost unbroken anxiety and strain."

The service closed with a dramatic rendering of the national anthem. Started by the choir, it swelled to a crescendo as the congreation joined in.

As official representatives of the United States there were nine from the American Embassy, headed by Ambassador and Mrs. Robert W. Bingham and their daughter, Henrietta.

Mrs. Bingham wore a black crepe de chine gown with touches of pink while her daughter wore a brown hat and a beige slik dress and coat.

President Cables Greeting to King

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt yesterday dispatched the following message to King George V of Great Britain on his silver jubilee:

"The people of the United States join with me today in extending most sincere congratulations on the twenty-fifth anniversary of your majesty's accession to the throne.

"It is gratifying to contemplate the wise and steadfast influence which your majesty has exerted for a quarter of a century.

"The many traditions which we in the United States have in common with the British people permit us to understand how deeply stirring today's anniversary must be to your majesty's subjects. We share in their rejoicing."

Text of King's Message to World On Silver Jubilee Celebration

By the Associated Press.

London, May 6.—The text of the address of King George V, broadcast to the empire and the world on the occasion of his silver jubilee celebration, follows:

"At the close of this memorable day I must speak to my people everywhere. Yet how can I express what is in my heart.

"As I passed this morning through cheering multitudes to and from St. Paul's Cathedral, as I thought there of all that these 25 years had brought to me and my country and my empire, how could I fail to be deeply moved?

"Words can not express my thoughts and feelings. I can only say to you, my very dear people, that the Queen and I thank you from the depth of our hearts for all the loyalty and, may I say, the love with which this day and always you have surrounded us.

"I dedicate myself anew to your service for the years that may still be given to me. I look back on the past with thankfulness to God. My people and I have come through great trials and difficulties together. They are not over. In the midst of these days of rejoicing I grieve to think of the numbers of my people who still are without work.

"We owe to them and not least to those suffering from any form of disablement all the sympathy and help we can give to them. I hope that during this jubilee year all who can will do their utmost to find them work and bring them hope.

"Other anxieties may be in store, but I am persuaded that with God's help these may all be overcome by the confidence, courage and unity, so I look forward to the future with faith and hope.

"It is to the young that the future belongs. I trust that through the fund inaugurated through my dear son, the Prince of Wales, to commemorate this year, many of them throughout this country may be helped in body, mind and character to become useful citizens.

"To the children I would like to send a special message. Let me say this to each of those whom my words may reach. The King is speaking to you. I ask you to remember that in days to come you will be citizens of a great empire. As you grow up always keep this thought before you, and when the time comes be ready and proud to give to your country the service of your work, your mind and your heart.

"I have been greatly touched by all of the greetings which have come to me today from my dominions and colonies, from India and from this home country.

"My heart goes out to all who may be listening to me now, wherever you may be, either here at home, in town or village, or in some far off corner of the empire, or it may be on the high seas.

"Let me end these words to you with those that Queen Victoria used after her diamond jubilee 38 years ago. No words could more truly or simply express my own deep feelings: 'From my heart I thank my beloved people, may God bless

Japanese Light Bulbs Are Banned by Court

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, May 6.—Sale in the United States of Japanese-made electric light bulbs, which infringe American patents, was banned today under a decision by Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick.

Judge McCormick granted the General Electric Co. an injunction against T. Anraku, the Tokyo Lamp Co., the International Lamp Co. and the Pacific Importing Co.

L. S. Lyon, attorney who handled the patent suit, said the injunction will halt the sale in this country of about 100,000,000 Japanese-made bulbs annually.

Democrats Nominate Two.

Abingdon, Va., May 6 (AP).—Democrats of Washington County and the City of Bristol, in convention here this afternoon, nominated William N. Neff, of Abingdon, incumbent, and Donald T. Stant, of Bristol, as candidates for the county and city's two places in the House of Delegates.

Rigorous Taxes Drawn to Beat BonusUpToday

50,000 Telegrams Pour In on Senate After Fr. Coughlin's Appeal.

Washington, chairman of the House Ways and Means tax sub-committee, said he personally would sponsor no such measure.

"It is not economically possible under present conditions to raise $2,000,000,000 in additional revenue," he said.

"I personally am opposed to even a $200,000,000 to $600,000,000 inheritance tax levy. We have already and are imposing a substantial estates tax. An inheritance tax would tap the same wealth. I believe that constitutes double taxation."

One Administration Senator identified with the cash bonus fight pointed to Mr. Roosevelt's repeated admonition, echoed by his Secretary of the Treasury, that new revenues must be found to pay for any increase over budgetary estimates.

The Vinson bill would cost $2,263,545,000, not provided for in the budget—the Harrison compromise, $1,000,000,000 under that amount. Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, has insisted his own plan would require no new additional taxes. But leaders yesterday abandoned all hope of passing the compromise.

Ready to Defy Veto.

The first test vote will come today on a motion by Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, to substitute the Vinson bill for the Harrison plan. Senator Clark estimated the Senate will select the Vinson alternative by better than a 2-to-1 vote.

The choice then will lie between the Vinson bill and the inflationary Patman plan, which provides substantially the same payment to veterans, but would pay in greenbacks. Originally, some Democratic stalwarts had planned to vote for the Patman bill, cocksure that this would bring a veto that would be sustained by the Senate.

They were said to have revised They were said to have revised this strategy after the Coughlin speech, although a few may go through with the plan. Observers believed that this change in tactics, if finally followed, will bring victory for the Vinson bill by a good margin.

Not waiting for the final outcome, leaders already are actively planning their campaign to sustain a veto, if one is forthcoming on the Vinson bill. They reiterated their belief the President will never sign the measure. In soliciting support to sustain a veto, however, it was learned they have met with difficulties.

Several Senators who have been counted on by the White House in all other tests, among them Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, are said to be committed to support of the Vinson bill, even over a veto.

Black-Necked Swans Make Debut at Zoo

A pair of South American swans, whose chief distinction is a black neck each, were received at the Zoo yesterday.

Two deer, gifts of Sylvanus Morley, of the Carnegie Institution, also made their debut. They are in the lion house, which now contains two deer, two pigmy hippopotami, a full-sized hippopotamus, a chimpanzee, an orang utang, and, incidentally, some lions.

The day was productive in the matter of Australian silver gulls, too. Fourteen young ones hatched out, bringing joy to seven sets of parents

Finally, the PWAP panels showing extinct birds were hung in the bird house. (PWAP stands for, not one of the species portrayed, but the Public Works of Art Projects, under which the panels were executed.)

The archeopteryx is depicted in all its prehistoric glory, along with several other early birds, but the best known of all is missing.

"What! No dodo?" Director William M. Mann was asked.

"No, no dodo," he replied.

Prison Beatings Bared by Probers

Austin, Tex., May 6 (AP).—A Texas legislative committee announced today it had found evidence of brutal treatment of convicts by field guards at Retrieve State Prison Farm, including beatings administered with rubber hose and the chaining of one man to the floor.

The committee investigation, headed by Representative McCalla, followed receipt of reports that some convicts had "cut off their feet" so they might be confined to hospitals out of reach of the guards.

Prison board authorities, denying irregularities, said convicts resorted to self-maiming to escape work.

A total of 64 votes was cast in the election. Hempstone received 64 votes and the others lesser numbers. The total eligible list for the town is 100.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Morgantown, West Va., May 6.—It took a circuit court jury here only 20 minutes to award Lucy Morris Loban $15,000 against Mrs. Gertrude C. Spelsberg, of Clarksburg, for injuries received in an automobile accident in October, 1933, near Shinnston, Harrison County. Mrs. Spelsberg is the wife of Hugo Spelsberg, a Clarksburg business man.

Flu Deaths Cause Coffin Shortage

Survivors at Point Barrow Use Building Boards.

By the Associated Press.

Point Barrow, Alaska, May 6.—Healthy Eskimos of this outpost of the Far North tore down buildings today to make coffins for victims of an influenza epidemic, while the lone medical missionary took six Eskimos to the "white man's heaven," Presbyterian Hospital.

The ice pack locked the harbor in 2-below-zero weather. Influenza struck down 300, killed 11, with more expected to die. An airplane which came north from Nome brought no serum. There was a shortage of food.

The Rev. Dr. Henry G. Griest, medical missionary of the Presbyterian Church, ministered to the sick, prayed for the dead, put them aside until the strongest of the young men could dig graves in the frozen ground.

Court Rule Asked On WaterpowerAct

U. S. License for Appalachian Co. Demanded.

Justice Department attorneys filed an action yesterday in the Federal district court at Roanoke, Va., to support authority of the Federal Power Commission and constitutionality of the Federal waterpower act.

It named the Appalachian Electric Power Co. and demanded the company obtain a Federal license for its $10,000,000 dam and power project on the New River, near Radford, Va., already under construction.

Virginia State officials notified the Government and power commission that they will intervene in this case, questioning the right of the Federal Government to supercede State authority. This will force the controversy out of the district court and into the Supreme Court, Justice lawyers said.

Cutting's Death Casts Gloom Over Capitol

Roosevelt Pays Tribute to Progressive Leader as Congress Adjourns.

fornia—could not conceal their emotion as Hatch, husky-voiced, made his announcement.

"I will content myself," Hatch said, "with saying that he has carved for himself a conspicuous and honored place in the affairs of the Nation, as well as my State, and his untimely death is a loss to America as well as to New Mexico."

Said Dempsey:

"Senator Cutting has been an outstanding national figure. He has rendered a distinguished service to the State of New Mexico as well as to the Nation. He will be mourned by every man, woman and child in my State."

Former Representative Chavez, the Democrat who opposed him in the last campaign, and whose contest of Cutting's election is still pending before a Senate committee, probably will succeed him. The seat will be filled by Gov. Clyde Tingley of New Mexico.

This will add another Democratic seat to the Administration's already topheavy Senate majority, leaving the alignment: 70 Democrats, 24 Republicans, 1 Progressive and 1 Farmer-Laborite.

Ten to Attend Funeral.

Vice President Garner named the following ten Senators to attend the funeral, which will be held at Senator Cutting's birthplace, Oakdale, Long Island:

Robinson, Hatch, Wheeler, Wagner and Costigan (Democrats), McNary, Borah, Norris and Johnson (Republicans), and La Follette (Progressive).

Speaker Byrns named a committee of four—Blanton and Dempsey (Democrats), and Maas and Plumley (Republicans).

"I just can't find words to express myself about it," commented Senator Borah. His eyes were moist.

Vice President Garner said Cutting was a "patriot" who had "rendered great service to his country;" Senate Majority Leader Robinson referred to his "position of influence in the Senate," while Minority Leader McNary declared his death "a great loss to the Progressive movement in this country."

Cutting, who was only 46, had widely been mentioned as of presidential timber. He had worked with his Progressive colleagues toward developing a two-party system clearly differentiating between liberals and conservatives.

Wealthy from birth, Cutting, like President Roosevelt, was born in New York and educated at Harvard. As a young man, however, he moved to Santa Fe, N. Mex., set up in the publishing business and played an increasingly active role in politics. He was a leader in the early days of the Bull Moose movement. He originally came to the Senate by a governor's appointment, and, except for a brief interval, had served continuously since.

Forced to choose between Roosevelt and Hoover in 1932, Senator Cutting cast his lot with his liberal friend and enthusiastically campaigned for the Democratic candidate.

Later it was common report in Washington that Mr. Roosevelt sought him out to serve as Secretary of Interior. Cutting said he was "highly honored" at the suggestion but rejected the proffer.

Differences Cropped Up.

Differences with the White House cropped up when the President's economy bill, with its drastic veterans' slashes, reached the Capitol. Cutting was a veteran of the World War and a former assistant military attache at the American Embassy in London. He took the Senate floor in behalf of independent offices bill amendments restoring the cuts, charging Administration inconsistency. Later he saw these amendments become law over the President's veto.

Although he subsequently supported the President on World Court adherence, he continued to follow his own thoughts on Administration measures, and only recently sought to earmark works bill allocations to keep public schools open, in defiance of White House wishes. Again he was successful, but his amendment was rejected in conference.

When Postmaster General Farley backed Chavez against Cutting in the 1934 campaign aroused Senate Progressives termed it "rank political ingratitude." Again, after the Chavez election contest was pressed before the Senate Elections Committee, Cutting's liberal colleagues said he was being "harassed."

The Senate committee last month decided to strike from the charges all allegations of illegal campaign expenditures by Cutting. Charges that ballots of 11 "dead" persons, 182 "non-residents," 187 "fictitious" and 1,371 "unregistered" persons in San Miguel County were counted illegally for the Senator still were pending.

Driver Found Guilty In Death of Woman

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 6.—Kenneth E. Williamson, of Morgantown, W. Va., today was found guilty of manslaughter in a trial before Judges D. Lindley Sloan and David A. Robb. In connection with the death of Mrs. Aden Everstine who was struck March 17, while crossing the National Highway to her car near Lavale Inn, where she attended a St. Patrick dance. Her husband was seriously injured and was only recently released from a hospital.

State's Attorney William A. Huster contended Williamson, who had been to a dance in Cumberland, had been drinking and was driving recklessly. Miss Virginia Poland, Frostburg, Williamson's companion, and several friends who attended the dance with him, declared on the stand he was sober. Sentence was withheld.

List of Injured.

The injured, brought with the four dead to Macon, were:

Richard Wallace, prominent Hollywood motion picture director, hurt in the chest.

Paul Wing, Hollywood, father of Toby Wing, screen actress, suffering from a crushed chest.

C. G. Drew, Santa Monica, Calif., chief electrician for Paramount Studios, jaw and left leg fractured.

William Kaplan, West Los Angeles, Calif., assistant producer with Paramount Studios, broken leg.

Mrs. William Kaplan, fractured back; paralzed from waist down.

Henry Sharpe, Los Angeles, Paramount camera man; superficial cuts.

Mrs. Dora Metzger, Los Angeles, and Port Washington, Long Island, N. Y., broken leg and cuts.

Mrs. Metzger's 15-month-old baby daughter, broken leg and cuts.

Mrs. D. L. Mesker, Kansas City, wife of a TWA pilot, slight injuries.

Senate Adjourns.

News of Senator Cutting's death was conveyed immediately to President Roosevelt, a personal friend, at Washington.

Political leaders expressed their deep regret. The Senate adjourned out of respect to the fallen liberal.

"Bronson was like a son to me," said Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, also a Republican independent.

Rescue parties were hindered in reaching the wreckage by the country's rough terrain and slippery roads. Rains had made the land for miles about unsuitable for landing.

The eastbound plane was forced to seek an emergency landing field after smoke and fog prevented its scheduled landing at Kansas City at 2:56 a. m. (central standard time). It left Los Angeles last night.

"It seemed that we merely went on and on through that heavy curtain of fog that enshrouded the earth," Mrs. Mesker said at a Macon hospital to which she and the other injured were brought.

"Then suddenly, without warning, came the crash. The plane did not go into a spin or a dive. It was just that sudden, awesome crash. I believe we must have hit the ground as though in landing and then turned over."

Out of Gasoline.

Mrs. Charles Bledsoe, wife of the farmer on whose pasture the plane crashed, said "the pilot, in uniform, kept saying that he ran out of gasoline." Presumably she meant Pilot Bolton, who died after being brought here. His co-pilot was killed outright.

"The wrecked plane had stopped near the edge of our pasture, not far from a dirt road," she said.

"The east bank of the road showed a mark where the plane had hit and the west bank of the roadway showed other marks where it had struck. Then the plane tore on through the fence into our pasture, breaking down a small tree in its path. Later, we noticed that the top of a bigger tree near the road had been struck by the plane. Pieces of the engine and other wreckage were strewn beside the road and on into the pasture.

"Most of the injured already were out of the plane when Mr. Bledsoe got there. They seemed shocked, dazed."

Seven of the injured were taken at first to the Bledsoe home—all "unconscious or too badly injured to tell what happened."

"When I came to, I was laid out in the mud," Mrs. Mesker related.

Baby Was Crying.

"The baby was crying and its mother was crying for it. I managed to find a blanket and cover the child * * * I could see one of the motors lying nearly 200 feet away from the wreckage * * * when I tried to walk I discovered my shoes had been torn off in the crash and I couldn't find them. I took some shoes from the still form of a man lying nearby and put them on."

She walked to a farmhouse and spread the alarm.

For half an hour the ship circled over the Kansas City airport. It was instructed by radio to proceed to a field at Kirksville, 120 miles northeast of Kansas City. The craft crashed between 3 and 4 o'clock.

Transcontinental and Western Air officials at Kansas City were stunned by the crash—the first, they said, on a scheduled run since Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, was killed with seven others in Kansas, March 31, 1931.

The Holywood party was preparing to film "Annapolis Farewell," with Sir Guy Standing as the star. The film colony listed Wallace as a pioneer in the industry. He started as an assistant cutter at the Sennett Studio and forged ahead rapidly.

Investigation Started.

Two investigators from Chicago and two from Kansas City were ordered to the scene of the crash by Eugene Vidal, director of the Bureau of Air Commerce, in Washington.

Two farm youths, up before dawn at their farm home two miles southeast of the crash scene, were the first to report actually seeing the plane in distress a few minutes before it fell.

"It was coming east," said Nolan Rhoads, 17, speaking also for his brother, Harry, 16.

"Then it turned north and again northwest. The motors sounded good to us at that time. A little after we lost sight of it, the sound of the motors stopped suddenly. Then the lights went on at the Bledsoe farm."

A huge crowd remained at the scene all day. State highway patrolmen succeeded in keeping persons away from the plane until the wreckage was surrounded by a fence. The plane lay on its back.

New Torpedo Plane Falls Apart, Pilot Safe

By the Associated Press.

Ravenna, Ohio, May 6.—Lee Gehlbach, 32, a test pilot for the Great Lakes Aircraft Corporation, leaped from an airplane at an altitude of approximately 8,000 feet today as the craft crumpled. He reached earth safely in a parachute 10 miles from here.

Gehlbach received minor injuries to the head.

The aviator said he left Cleveland earlier in the day on a test flight. He did not attempt to explain the cause of the accident. He said the plane, discribed as a "torpedo type," suddenly "went to pieces."

It is a new type ship, he said, designed for submission to the United States Navy.

Md. U. Students Delay Protest Of Dr. Pearson

Meeting Postponed as a Personal Favor to Dr. Zucker, Resigned.

At the instigation of Dr. A. E. Zucker, recently resigned member of the University of Maryland faculty, students of that school agreed last night to "postpone" their meeting of indignation against President Raymond A. Pearson.

Marshall Mathias, editor of the Diamondback, school publication, who called the meeting, said Dr. Zucker had requested the postponement as a personal favor.

It also was announced at College Park that Gov. Nice had branded charges made by Dr. Zucker as an "utterly unjustified and unfair attack" on Dr. Pearson. The Governor said he would take no hand in the controversy.

Student indignation, however, continued to mount when it was understood no action would be taken to stop the exit of outstanding men from the university's faculty.

Dr. Zucker, the latest to resign, declared he was entirely out of sympathy with Dr. Pearson's policies, and that the school had been steadily on the down grade for the past eight years as a result of those policies.

The Diamondback also made public letters from Dr. Arthur I. Andrews, former history professor, and Dr. Frederic E. Lee, former Arts and Sciences College dean, who declared they also resigned because of lack of sympathy with Dr. Pearson.

Raging Waters Take 10 Lives In Flood Area

Thousands of Acres Hit in 4 Southern States; Brazil Alarmed.

By the Associated Press.

Little Rock, Ark., May 6.—Flood struck at the mid-South again today, claiming ten lives in four States and inundating thousands of acres of farm and range lands.

Rains that freed portions of the Nation's dust bowl of haze for the first time since February swelled streams to flood stage, with a threat of widespread destruction for lowland crops.

Louisiana counted five dead as a wagon plunged through a bridge while the victims fled from flood waters near Opelousas. Oklahoma and Texas had two deaths each, while one man drowned in Arkansas.

Flood warnings went out in Arkansas, with the Ouachita Valley promised higher stages than in the March flood that left damage in various parts of the State and claimed several lives.

Highways were closed in many areas as flood waters rushed across thoroughfares on to recently planted fields.

Roy McCallum, 40, a farmer, drowned near Greenwood, Ark.

Johnny Skeen, 23, drowned near Paris, Texas, and George Angell, 28, was killed as his car hit a telephone pole during a rainstorm near Austin.

Dalton and Jack Stanfield drowned in Kiamichi River near Spencerville, Okla., as they attempted to save a herd of cattle in swirling water.

Residents of the areas between the Apple and Messer communities were reported fleeing their homes as flood waters rose at a rate of 1⅞ inches an hour.

Adrasta Soileau, 55; Mrs. Adraste Soileau, 53, his wife, and three children of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Zeringue, Elius, 6; Deloues, 3, and Walter, jr., 2, were the victims of the Opelousas, La., tragedy.

By the Associated Press.

Rio de Janeiro, May 6.—Word that the tempestuous winds and rain besetting Bahia were inflicting more serious damage caused Minister of Communications Marques Dos Reis to take off by fast plane tonight for the storm center.

Although dispatches from Bahia were contradictory, deaths were generally estimated at more than 400 and damage was said to be incalculable. The heaviest damage apparently was confined to hundreds of hillside homes and flimsy structures.

The minister of communications was expected to reach Bahia before nightfall tomorrow.

A trustworthy estimate of the casualties still was impossible, however, some dispatches asserting that a veritable deluge was still going on and that the number of injured victims was growing. All agreed that there was no way of knowing how many perished in avalanches.

Power lines were partly repaired, tramways, telephones and lights were resuming and waterworks were functioning once more.

U. S. Jury Holds 26 For Norfolk Trials

One of 15 True Bills Cites Threat to Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., May 6.—Passing of counterfeit money, bootlegging and sending of a threatening letter to the President of the United States were among charges in 15 true bills, involving 26 defendants, returned today by the Federal grand jury for the May term of District Court.

Charging the grand jury before it took up its duties, Judge Way emphasized Federal laws on bankruptcy, automobile theft, migratory game birds and bootlegging.

The charge of sending a threatening letter to President Roosevelt was lodged against Albert F. Decker, self-styled Saint Decker, elderly transient who is accused of mailing the letter from the Federal transient camp at Fort Eustis January 29. In the Warwick County Jail, Newport News, since his arrest in February, Decker is scheduled for a hearing tomorrow.

ical expose articles by Arthur B. Waugh, associate editor, won a gold medal costing $500 for "the most distinguished and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper" during 1934. He conducted a single-handed expose in Reno, Nev., against the powerful Wingfield political machine. He began by investigating complaints the paper had received against the nomination by President Roosevelt of Federal District Judge Frank H. Norcross to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

"The publication of these articles," read tonight's citation, "created such a sensation in Nevada that Congress was overwhelmed with petitions demanding that the nomination not be approved.

"The hearings held by a sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee substantiated Mr. Waugh's articles, published in January, 1934, in the Sacramento Bee and the appointments were dropped by common consent."

The Sheboygan (Wis.) Press won honorable mention.

Ross A. Lewis of the Milwaukee Journal won a $500 award for his cartoon "Sure I'll Work for Both Sides," published September 1, 1934, depicting a huge, ugly figure labeled "violence" straddling both sides of the fence in a dispute between "strikers" and "industry."

Yale Historian Honored.

For the best book of the year upon the history of the United States, Dr. Charles McClean Andrews, Yale historian, was granted $500 for "The Colonial Period of American History." The best American biography teaching patriotic and unselfish services to the people—with the names of Washington and Lincoln excluded—was deemed Douglas S. Freeman's "R. E. Lee." David Saville Muzzey's "James G. Blaine" was given honorable mention for the American biography award.

No award was given this year for the most distinguished newspaper editorial.

Dean Carl Ackerman of the Pulitzer School of Journalism, said Walter J. Pfister, city editor of the Sheboygan (Wis.) Press, honorable mention winner for newspaper service, was the only recipient present. Pfister said his newspaper had conducted a successful campaign to prevent mistreatment of patients in the State insane hospitals.

Miss Akins has written many plays in the last 16 years and several of them have achieved great success on Broadway. Among her best-known are "Declasse," "The Duries," "Daddy's Gone A-Hunting" and "The Greeks Had a Word for It," which was her last New York production prior to "The Old Maid." She was born in Humansville, Mo., October 30, 1886, and her present home is Pasadena, Calif. She has done much writing for motion pictures.

Play Still Running.

"The Old Maid," produced by Harry Moses and starring Judith Anderson and Helen Mencken, is still running in New York, after 141 performances. It has been popular and was considered one of the plays likely to get the award.

Douglas Southall Freeman worked for almost 20 years compiling notes for his biography of Lee and in writing it. Critics regard it as one of the finest examples of definitive biography by an American. Dr. Freeman is a prominent Southern newspaperman. He has been editor of the News Leader of Richmond, Va., since 1915. He is editor of various works on taxation and history. He was born at Lynchburg, Va., May 16, 1886.

Jurors Convict Big Sam Beard, Gambling Czar

12 'Little Men' Also Found Guilty With Him of Gaming Offenses.

ants, spectators and attorneys waited for Justice Cox.

Beard Shows Nervousness.

Justice Cox entered the courtroom shortly after 8:30 p. m. In his chair Sam Beard, immaculately clad in a blue business suit with spotless white handkerchief peeping from the breast pocket, fidgeted nervously.

A moment later he stood, with his 12 associates, while the verdict was read slowly—each defendant's name being followed by "guilty" on each of the three counts.

Mr. Sirica called for a vote of each man and each woman on the jury. This was given.

Those who were convicted with Sam Beard last night were Willie Carroll, John J. Sortori, Fred H. Heck, Louis E. Levy, James T. Gallager, George Hutchins, Melville Jacobs, Fred J. Meese, Timothy H. Noel, William G. Smith, Joseph A. O'Callahan and Sidney Kaplan.

After he had been admitted to bail, Beard eluded photographers and fled into the darkness by the front doorway of the courthouse. A gentle drizzle began to fall as he climbed into a powerful roadster, pulled his overcoat collar up around his face and sped away.

Fihelly Closes Arguments.

Mr. Fihelly presented the final argument of the Government. In a slashing denunciation of illegal gambling in the District, and of Sam Beard and his alleged web of gaming intrigue in particular, Mr. Fihelly pleaded with the venire to convict the defendants for the good of society.

"It is not for us to say whether we approve or disapprove a law," thundered Fihelly as Beard, clad in a somber blue suit, blinked and flushed slightly.

"It is for us to destroy racketeering in all its forms. The law must be respected and upheld—and to free Sam Beard or the other defendants in the case would be to encourage professional gamblers and enhance their power."

Fihelly clashed several times with Sirica and his associates.

He bitterly attacked the plea of the defense that the warrant on which Beard and the others were arrested October 5 in the fifth-floor raid of the Mather Building was illegal.

As for the wire-tapping methods by which much of the evidence against Beard and his co-defendants was obtained, Mr. Fihelly saw it as "the only way" in which officers could get their information.

"There was no other way in which these men, sworn to do their duty, could get any evidence at all," said Mr. Fihelly, who also commented on the dice, which the prosecution contended were loaded. He denied the statements of the defense that the black-and-white cubes were numbered merely to show their size.

As court opened yesterday morning Assistant District Attorney Roger Robb delivered the first Government argument. He also defended the wire-tapping which led to the raid.

Accusing the Government of introducing unfair evidence and staging a "grandstand play" in offering to let the case go to the jury without final argument. Sirica opened the final arguments for the defense.

He branded wire-tapping as improper. Sirica said that there was no evidence implicating any one of his clients.

"If there ever was a case where the Police Department brought its dirty linen to the District Attorney's office this is it," said Sirica.

Sirica stated that the "Police Department was in a tough spot" and "had to get Sam Beard."

McInerney also claimed improper evidence and a lack of proof that the defendants he represented had been on the fifth floor of the Mather Building at the time of the raid.

Before Fihelly completed the Government's argument Mr. Donoghue also attacked the nature of the evidence and the methods by which it was obtained.

Data on Planes Show U. S. Fifth Among Nations

France, Russia Have Biggest Fleets; British Empire Bidding for Rule.

experienced officers of the Air Corps admitted that the Army air forces should have at all times at least 2,320 planes, the greatest number being combat types, including armed observation machines.

Only 1,500 Serviceable.

"Actually, the Air Corps and reserves had on hand less than 1,500 serviceable planes, of which approximately 1,200 might be termed combat machines, not actually obsolete. * * *

"The Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, charged with maintaining land-based naval aircraft as well as the fleet, had on hand at the end of 1934 approximately 860 combat planes, some 260 of them obsolete, leaving about 500 combat types fit for active service, for serious training or an emergency.

"The Navy requirements were to be about 1,910 planes of all types at the end of five years, after making allowances for annual replacements."

The report emphasizes that the 2,060 combat planes now in service are partly obsolete, about 1,600 being modern enough for an emergency, or "less than half the combined strength necessary to place the United States on anything like an equal footing with the other air powers, in view of American areas to be protected."

The chamber's findings show that Britain, although with fewer planes than either Russia or France, with her 2,800 planes is actually "the strongest power in the air."

Britain to Rule Air.

"Regardless of what others have in numerical strength," the report says, "Great Britain is rapidly realizing her ambition, an objective determined upon in 1915, to be mistress of the air as well as mistress of the seas . . . The British insist that the air warfare of the last conflict was child's play compared to what it must be in any war of the future; and they are irrevocably committed to a program of aerial preparedness . . . Britain plans to spend about $55,000,000 for new aircraft equipment during 1935."

France, alarmed by German's air-strength program, is hurrying forward an aerial program of her own, planning to junk hundreds of planes this year, replacing them with swift, modern fighting craft. The report says the aim of European air experts is great ships capable of darting across the skies at 300 miles an hour, 3 miles up, carrying 50 fighting men or their equivalent in bombs.

Reich Has Nucleus.

The report is less fearful of Germany as an air force as yet, but admits that "Germany has the nucleus of an air force."

"Within the space of two years of the most intensive effort," the report adds, "Germany, with 17 airplane factories and nine engine plants, has succeeded in turning out some 600 military airplanes. With the exception of several experimental types . . . none of the German planes has been developed to a state of speed and performance which would warrant matching strength with either the French or Polish equipment * * *

"The German program contemplates an expenditure of $83,000,000 for air defense in 1935. That is nearly four times the 1934 expenditure.

Emphasis on the strides in aviation being made by Italy and Russia is carried in the chamber's report, while Japan, far from the European scene, nevertheless is keeping a watchful eye on Soviet Russia and spending millions for mare war planes for both her army and navy.

Illinois House Delays Action In Relief Crisis

Starvation Casts Shadow Over State as Funds Are Held Up.

delegation, announced at Washington that his group would appeal to FERA Administrator Hopkins tomorrow for sufficient money to tide the State over until the Legislature acts.

Gov. Horner asserted at Springfield he was "very hopeful" the House of Representatives would raise the requisite amount by boosting the sales tax from 2 to 3 per cent tomorrow. It was rumored the Republican opposition would offer a compromise as a means of breaking the deadlock and revitalizing the impoverished relief commission.

A survey revealed a wide range of conditions and mingled hope and despair. The commission's Chicago offices were thronged with persons seeking sustenence.

"I walked and hitch-hiked 13 miles in a cold drizzle," one of them said. "My wife and two children haven't a thing to eat. I should have received a work relief check for labor performed April 12. I know my trip here won't do any good, but I've got to try everything I can."

Other Statements.

"I just picked up my last week's work relief check," a Rockford client stated. "We can make it stretch ten days."

"My brother has a job," a Winnebago County resident said. "He'll help for us for a while."

"The weather is opening up," another opined. "I hope I can get a part-time job. I've got my own garden."

The IERC estimated nine-tenths of the counties had exhausted commission-supplied funds, but many were furnishing emergency aid to the most dire cases.

Cook County administrator, Leo Lyons, declared none of Chicago's 600,000 needy would go hungry for another week. The county board's $1,200,000,000 advance was spent, but a seven-day supply of food was on hand. The board will consider providing $3,500,000 additional at a special session Thursday.

At Auburn several hundred members of the Illinois Workers Alliance voted to march to Springfield tomorrow to petition the Legislature to reopen the relief stations with surplus treasury funds. Guards were on duty, with reinforcements available, at the Statehouse and executive mansion—picketed Saturday by the unemployed.

"Relief must be restored," warned Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the commission, "or Illinois will face unimaginable chaos. There are 312,000 families moving closer to the hunger line. Health and well-being are in jeopardy."

9,000 Register To Vote, Paying Arlington Tax

6,000 Ballots Expected in Democratic Primary in August.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With poll tax books closed, Arlington County today awaits an exciting battle over offices to be filled in the November election.

Reports from County Treasurer Charles T. Jesse show that the number of persons who paid poll taxes and, therefore, are eligible to vote is in excess of 9,000. Political observers predict that between 5,500 and 6,000 of these will go into the Democratic primary in August.

This will be the first time in more than 30 years that the voters of Arlington County have had a primary and a battle royal is expected.

Board Race Exciting.

Those who have announced as candidates for the county board, subject to the Democratic primary, are: Leo Lloyd, Clarendon; George M. Yeatman, Ashton Heights; James Buchanan, Rosslyn; Thomas R. Mechen, Clarendon, and William E. A. McShea, Fort Myer Heights. J. G. Pepper, Barcroft, has announced as an independent candidate.

Next to the scramble for offices on the county board, the fight for the post of Commonwealth attorney promises to arouse most interest. Laurence W. Douglas, present Commonwealth attorney, is a candidate for reelection. Two ohters, Emery N. Hosmer, Arlington, and John Paul Jones, Lyon Village, have announced they will enter the Democratic primary.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields, who has behind him 37 years of continuous police service from constable to United States deputy marshal, has announced his candidacy for reelection, subject to the Democratic primary.

Four for County Clerk.

Those seeking the office of county clerk, which is good for a term of eight years, are John A. Petty, incumbent, of Country Club Hills, and Joseph L. May, Cherrydale, both running as independents, and Ralph E. Remington, Arlington Ridge, and Lyman M. Kelley, Clarendon, both Democrats.

There is but one avowed candidate thus far for county treasurer—Harry A. Fellows, member of the county board from East Falls Church. He is a Democrat. The incumbent, Jesse, has not yet revealed his plans, but it is known he will seek reelection.

Hugh Reid, Cherrydale, former member of the General Assembly of Virginia, has announced he will run in the Democratic primary for the State Senate. He will be opposed by the incumbent, John W. Rust, Fairfax.

William E. Medley, Clarendon, is seeking reelection as county delegate to the General Assembly. He is a Democrat.

One Democratic candidate is in the field for county judge, Walter U. Varney, Clarendon. Judge B. M. Hedrick, the incumbent, a Republican, is being considered by the county G. O. P. for re-election.

Those who plan to enter the Democratic primary August 6 will be requested to file a notice of intention with the county Democratic executive committee on or before June 6.

It is expected the Republican party will hold its convention soon after the Democratic primary. At this conclave a plan of battle will be adopted.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department will meet tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Lucie Kale, 27 Lorton avenue, Clarendon.

Ballston Council No. 20, Daughters of America, will hold a benefit bingo party tonight following a short business meeting in the auditorium of Firemen's Hall.

Dr. L. W. Chaney Is Dead at 78; Noted Biologist

Carnegie Science Pensioner Celebrated Also for Glacial Research.

Dr. Lucian W. Chaney, biologist and statistician, died yesterday at his home at 3350 Eighteenth street northwest at the age of 78.

Dr. Chaney for 25 years was a teacher and professor of biology at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn. After achieving a national reputation in biological research, he was retired under Carnegie Foundation pension. He then joined the staff of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and again became nationally known in the field of industrial accident prevention.

In addition to these two fields, Dr. Chaney made a hobby of studying glaciers. After studying the character of the streams having their source in the then unexplored Glacier National Park area, he deduced the presence of glaciers in the park. For his work in this field, the Chaney Glacier was named.

Dr. Chaney initiated his labor statistics work in 1908 as a special investigator into working conditions of women and children in foreign steel mills. Shortly afterward he joined the permanent staff and continued the Federal work until he retired in 1931, five years after the normal retirement age.

Dr. Chaney is given credit for practically eliminating "break-outs" in blast-furnace operation, a type of accident formerly frequent, and often taking a large toll of life. For this type of work he had been recognized by the National Safety Council and the American Standards Association.

In 1882 Dr. Chaney married Mary Hill, of Red Wing, Minn. They celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary here recently.

Dr. Chaney is survived by his widow, three sons, and a daughter. Of his sons, Dr. Newcomb K. Chaney is a research chemist in Philadelphia; Dr. Ralph H. Chaney is a surgeon and consultant of the medical school of the University of Georgia, and Edwin H. Chaney is a Cleveland (Ohio) attorney. The daughter is Mrs. Gertrude Pye, a representative of the board of foreign missions at Shansi, North China, now on furlough in Oberlin, Ohio.

Young Meador, whose marriage to the rail fortune heiress was blasted when she failed to come home after attending her father's funeral in New York several months ago, will stick with his job as a bank clerk.

He put it this way:

"I will continue to pursue my duties with pleasure and enthusiasm."

Pilgrimage Set Saturday To Historic Alexandria Homes

Hundreds Expected to Join Tour Sponsored by St. Paul's Church.

A tour of historic homes in Alexandria, Va.—some of which knew the tread of George Washington—is being sponsored by St. Paul's Episcopal Church and hundreds of persons, most of them from out of town, are expected to join in it.

The tour, an annual event in the ancient Virginia city, will start Saturday at 10 a. m. and last until about 5 p. m.

The homes to be visited are:

No. 429 North Washington street. This delightful old house was built late in the eighteenth century by Richard Fendall, an outstanding attorney of his day. Here a group of sorrowing citizens met the night George Washington died to make plans for Alexandria's part in the funeral. It is now occupied by Col. and Mrs. D. H. Torrey.

Antiques in Place for Ages.

No. 711 Princess street. Now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Lloyd Boothe, it has been in the possession of the Booth family for nearly 100 years. Many of the antiques have been in place for three generations.

The Douglas house on Cameron street, occupied by the same family for five generations, abounds with articles of interest to those interested in Americana.

No. 211 South Washington street. A "flounder house" with a double gallery reminiscent of Charleston, S. C., this home was built about 1760 by William Hartshorne, who moved to Alexandria after making a fortune in Philadelphia. Hartshorne helped finance a ship to go to aid of hard-pressed Americans at the time of the Boston "Tea Party." The house is now occupied by Mrs. Herbert Snowden.

No. 601 Duke street. Now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Horner, this "town house" was built between 1775 and 1790 of slave-made brick and hand-wrought nails. Benjamin Dulaney, its original owner, had a country estate on Shooters Hill, now crowned by the National Masonic Memorial. From the front steps of the town house, Gen. Lafayette made an impassioned speech in 1824.

House Recently Restored.

The Weller home on lower Prince street. This house, recently restored by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph I. Weller, is in a neighborhood which boasts of streets the cobblestones of which were laid by Hessian hirelings.

A group of houses now known as Potomac Courts, following their restoration by Mrs. Charles R. Hoof and Mrs. H. P. Starrett. Originally the houses constituted "Stage Coach Court," as it was here the stage coaches stopped when bringing passengers to old Lamb's Tavern, a rendezvous for pioneer Masons in this country.

The houses facing Wolfe street, now fully restored, are occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Byrd and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson. When Alexandria was young, these tenement houses belonged to George Washington.

Facing the river are two houses, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Miller, which represent Alexandria as it was before larger and more handsome homes were built [illegible]

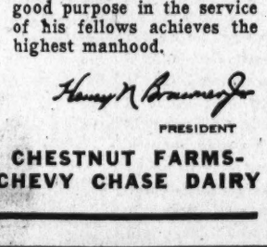
The Dignity of Serving



There is a vast and important difference between service and servility.

"Tradesman's Entrance" signifies no class distinction to a self-respecting milkman.

He sees the community's back doors as the receptive portals through which his valuable merchandise enters thousands of expectant homes.

He makes it his business to take the shortest route to the family refrigerator.

And as surely as day follows night, milk arrives on appointed doorsteps.

No miracle, of course.

And no mere happen-so.

Milk gets where and when it is wanted because the milkman puts his heart into keeping faith with the unseen consumer.

And because he believes that the true test of a service is the spirit in which it is given, and not the praise with which the world acclaims it.

A worth while job well done provides its own accent of honor.

In a very real sense the man who occupies himself to good purpose in the service of his fellows achieves the highest manhood.

Bronson M. Cutting.

Because he was only fairly started in his public career, there is intensification of the sense of loss involved in the tragic death of Senator Bronson M. Cutting, of New Mexico. Young in years as Senators go, and only beginning his second term, Mr. Cutting already had established a statesmanlike record the more enviable because it promised so much for the future. And the unanimity of the tributes accorded by his colleagues is only representative of the esteem in which the Nation held him.

Born with an inheritance which gave financial security, Senator Cutting devoted himself to public service with a combination of conscientious zeal, ability and personal charm which made him one of the most valuable and effective members of the Senate. To him the Senate was not a rich man's club, but a means of fulfilling his high sense of duty to his fellow men. He won a notable battle against customs' censorship of books early in his Senate career and from that time on was an active member of the liberal bloc. This was natural, for even before the war Mr. Cutting had been as progressive in politics as he was aristocratic in tradition.

In 1932, though a Republican, he supported President Roosevelt and could have been Secretary of the Interior. However, by advocating the bonus he incurred the displeasure of the White House and was among the few liberals opposed for reelection by the Administration. Later he returned to favor when he supported the Administration in the World Court battle.

Throughout his career Senator Cutting retained his personal independence, growing steadily in the esteem of his senatorial associates. It was with great and obvious reluctance that they yielded to Democratic Party pressure in the contest over his reelection last year. The Senate committee already has dismissed all charges of improper use of money and the case has grown weaker as the investigation has continued. To the feeling of irreparable loss among his colleagues is added keen regrets that Senator Cutting was struck down before he could see the complete discrediting of the contest which those familiar with the case have confidently expected.

Statistics Don't Tell All.

"The farmer takes a wife" has now become the theme song of Germany. The Reich is going in for wholesale matchmaking and its Estate of Nutrition asks that 330,000 young women answer the mating call of that many bachelor farmers. The beneficiaries, if they may be called that, of this back-to-the-soil movement will be judged on their ability to sow as well as to sew. The only other requisite seems to be a matter of age, with plenty of leeway granted in a sliding scale of years from 16 to 33. "No others need apply."

The fact that there are only 862 women to every 1,000 men on farm lands in Germany is said to be due to women having deserted the country because of a shortage of dwellings. The trouble with statistics and dictators is that they take too much for granted. Because there are 8,000,000 unmarried women living in German cities, the government concludes that it must be because of their inability to meet the eligible "healthy, virile, hereditary" farmers.

Before this wholesale advice-to-the-lovelorn decree goes into effect, it might be wise for Nazi leaders to investigate a little further. The old proverb that "kissing goes by favor" should apply to farming also. Maybe the reason those women moved to the city was because they already knew the German farmer.

Canada Gets The Credit.

Representative Plumley, of Vermont, seeks to dispose of the recent international flurry centering around the proposal to establish a military air base near the Canadian border by referring to it as "much ado about nothing." Happily that is proving to be the case. But the credit for the rapid dissipation of this incident must go in part to President Roosevelt for his prompt repudiation of the offensive testimony, and in part to Canada for refusing to take the affair seriously.

Reports from Ottawa reveal that though the Canadian government took the routine action of making inquiry through its Washington legation, officials from the first refused to get excited. Even before President Roosevelt had reprimanded the House committee for its indiscretions, the Montreal Star said, "Some bits of the latest 'secret' are hilarious. There is, for example, that hardy perennial, the West Indian bogey. This is a reliable old war horse of a money raiser which has won many an appropriation in the past." Toronto editors described the incident as "foolish publicity" and concluded that "nothing more emphatically emphasizes the happy relations between this country and our neighbors to the south than the lack of concern aroused by the report."

So, thanks largely to the placid disposition of our Canadian neighbors, an unsavory episode passes without unpleasant repercussions. But for that outcome no praise is coming to the House Committee on Military Affairs, of which Mr. Plumley is a member. If the Canadians were less magnanimous, and less inclined to be tolerant where our aberrations are concerned, this blunder might have aroused a very different reaction across the border.

Peekonomics.

In a formal report to the President, George N. Peek, his special foreign trade adviser, has recommended a review of all national policies based in whole or in part upon our status as a creditor nation.

This is a very large and vague order, but it is evident from an examination of the data submitted and from oral explanations, that Mr. Peek is again challenging the methods adopted by the State Department in negotiating trade agreements. He believes in bilateral pacts and is opposed to the unconditional most-favored nation policy which is now being followed, with a view to expanding the market for imports as well as exports.

Mr. Peek states that "until service is resumed on the war debts in default, the often stated necessity for our purchasing from abroad additional goods, gold, silver or services, in order to create sufficient dollar exchange to permit the transfer of funds for this debt service, is not apparent." No doubt when the war debts are written down or written off, and when adjustments (presumably reductions) have been made in the estimated value of American direct investments abroad, the creditor status of the United States will be sharply deflated. As a result, the ability of other countries to meet their current obligations and buy our goods will be strengthened.

However, it would be extremely unusual, to use no stronger term, for the Administration to proceed upon the assumption that debt charges can be ignored until Congress has given a mandate to that effect. Furthermore, Mr. Peek is citing incomplete and admittedly unsatisfactory data to try to prove that during the past year a large amount of dollar exchange was held by foreigners who might have used it to meet current obligations.

In support of this contention, he quotes Department of Commerce estimates indicating that during 1934 foreigners bought capital assets owned by us to the amount of $970,000,000. The implied conclusion is that there is something very wrong about a foreign trade policy that permits balances of this sort to accumulate here while debtor countries withhold sums due our citizens. If Mr. Peek had his way he would negotiate trade agreements of a mutually exclusive sort which would make concessions on our part contingent upon release of these balances to Americans in payment of debts or purchases of goods.

It so happens that Mr. Peek's estimates are open to challenge, as well as his conclusions from those estimates. In the first place, the net capital inflow of $970,000,000 includes an item of $549,000,000, which the Department of Commerce frankly admits its inability to analyze. It is not known how much of this total represents foreign funds used to purchase American securities and how much is attributable to an abnormally heavy inflow of repatriated American capital following devaluation of the dollar.

Even admitting that last year foreigners made heavy purchases of our securities, there is no valid reason for concluding that the capital inflow could have been forced into trade channels or corralled to meet debt payments. To imagine that erratic movements of capital funds, largely resulting from the disordered state of world currencies, justify permanent reliance upon a policy of bilateral bargaining, is to confuse the ephemeral with the underlying economic verities. In the long run, of course, international accounts must balance, but it is not necessary or desirable to effect a balance with every individual country with which we do business. Indeed, it is impossible to do so, unless trade is to be not only "channelized" but severely limited in volume.

Unquestionably, it would be helpful to have more light thrown on obscure items in the present international balance of payments, since Mr. Peek's analyses reveal the deficiencies of existing data. Such information, properly interpreted, would enable our exporters and investors to appraise the risks of selling and lending abroad. It would not, however, invalidate a theory based upon the economic truism that one must buy in order to sell.

Terrapins In Scholarship.

It is a serious business when a departmental chairman of a university announces that a "growing deterioration" of the institution forces him to proffer his resignation. When similar critical words have been heard from former faculty members and when the student body joins in with a sympathetic chorus, it is safe to assume that something more than mere personal pique lies at the heart of the matter. With just such conditions prevailing at College Park, at last an inquiry is under way to review the educational standards of the University of Maryland.

So long as Dr. Woods held its presidency, the consensus of the State of Maryland and outside observers alike was that the university held an enviable ranking among the country's institutions of higher learning. Of recent years, following his resignation in 1926, a gathering cloud of criticism has appeared over College Park and the university's position has lowered appreciably. A definite trend away from the strictly academic and toward the more flamboyant aspects of university endeavor have been increasingly detected. Scholarship has suffered as the more decorative phases of undergraduate life have been emphasized. Scholastic qualifications of faculty members have been placed at a discount and young student assistants have succeeded to positions normally held by experienced teachers.

It was said of the venerable Mark Hopkins, one time president of Williams College, that if he should sit at one end of a log and talk to a student at the other, there would be the essentials of a university. Not the log but the teacher and student were the important factors. At the University of Maryland, too, little attention has been paid these factors and too much to the log. A snappy R. O. T. C., triple-threat full backs and elaborate landscaping have superseded considerations of classroom and laboratory. The sooner the Board of Regents can state the aims of the university in language which has educational validity, the better for the pride and progress of the State of Maryland.

An Opportune Decision.

By a 5-to-4 vote the Supreme Court has affirmed the decision that the railway retirement act is unconstitutional. There is room for great differences of opinion concerning the right of Congress to impose a compulsory system of old-age insurance upon the railroads under the commerce clause. That is evident from the fact that Chief Justice Hughes dissented strongly and Justices Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo concurred in the minority opinion.

It is certain, however, that the railroads of the country are not at present in a position to meet the heavy costs, estimated currently at $60,000,000 per annum, which the pension act would have imposed upon them. Their serious financial plight is convincingly demonstrated by the reports of earnings for the first quarter of the year. With gross operating revenues at virtually the same level as a year ago, an interim rise in operating expenses has occured due to higher prices for supplies and increases in wages. As a result, net operating returns have dropped to 1.69 per cent of the capital investment.

Under these conditions, the attempt to single out the carriers and make them responsible for contributions to a compulsory old-age pension plan, in advance of passage of general laws applicable to other employers, seems especially indefensible. Furthermore, the arbitrary extension of the proposed benefits to men no longer in the service of the roads bears eloquent testimony to the pressure that has been exerted by organized labor to secure benefits that a majority of the court characterize as "arbitrary in the last degree."

The decision will be read with especial interest by those who are speculating as to the outcome of the proposed social security law, establishing, among other developments, a nation-wide system of old-age pensions. The sweeping character of the majority opinion certainly indicates that this legislation, not to mention NRA extension, will have to be carefully drawn to pass the tests of constitutionality.

The railway retirement act was admittedly a crude piece of drafting that called for radical revision in the interest of reason and justice, irrespective of its constitutional irregularities. Perhaps Congress will now take more care to avoid the obvious pitfalls resulting from careless law making.

Regarding The Senators.

On this page recently we printed without comment a communication protesting against the policy of our sports department. The critic is "a trifle exasperated" with our "small-town devotion to all athletic competitors representing Washington or its institutions." In particular he refers to our attitude toward the local baseball team. There are "many thousands of immigrants" (himself included, presumably) who have come to the city from the hinterlands and who are by no means supporters of the Senators, he writes. He wants more ballyhoo for other teams and less of the local aspirants.

There is a temptation to retort with the somewhat inelegant advice so dear to the lips of all national defenders: If you don't like the way this country is run, go on back to where you came from. But this would be an admission of error. And there is no error.

Our worthy correspondent must know that he thrusts close to the hearts of his new neighbors in so writing. For Washington, orphan-city of America, prizes highly the few meager privileges allowed it as a community. Chief among these is the right to cheer—come hell or high water—its own baseball club. We have no local government. We have no opportunity to shout for, or at, District representatives in Congress. So far as symbols of community spirit are concerned, we don't have much of anything—except the Senators. Washington clings to its baseball team much as an asylum waif will cling to a sawdust doll. It is the best baseball team ever seen. If perchance it falters, there is always an adequate explanation. When it triumphs, it triumphs gloriously. We venture to predict that even our correspondent, if he remains in the Capital City for any length of time, will be throwing his hat into the air when the Senators win.

It might be well to bear in mind that while "billion" and "million" are similar in sound, their ratio is the same as that of a ten-dollar bill and a one-cent piece.

"Is there possibly anything else the Administration could do for the unemployed?" asks a Government official. Yes—it could issue a good recipe for wolf soup.

The things we do tomorrow help us to live through today.

During the temporary absence of Mr. Elderman, The Post's cartoonist, a symposium of editorial reaction to current national and foreign affairs will be published from day to day in this space. The reprinted drawings will not necessarily represent our own viewpoint, but are selected as reflections of considered opinions on the passing scene. The ediotrs of The Post wish to make full acknowledgment of the courtesy of their contemporaries in granting permission for this procedure.

Letters To The Editor

The Articles Continue.

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: A discussion among my friends has encouraged me to write this letter to you, since I do not seem to be alone in the opinion that I express. The correspondence which you have been printing on the page next to the editorial page has been the salt and savor of The Post, next to some of the editorials themselves, and I am writing to express the hope that their absence for the past few days has merely been accidental.

I am willing to admit that my resentment is partly based on the fact that I consider Mr. Bargeron's mumblings devoid of either sense or humor, and I resent the fact that the space once devoted to the best features of the paper is now given over to his paragraphs, which reveal a startling lack of background in public affairs as well as a total absence of literary style.

"Christian Justice."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can think of nothing more horrible, inhuman, and unnatural, than the cold-blooded murder of William DeBoe. And I believe they call this "Christian justice." Why can't we be more modern with the criminals? Are they not human, although having erred?

Mary McElroy is now pleading with the Governor to save the life of her kidnaper, Walter McGee, saying he is a good man at heart, and did her no harm. She is begging for his life instead of a death penalty.

God does not ask for the life of a sinner, but had rather that he be allowed to repent. Has capital punishment helped society? I think this question has been answered long ago by the best criminal lawyers that it does not, and very recently by Clarence Darrow. The theory that penalty prevents crime is absolutely wrong.

This seems to be the banner year for taking lives.

If people refused to take the lives of their fellowmen, then the issue between the nations would be settled, in a peaceable way.

Seeks Holmes' Letters.

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: The late Mr. Justice Holmes has entrusted to Professor Felix Frankfurter, of the Harvard Law School, and to me the task of arranging for authoritative publications concerning his life and work, and by his will he appointed me executor and left to me the use and disposal of his letters, papers and memoranda, including his rights in letters written by him. Professor Frankfurter and I shall be grateful if any who possess letters of his which may be fitly made available for publication would communicate with me or send to me such letters as they are willing to allow us to examine. All such material will be copied and the originals returned to those who are kind enough to entrust them to me. JOHN G. PALFREY,

The Christian Response.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am pleased to note in The Post of May 4 that a day of prayer has been set aside for the relief of Catholics in Mexico. I hope this may lighten the burden there and the apparent turmoil here. I have read many of the letters from my fellow churchmen, and have a feeling that these letters were not animated by Christian motives. The Christian response to oppression, as I recall it, is, "Forgive them, Father, for they know not what they do."

O ye of little faith! Throughout the world we have millions of Catholics and other Christians praying daily to the Great Father, "Thy will be done," and yet we seem to assume that our prayer is not answered. Or is it that man, in his human conceit, thinks he should not only understand but be in agreement with the will of the Heavenly Father?

There may be some excuse for the American people complaining when they do not understand the motives of our President, trying to rule the United States. But isn't it going a little too far to expect to comprehend the ways of the Ruler of the Universe in His administration of world affairs?

Chain Letter Racket.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There are many in the country, including myself, who would like to know why our Postmaster General does not act to shut off the dime chain letter racket in the same manner in which he has gone after the Irish Sweepstake tickets coming through our mails.

The procedure in this case of the chain letter racket has only added another laugh to the manner in which the Administration handles matters.

Re-Enactment Of Chancellorsville.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There must be many of your readers who wish to thank you for your editorial on Friday entitled "Blood and Apple Blossoms." It was a horrible (I use the word advisedly) thing to reproduce as a spectacle the battle of Chancellorsville when 30,000 were killed or wounded, then finish up with a dance.

Why must we be reminded of those long-past terrible days? Why seek to revive memories which both the North and South would forget? Are we to have those heart-breaking scenes continually revived in pageantry, picture and press, as the several anniversaries of the battles occur? Must we, in these days when we are hoping and praying for peace, have the war spirit stirred up and rekindled?

We earnestly hope that some way will be found to prevent any repetition of such reproductions. May this one be the last ever staged in the United States. Let the whole Nation rise up in protest against this effort to stir up the old war spirit. We hope the press of the country will follow the example of The Post and condemn these war spectacles.

Thank you for your editorial.

CORNELIA B. SMITH.

Washington, May 4.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Can you or any other sensible person imagine anything more futile or stupid than the re-enactment of a battle—especially in these times when all over the Western World the concept of war is being opposed by all thinking people? The minds of those who conceived the idea of the May 2 "battle" at Fredericksburg, Va., are unquestionably narrow and limited in scope.

With the admirable Jane Addams here to attend the twentieth anniversary of that noble meeting at The Hague and with one's mind filled with all the hopeful thoughts such a meeting inspires one's intellect and emotions shrink from the thought of the absurd spectacle that took place yesterday at Fredericksburg. As though there were not already enough rumors of real war in the present-day world!

Let the history books describe past battles if they must—but let a supposedly enlightened people refrain from resurrecting them. Is it possible that the people who attended the "battle" yesterday as spectators are really as uncivilized and stupid as their presence would indicate? Better off and far more intelligent, as your editorial of May 3 suggests, were those lovers of beauty and peace who attended the apple blossom festival at Winchester.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to commend you for your recent editorial "Blood and Apple Blossoms." Yes, sir, the ways of peace are indeed strange.

Chiseling Chickens Must Go!

And now chiseling chickens have become the targets of New Deal regimenters. Undersized eggs, the hens of the country are warned in an AAA pronunciamento, are banned from now on, and every dozen eggs must weigh 23 ounces, or 1 11-12 ounce per egg.

Any hen that falls down on the job and lays a below-standard product is consigned to the stew pot in the interest of egg eugenics. The size of eggs, holds the AAA, is a matter of heredity, and elimination of the disqualified hens by the stew pot route should quickly insure Government specifications for all the eggs on the Nation's breakfast tables.

The egg yardstick might be applied farther—and determine just how many quarts of milk a cow must produce, how many pigs there must be in a litter, how many sides of bacon in a hog.

The Post Impressionist

Regimental H. Q. Roster.

Postoffice, Tuesday.

IF we were to compose a catechism on Kentucky Colonels, it would start, as all good catechisms do, with fundamentals. It would start thus:

Q—What is a normal Kentucky Colonel?

A—A normal Kentucky Colonel is 42 years old, weighs 158 lbs. and has something less than two children and something more than one.

Anyhow, that answer is based on responses to a careful questionnaire circulated throughout the Honorable Order of Kentucky Colonels by its commanding officer, General-Colonel John W. Alicoate, and made public the other night at the Order's Second Annual Dinner in Louisville itself.

"Made public," we say. "Made to be made public" were better. The Colonels met on the occasion of the Kentucky Derby. The country's news-editors evinced a deplorable lack of any sense except horse-sense, and, in their columns, the racing event crowded military prowess almost off the track.

So here—for isn't The Post's belligerent cartoonist, Gene Elderman, a Kentucky Colonel?—the Post-Impressionest provides a resume of what that questionnaire revealed concerning the Military Order which, if not precisely founded by His Excellency Ruby Laffoon, Governor of the Blue Grass, has at least by him been extended to national dimensions.

Number One Surprise: The questionnaire demonstrates that more than half the Colonels have had military experience. How many of the staffs of most Governors can demonstrate as much? Indeed, a majority of Gov. Laffoon's stalwart Colonels have really smelled powder on actual battlefields. A goodly 62 per cent have served their country in a warlike capacity.

Again, you may not be suprised to learn what is the Colonels' preferred beverage. Loyalty, in this organization where loyalty is a cardinal requisite, might alone incline many towards the mint-julep, though from such preference even the Post-Impressionist—who has never risen above the grade of major, and that, alas, in another army—would never dissent. But can you receive the following statement without a quiver?

"Mere water stands seventh on the list, whereas, Colonel Gus Edwards of New York admits that soup in his favorite drink."

Yet these personages hail from all parts of the land. They represent accomplishment in about as many fields as do the names in "Who's Who"—to which, on the whole, the Colonels' names are not strangers. Their eldest member is Colonel David Guest, 82, of New Jersey—their youngest, Colonel Eileen Alicoate, of New York, 5.

The opinions of such a galaxy are worthy of consideration.

The Order reverts to tradition when it unfolds its napkin: fried chicken leads the menu, steak running for place. The hobbies start with gardens, end by collecting seashells, but the noble art of whittling stands high.

Moreover, the literary tastes are catholic. If Kentucky's Irvin Cobb had to be given the lead—as why shouldn't he be? — Shakespeare treads close upon his heels, with Dickens, Mark Twain and Dumas in a field that includes E. Phillips Oppenheim, S. S. Van Dine, Peter B. Kyne, Clarence Buddington Kelland—and Zane Grey. Will Rogers was elected the Colonels' favorite screen star, but of course Mae West was not forgotten, nor were Arliss, Wallace Beery, Myrna Loy, Claudette Colbert and Shirley Temple.

Is it any wonder that 95 per cent of the Colonels registered themselves as optimists? Or that only 4 per cent are "not in favor of"—not with—"women?"

* * *

These soldiers do well to rank the Golden Rule as a recipe for happiness. The Post-Impressionist disagrees with them, however, on certain remaining points: there are some sad signs of deterioration in their attitude toward the important matters of both indoor and outdoor sports.

Is horse racing, more solito, the open-air diversion best loved by the modern Colonels of the Thoroughbred State? The answer is "Golf."

Isn't poker—the game of John Breckenridge, of James Garrard, of G. W. Johnson and Henry Clay—isn't poker the entertainment of their evenings at the club? The answer—"tears such as angels weep"! is "Bridge."

This, O Kentucky, will never do! To the question of what the Nation most needs, a number replied 'More Kentucky Colonels.'" What the otherwise Honorable Order of Kentucky Colonels needs is more Kentucky Colonels true to the traditions of the turf and obedient to the immemorial laws of the jackpot.

Therefore, the Post-Impressionist nominates himself for membership.

Jimmie, the Dairyman

ALTHOUGH the story of Jimmie Roosevelt's taking over the management of the family's dairy farm and forest preserve up at Hyde Park is couched in a lot of words about the President's wanting some charts and graphs on how they are getting along, it is one of the most significant announcements to come from the White House in many a day. What they are really trying to do, of course, is to get Jimmie away from the insurance business.

The announcement says he will hold onto his business, but he is not to be active in it; at least, not as much as heretofore. And it would not be surprising if he withdrew altogether before long.

A political storm is brewing about Jimmie up in Massachusetts. He has been the subject of an intense whispering campaign since a few months after his father took over the Presidency. Now, however, the Republicans are preparing to bring it all into the open.

• • • •

The nub of it all is that Jimmie is in the insurance business and has had control of Massachusetts patronage. Manifestly his position as patronage dispenser has not hurt his insurance business.

The tie-up is an old story, of course. There are political bosses all over the country in the insurance business or in some business which their political influence helps. And the reason they are active in politics is because of the bearing it has on their business. Politics is supposed to pay. There are darned few men in it for the simple love of the game. But Jimmie is the President's son and his mixing of insurance and patronage was naturally the subject of criticism. The politicians, of course, resented it as a case of hoggishness. So much criticism has been aroused that Massachussetts patronage has been in a stalemate for several months.

• • • •

The significant thing now is that the White House seems to be becoming sensitive to the criticism. It has not been sensitive to this sort of criticism before or if it was it disguised it very well, indeed.

In fact, the politicians have frequently been baffled by Mr. Roosevelt's apparent insensitiveness to matters of this kind which in the past would have made political sensations of the first water.

There is, for example, the case of Elliot. He is the "representative" here for the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. As the term is broadly defined it is strictly a lobbying or contact job, of course. Furthermore, Elliot was given the job when the aviation companies were on the run before the Administration. The air mail contracts had just been canceled. There is no question that his appointment was intended as a friendly gesture. It doesn't follow that it did any good. That isn't the point. He was given the job because he was the President's son.

• • • •

In Mr. Hoover's administration his son Herbert got a job with an aviation outfit in the pursuance of his career as a radio mechanician. It was what he had trained for and his salary was about $300 a month. Elliot gets $12,000 a year. Immediately young Hoover's employment was made public criticism arose and Mr. Hoover hit the ceiling and made his son resign.

Mr. Roosevelt's attitude, however, has apparently been that the people were too "big" to be concerned about such matters as these, to which political importance has heretofore been attached. We are having real problems these days and presumably it was his attitude that all the people demanded of him was that he solve these. Certainly the matter of Jimmie's selling insurance and handling patronage and of Elliot's being contact man for the aviation interests don't stack very big with $4,000,000,000 works programs and the business of getting out of the depression.

Big problems had come to make us a bigger and broader-minded people, according to the theory. With security programs, dollar devaluation, NRA and AAA we had grown up.

The question arises, though, why the apparent change of attitude. Is it possible that after two years the Administration is coming to realize we are the same old people, that we haven't broadened at all?

Magistrate Gets Commission.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chestertown, Md., May 6.—John T. Vickers, former Republican sheriff of Kent County, has received a commission from Gov. Harry W. Nice as police magistrate here to succeed Thomas F. Healy, Democrat. It was announced that Mr. Healy tried 301 criminal cases without an appeal during his term of office.

U. S. Foreign Policy Blunders Result of Historic Aloofness

Indiscretions of Army and Silver Purchases Are Examples.

Provincial Constituencies Allow Congress Only Limited Views.

By Lothrop Stoddard.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

THE recent publication of statements by certain high officers before the Military Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives has caused quite a flurry in many circles. The flurry itself was fully justified, but some of the comment was beside the point. To inveigh against "war-minded" generals and admirals, as many editors and certain irate Congressmen have done, is to risk injustice to them.

Staff officers must be "war-minded" in the sense that it is their bounden duty to consider all military and naval situations which might conceivably arise, and draft plans accordingly. That is their business. It is equally the business and duty of the legislative committees charged with framing bills for the national defense to call in those staff experts for advice and counsel on all pertinent matters. Furthermore, in such discussions, all parties should feel free to speak their minds. Therefore, so far as the remarks themselves are concerned, everything said was perfectly proper.

THE real issue is that the discussion was published. That the minutes of an "executive session" should ever have appeared as part of a public document is a blazing indiscretion which probably could not have happened in any country other than the United States. In England or France, for example, it is inconceivable that highly confidential material of this sort could slip into print. The lowliest proof reader in the Government Printing Office would presumably have recognized that something was wrong and would accordingly have called attention to the matter.

Here in Washington, on the contrary, the initial slip passed unrecognized and unchallenged by any one of the many persons who handled the business. That was because they were not in the least politically minded in foreign affairs. And in this they merely typified the general attitude of the American people, who have scant appreciation of foreign policy and are equally blind to the implications of domestic politics upon our foreign relations. Our combined ignorance of and indifference to the outer world is a continuous handicap which has caused us much damage in the past and may yet involve us in the gravest misfortunes. The cumulative effects simply can not be overestimated.

Blame for this national failing should not be laid at the door of any political party or any one administration. It is chronic and all-pervasive. Just now we have a striking exhibit of it in the way we are handling the silver question. Our present silver policy was determined solely by domestic considerations—chiefly the pressure of certain groups and local interests. From the very beginning it evoked protests from China, and it is likewise causing grave disturbances in India, Mexico and other countries on a silver monetary basis. Yet all this has apparently not weighed a feather with Congress, which seems to be inclined to grow indignant over foreign objections to something deemed strictly "our business."

• • • •

THIS is merely the latest instance of a long series of similar situations. A few years ago the passage of the Hawley-Smoot Tariff bill excited not merely strong diplomatic protests but anti-American demonstrations and ugly riots in many parts of the globe, because abroad, this act was deemed a major aggravation of the great economic depression which was visibly creeping over the world. Perhaps the most flagrant example of our "the-foreigner-be-damned" attitude was our high-handed action on the Panama Canal tolls, in direct contravention of treaty obligations. All this has given us a bad reputation abroad. So temperate a critic as the London Round Table voices what is undoubtedly the prevailing foreign opinion regarding us in this respect when it says: "In the international sense, America is not a good neighbor. . . . The idea that the United States has to take into account the effect of its actions on other nations hardly ever emerges."

The root cause of this ignorance and indifference toward other nations is our historic aloofness from the world at large. With the close of the Napoleonic wars and the establishment of the Monroe Doctrine, Americans no longer felt the need of paying close attention to foreign affairs. As a result, the American public and its political leaders alike ceased to take more than a detached interest in world events. A century of this aloofness formed political habits and bred an attitude of mind not easily changed even when the conditions have rendered them unjustifiable.

FURTHERMORE, needed changes are rendered even more difficult because of our political set-up. The Constitution, with its complicated checks and balances, provides a system of Government which, however suited to domestic needs, accords ill with the requirements for a strong efficient foreign policy. Especially unfortunate is the legal requirement that Senators and Congressmen must be residents of the State which they represent, together with the unwritten law that a Congressman must be a resident of his particular district as well.

These rigid limitations (absent in Europe or in Canada) infuse both our domestic and our foreign policies not merely with sectionalism but with an even narrow parochialism. The individual Congressman actually represents, not the Nation, nor even a State, but his district. He is sent to Washington to look after its special interests. Unless he puts them ahead of everything else, he probably will not be re-elected. And in that case his legislative career is at an end; because it is impracticable for him to run for Congress anywhere else. That particular district has him absolutely in its power. Why, then, should we expect him to do anything which will offend his political masters? And much the same is true of Senators.

The upshot is that our politicians can not formulate a foreign policy with single-mindedness toward the Nation as a whole; they must defer to local interests. The endless cross-purposes and uncertainties arising from this situation must surely be obvious. The effect is to render our foreign policy nebulous and improvised. Consistency and far-sightedness are alike largely nullified in advance.

Equally important is the division of authority over foreign affairs between the executive and legislative branches of our Government. The President (via his Secretary of State) is empowered to conduct diplomatic negotiations and to draft treaties, but the Secrttary's appointment must be confirmed by the Senate, while all treaties require Senatorial ratification by a two-thirds majority.

• • • •

THIS characteristic set of checks and balances has rendered our foreign policy notoriously provisional and uncertain, besides making more bad blood between the two main branches of our Government than any other cause. That has been true from the start. It is amusing to note what happened to our first President. One fine day George Washington dropped over to the Senate in order personally to explain some pending diplomatic negotiations which he deemed of prime importance. So angered was he at the obstructive attitude he encountered that he left in a towering rage, swearing a mighty oath never to do it again. Almost every President has had similarly unpleasant experiences.

As for the State Department, it has often been turned topsy-turvy by some unexpected Senatorial action. At best, the mere mechanics of ratification render treaty making a slow and uncertain process. It was presumably in a mood of exasperation that John Hay, while Secretary of State, compared the Senate to the matador in a bull fight—with the treaty in the unenviable role of bull!

Such are our outstanding defects and handicaps in the field of foreign affairs. Yet, grave though they are, it is hard to see how they may be either quickly or effectively remedied. Under existing circumstances, even the wisest statesmanship must be largely a series of clever improvisations. Only when the American people shall have become sufficiently alive to the importance of foreign policy will the necessary remedies be discovered and applied. And that will probably not occur until we have had a lot of bitter experience—the best teacher, alike, for nations and individuals.

Browning's Birthday

By
Wm. Lyon Phelps

THIS is the birthday of Robert Browning who was born in London May 7, 1812, and died in Venice December 12, 1889.

One of the sensations of the theatrical season during the past winter in New York, was the appearance of the great actress, Elizabeth Bergner in a play called "Escape Me Never." The title was taken from the first two lines of a poem by Browning. Those who remember the play will see how perfectly the poem applies; those who have not seen the play will get something of Browning's indomitable spirit from the lines of the poem.

• • • •

Browning always believed that the gain in any great and noble emotion was not its possible material reward, not the success of the pursuit, but the enlargement and enrichment and strengthening of character that ought to come from possessing the emotion. Not what you get in life, but how you face it

Life in a Love.

Escape Me, Never—Beloved!
While I am I, and you are you,
So long as the world contains us both,
Me the loving and you the loth,
While the one eludes, must the other pursue.
My life is a fault at last, I fear:
It seems too much like a fate, indeed!
Though I do my best I shall scarce succeed.
But what if I fail of my purpose here?
It is but to keep the nerves at strain,
To dry one's eyes and laugh at a fall,
And, baffled, get up and begin again—
So the chace takes up one's life, that's all.

While, look but once from your farthest bound.
At me so deep in dust and dark,
No sooner the old hope goes to ground
Than a new one, straight to the self-same mark.
I shape me—
Ever

• • • •

In his last volume of poems, published the day Browning died, occurs this poem, which is one of a series of Bad Dreams.

Last night I saw you in my sleep:
And how your charm of face was changed!
I asked "Some love, some faith you keep?"
You answered "Faith gone, love estranged."

Whereat I woke,—a twofold bliss:
Waking was one, but next there came
This other: "Though I felt, for this,
My heart break, I loved on the same."

No End of Books

Gertrude Stein, With Her Bell, Book, Candle And The Unsuspected Motley.

By Theodore Hall.

LIKE the problem of perpetual motion to the inventors, Gertrude Stein is the Cervantean windmill to the book critics. We all come tilting at one time or another, break a lance or two—and the windmill still revolves. Henry Seidel Canby, who needs but a gray beard to become the successor of Howells as the voice of the genteel tradition, disapproves of her strongly from his editorial chair in the Saturday Review of Literature. Sherwood Anderson thinks of her as "an American woman of the old sort," making savory things in a kitchen—the Andersonian intuitive impressionism, you see. Edmund Wilson remarks that "most of us read her less and less, yet whenever we pick up her writings, however unintelligible we may find them, we are aware of a literary personality of unmistakable originality and distinction."

Some one, certainly, could have a lot of fun putting together a concordance of the criticism on Miss Stein.

The very first review I wrote for this apaper dealt with her "Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas." Owning to a proper regard, then, for my unwitting patron saint, I have since stretched these two typewriter fingers over her "The Making of Americans," her "Portraits and Prayers," and her first radio talk in this country. What was tapped out could be boiled down this—that I felt the awareness Mr. Wilson mentions and would like to like her work, but didn't really.

Then Miss Stein came to town and we happened to meet, and I spent an evening with her driving her to Baltimore and back for her lecture there.

NOW meeting authors is a dangerous thing for the book reviewer. I've half a mind not to advise it to the trade. For it destroys that necessary, though perhaps regrettable, distance by which alone we can judge a book as a book. Just think how I would feel, for instance after pointing out that a certain novel was slovenly and unappealing, to find that its author is a thoroughly nice chap with an admirable taste for chess over a stein of beer! Luckily, the professional hazard of the book reviewer is not one which jacks up his insurance rate.

So to talk about signboards, college students, Hemingway, airplanes, mystery stories, children's toys, Picasso, the autograph seekers in the Belvidere taproom, and what-is-the-way-to-the-art-museum (yes, we got beautifully lost!) with as sincere, genial, sympathetic and live-minded woman as you'd want to meet was to confuse a number of things. Where, for the moment at least, was my conviction of her cardinal sin—her disregard for the reader, a disregard which shows itself in the well-known mannerisms to satisfy Stein, but not to communicate directly, clearly and with efficiency the very real sense and sensibility which are in Stein?

She, in turn, has the utmost faith that she is direct and clear and efficient. And that—after all the personal liking and admiration—is still the nub of the problem.

• • • •

NOW this squib today surrounds a book which had better take a bow at this point. Miss Stein's "Lectures in America" (Random House, $2.50) holds the six lectures—"What Is English Literature; Pictures; Plays; The Gradual Making of the Making of Americans; Portraits and Repetition; Poetry and Grammar"—which she has been and is still reading before audiences around the country. If you heard the first and second when she gave them here, you will understand and enjoy them the more on reacquaintance. All of them are like ripe olives or brazil nuts—very rewarding if you will give them the time and patience.

But it is a passage from the lecture which holds some point on the above-mentioned problem. Miss Stein is speaking of a writer's using words directly and indirectly: "If he uses these words indirectly he says what he intends to have heard by somebody who is to hear and in so doing inevitably he has to serve mammon. Mammon may be a success, mammon may be an effort he is to produce, mammon may be a pleasure he has from hearing what he himself has done, mammon may be his way of explaining, mammon may be a laziness that needs nothing but going on, in short mammon maybeanythingthatisdonedirectly. may be anything that is done indirectly. Now serving God for a writer who is writing is writing anything directly, it makes no difference what it is but it must be direct, the relation between the thing done and the doer must be direct. In this way there is completion."

Splendid, ringing words which cut like acid into many cheapnesses of writing. But I can not for one minute think that the ancient and altogether honorable purpose of communication with the reader, of writing so as "to have (it) heard by somebody who is to hear," is anything so "indirect" and deplorable as Miss Stein would have it. The bad writer will communicate to the cheapness, the good writer to something else, but both, in so far as they are writers, will be first and necessarily judged on the amperage, the current, of their communication. And, conversely, the "relation between the thing done and the doer" may seem to the writer perfectly "direct," and the result may yet be bad writing—because of that most insidious of diseases, solipsism.

For a writer, all by himself, to say "I am in this writing, therefore it is good" is, I'm afraid, pure folly. The extreme example of that tendency is the gentleman in the asylum who has the most heartfelt conviction on earth that he is Napoleon.

• • • •

SOME slight but pervasive touch of that solipsism is what stands between Miss Stein's clear and honest insight and the ability of all but the most duteous and forgiving readers to appreciate it. One finds it easy to see—and I don't mean this so glibly as I put it—what 30 years among the French (she does not speak French well) and the encircling attentions of a cul would do.

And, to our loss, most readers find it hard to see that behind the rigamarole is the most earnest advocacy of sincere, untrammeled, self-respecting and God-serving work. Miss Stein, when all is said and done, is a moralist. And something—it is pleasant to note that she smiles when the audience titters over such a Steinian phrase as "But to begin at any beginning at least as a beginning is"—of the moralist's blood-cousin, a humorist.

Centennial Near For Warren County

Celebrations Proposed for Next Year.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., May 6.—A centennial celebration of the organization of Warren County has been proposed for 1936.

The county was formed from Frederick and Shenandoah counties on March 24, 1836, by act of the Virginia Assembly.

The first county justices were Joseph S. Spangler, David W. Barton and Mordecai Cloud, who appointed Robert Turner as the first clerk of the court for seven years.

The first court met in the tavern of Mrs. Lane, which occupied a site on Main street. The present courthouse, erected in 1846, will be replaced this summer by a $50,000 building, for which the Federal Public Works Administration has made a grant.

New Laws Menace To Oil Industry

Consumer Is Overlooked, Says T. S. Hose.

New York, May 6.—The danger that the oil industry is again to be made the target of further Federal legislation, at a time when the statistical position of the industry is healthy and sound and the outlook for higher prices for crude oil, is pointed to by T. S. Hose in his weekly review of the industry as retarding its improvement.

"Those who are loudly proclaiming the merits of the so-called Thomas Federal Control bill now before Congress," states Mr. Hose, "are making rash claims that the enactment of the legislation is demanded by the so-called 'little fellows' engaged in the petroleum industry; in short, the small independents, producers, refiners, marketers and filling station operators. The consumer, who represents the largest class of all is not even mentioned.

"Those in the petroleum industry, as well as the public, have only recently been afforded the protectioon of the Connally act. The act has been in existence for too short a time to result in a comprehensive interpretation of its merits. At the time of its enactment the industry was assured and felt certain that it need not expect additional regulative or control legislation for the present. However, now that the Thomas control bill has been brought into the limelight again, the industry appears to be again assuming a policy of 'watchful waiting.'"

The act would authorize the town to issue bonds in a sum not exceeding $25,000.

According to present plans, the reservoir would be constructed partly with money from Federal funds and would insure an adequate water supply for the town for several years, Mayor Grover C. Stemple stated.

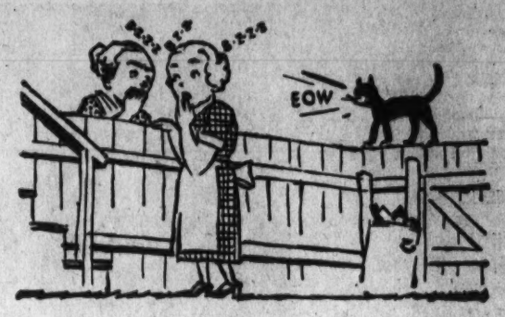
BRENTANO'S
1322 F St. NA. 0860

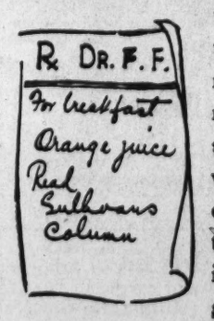


Henry Jones, who was sad and downcast for many years, is a happy man now. "It's this way," explains Hank. "It uster be when I got home I hadda eat outa cans or buy a hamburger down at Joe's hash-house. You see, the missus loved gossip and she spent her afternoons hangin' over the back fence tradin' scandal with the neighbors 'stead of gettin' supper.

"But I fixed that. I subscribed to The Washington Post and now she gets enough gossip outa that feller Ed Sullivan's Broadway column to last her all day. She says he sure knows how to tell things, all right."

But Ed Sullivan is not just a gossip-teller, a keyhole listener-inner, a Peeping Tom with a typewriter. Ed chronicles the doings of that biggest of all hick towns, New York. With Broadway and Forty-second street as his base of operations, Sullivan stops (briefly), looks (intently), and listens (long). The result is a column of news and gossip . . . those little whispers which later roar at you from the front page headlines.

Another nice thing about Ed Sullivan's Broadway column is that it is written for the reader . . . and not just to high-hat some other columnist. We know a college professor who once spent months translating what he termed "Broadwayese." For instance, he learned that "The Umphs who middle-aisled it Choosday yawning, phhht! yesdy. He's carrying the torch for a certain revusical eye-full now" really means that Mr. and Mrs. Umph, who were married last Tuesday, have parted, and that Mr. Umph is now in love with a chorus girl. But when you read Sullivan, you won't have to be a college professor to understand what he means . . . for Sullivan's lines have sparkle, snap and wit . . . and he doesn't depend upon a tortured pun to pack a wallop.



"Broadway," as seen through Ed Sullivan's slightly cynical but ever-interesting eyes, is as breezy as a cocktail party, as smart as a Noel Coward comedy, as entertaining as a ringside table. Not to read Ed Sullivan's column right after downing your orange juice each morning is to miss a lot of fun. Sullivan doesn't tell the news behind the headlines . . . he tells the news ahead of the headlines . . . and tells it five mornings each week in number of persons (on relief) in the shortest time possible."

To this end, the President delegated to Hopkins the power to establish a division of progress investigation, to make periodic check-ups and to recommend changes in projects or their termination. A staff of investigators, headed by Louis R. Glavis, now is operated by Secretary Ickes and presumably this unit will be co-ordinated under Hopkins.

To Study Wages.

The progress administrator further was empowered to prescribe regulations to assure employment of as many persons from relief rolls as possible and to investigate wages and working conditions as a guide to the President in prescribing rates of pay on projects.

Still other duties given Hopkins were the co-ordination of research data, the co-ordination of opinions and decisions dealing with administration of the program and the carrying out of "small useful projects designed to assure a maximum of employment in all localities."

Only one paragraph was given in the executive order to the Walker and Ickes branches of the works program, while more than two pages were required to list the Hopkins duties.

The President also made provision for the establishment in the Treasury of an independent system of accounts on works expenditures and specified that the budget director is to pass on all administrative expenses.

"No more tired, let-down feeling for me"

"I reasoned that my red blood corpuscle strength was low and I simply took a course of S.S.S. Tonic and built it back."

IT is all so simple and reasonable. If your physical let-down is caused by lowered red blood corpuscles—which is all too frequent—then S.S.S. Tonic is waiting to help you ... and will, unless you have a serious organic trouble that demands a physician or surgeon.

Remember, S.S.S. is not just a so-called "tonic." It is a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also has the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying red corpuscles in the blood.

This two-fold purpose is important. Digestion is improved ... food is better utilized ... and thus you are enabled to better "carry on" without exhaustion—as you should naturally.

You may have the will-power to be "up and doing" but unless your blood is in top notch form you are not fully yourself and you may remark, "I wonder why I tire so easily."

Let S.S.S. help build back your blood tone ... if your case is not exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food ... sound sleep ... steady nerves ... a good complexion ... and renewed strength.

S.S.S. is sold by all drug stores in two sizes. The $2 economy size is twice as large as the $1.25 regular size and is sufficient for two weeks treatment. Begin on the uproad today. © S.S.S. Co.

New Deal Upset On Pension Act Perils Security

5-4 Court Ruling Based on 'One Process' Theory Worries Regime.

tion of the Supreme Court's ruling, George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, characterized the ruling as "one of the most reactionary decisions handed down by the court" and contended that it "shows a total disregard of the social obligations of industry to its workers."

"It will be most difficult for Congress to enact any social legislation that requires employers' contributions and, therefore, it is a serious obstacle to the consummation of the whole New Deal program," he asserted.

Pointing out that since the Supreme Court had ruled it was beyond the power of Congress to protect railway workers in their old age with a pension system, Harrison asserted the workers "will therefore of necessity be compelled to rely upon their economic strength to compel the employers to establish a fair and decent system of retirement benefits."

"In other words," he added, ominously, "if they won't give us what we want, we'll have to take it away from them."

Security Prices Spurt.

John J. Pelly, president of the Association of American Railroads, expressed gratification over the decision, pointing out it would relieve the railroads of an expenditure of $60,000,000 this year and much larger sums in years to come. These expenditures, he said, would have been "very burdensome" on carriers, particularly since most of them now "pay fairly liberal pensions" under voluntary systems.

The Supreme Court's decision brought a short-lived spurt in prices of railroad securities. Pessimism over the future earning power of railroads, however, quickly brought the prices down, some shares losing more than they gained in a rush of profit taking.

The thought uppermost in the minds of Administration supporters was how the social security program and hour and wage provisions of the NRA could be upheld, except under the commerce clause of the Constitution, and whether the high court would so uphold them, now that it has held that the commerce clause can not be invoked as authority for a railroad pension act.

The majority of the court did not touch on the question of validity of a compulsory pension system applicable to employes of railroads engaged solely in intrastate work—a point cited by the District of Columbia Supreme Court in finding the railroad retirement act invalid. Having riddled the act in its applicability to persons engaged without doubt in interstate commerce, the majority apparently did not think it necessary to go on to the intrastate aspects of the case.

NRA Reaction Veiled.

Thus its reaction to the validity of NRA codes in intrastate industries, the question raised, among others, in the Schechter poultry case now pending before the court, was not unveiled.

The line of reasoning taken by the majority of the court caused complete surprise. Had a majority held the act unconstitutional on the ground that inseparable provisions of it constituted an arbitrary and unreasonable burden on the railroads, thus violating the due process clause, none would have been surprised.

President Roosevelt, when he signed the act last June, after a militant group had forced its passage in the closing days of the last Congress by filibustering against other measures, observed that it was "crudely drawn" and would "require many changes and amendments at the next session of Congress." He signed it, nevertheless, on the ground that it reflected the aims of his social security program.

Even the minority of the court seemed outraged by the conclusions of the majority, for at the outset of his opinion Chief Justice Hughes asserted that "the gravest aspect of the decision is that it does not rest simply upon a condemnation of particular features of the railroad retirement act, but denies to Congress the power to pass any compulsory pension act for railroad employes."

Cleavage Is Serious.

The majority and minority opinions demonstrated that a serious cleavage exists in the court. Not only were both opinions vigorously presented, but each undertook to riddle the arguments presented by the other.

Chief Justice Hughes literally attacked the position taken by Justice Sutherland, citing excerpts from a report made by a senatorial committee of which Justice Sutherland was chairman upholding the authority of Congress to enact a compensation act for railroad workers.

The Chief Justice quoted liberally from this report and argued at some length that "compensation and pension measures for employes rest upon similar basic considerations," and he went on to ask: "What sound distinction, from a constitutional standpoint, is there between compelling reasonable compensation for those injured, without any fault of the employer, and requiring a fair allowance for those who practically give their lives to the service and are incapacitated by the wear and tear of time, the attrition of the years?"

"I perceive no constitutional ground upon which the one can be upheld and the other condemned," he added.

The decision in the railroad retirement case was the only one handed down by the court yesterday. In all probability, the decision regarding constitutionality of the Frazier-Lemke mortgage moratorium act will be given next Monday.

When the court convened it was announced Justice Roberts would give the court's opinion in the retirement case. The justice—youngest member of the court in age—observed the majority opinion was too long to be read in full and that he would summarize it.

As though he had memorized the salient parts of his opinion, Justice Roberts started his recital, glancing about the courtroom as he spoke, occasionally crossing his arms across his black-robed chest and then folding them on the desk before him, as he leaned forward to give emphasis to his words.

Justice Roberts recalled that the act under attack by 134 Class I railroads, two express companies and the Pullman Co.—required all carriers subject to the Interstate Commerce Commission to contribute into a fund to be managed by the Railroad Retirement Board, under control of the Government, a sum equal to 4 per cent of their pay rolls. Railroad employes were required to contribute 2 per cent of their salaries. Out of this fund annuities were to be paid to beneficiaries.

D. C. Decision Ignored.

Railway workers might retire and be entitled to pensions when they reached the age of 65 years or at any time between the ages of 51 and 65 years on completion of 30 years' service. The railroads might agree with their employes to keep them in service until they reached 70, but at that age retirement would be mandatory. Employes leaving the service of a railroad before the age of 65 would be entitled on reaching that age to a pension in proportion to the number of years employed by railroads.

The classes of persons entitled to such annuities were employes of any carrier on the date of the passage of the act last June; those who subsequently became employes of any carrier and those who, within one year to passage of the act, were in service of any carrier.

The District of Columbia Supreme Court declared passage of such an act within the competence of Congress, but held that several inseparable features of the act transcended legislative power to regulate interstate commerce, and required a holding that the law is unconstitutional in its entirety.

The duty of the Supreme Court, Justice Roberts asserted, was to construe the powers of Congress and to ascertain whether the act falls within them, "uninfluenced by predilection for or against the policy disclosed in the legislation."

Stone Adds Reasons.

He found that the provision including in pension benefits workers who left the railroad employment in the year prior to passage of the act, and that providing any other former railway worker should be given credit for past service if reemployed by any carrier "arbitrary and unreasonable," and objectionable to the due process clause.

In addition, Justice Stone assailed failure of the act to require a specified length of service as eligibility for a pension. He held further that the provision making many employes immediately eligible for pensions, without ever having contributed to the fund, was an unreasonable burden on the railroads.

Justice Stone scoffed at contention that the efficiency and safety of railroads would be bettered by improving morale of railway workers by making them contented and giving them a feeling of security. He applied to each provision the test of whether it would increase "economy, efficiency or safety" and in each case found in the negative.

But a more serious objection to validity of the act, Justice Stone found, was the pooling feature which required all railroads to pay into one fund and that all should be treated as "a single employer." This, he held, was a harsh and arbitrary imposition, violating the fifth amendment.

For all these reasons the act is invalid, he pointed out, but added that "it is also bad for another reason which goes to the heart of the law, even if it could survive the loss of unconstitutional features" already discussed. This latter reason is that "the act is not in purpose or effect a regulation of interstate commerce within the meaning of the Constitution."

Rain Delays Garden Fete At Embassy

Party Postponed Until May 17 by Sir Ronald and Lady Lindsay.

Floodlighting on Huge Scale Marks Jubilee Event in London.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

While throughout the British Empire yesterday was marked by elaborate celebrations in honor of the silver jubilee of the King and Queen of England, Washington society was deeply disappointed. Owing to wet weather, the garden party at the British embassy, which was to have been the outstanding celebration in the Capital, was postponed until May 17 from 4 until 6 o'clock. The invitations already issued will be good for May 17, (weather permitting) and Sir Ronald and Lady Lindsay hope that all who have been invited will be able to attend on that day. No further invitations will be issued. The garden parties at the embassy are outstanding events of the spring season.

However, the Ambassador and Lady Lindsay, with a large group of representatives of official, diplomatic and residential society, attended the celebration at the Washington Cathedral yesterday morning, when Mrs. Roosevelt was among those present.

While it rained and was gloomy here, London was a silver city for the celebrations which are of such interest to the world. Kings' jubilees have become more and more rare in the last few years, and there is no nation which rallies so much to its King as does Great Britain.

Record Floodlighting.

St. James Park was the scene of the most ambitious floodlighting scheme ever undertaken. Two hundred great incandescent lamps were installed in the park, and the island bird-sanctuary was illuminated at both ends from the mainland. Special floodlighting was used to illuminate the flower beds facing Birdcage Walk, the lawns, trees, and shrubs at Buckingham Palace end of the park, and along the Mall.

All through the jubilee celebrations an effort will be made to revive the pageantry of the Thames, and on Friday there will be a river procession from Greenwich to Chelsea. For this it is hoped to resurrect some of the old state barges. That used by Queen Victoria, though nearly 200 years old, is still in existence and may be rebuilt for service.

Gems Brought From India.

Priceless jewels, steeped in history, have been brought from India as a jubilee tribute to the Queen-Empress by maharanees and begums who are in London to take part in the empire celebrations. The Maharanee of Mayurbhanji will present a tiara bearing rubies as large as pigeon eggs. The Begum of Bampur will offer the historic diamond necklace worn by "the Queen Elizabeth of India," the Rezia Begum. The Maharanee of Benares is to present a Benares sari of exquisite beauty and the Maharanee of Mymensingh has brought to London bracelets once worn by the famous Begum of Murshidabad.

All these gifts will be offered to the Queen at a brilliant reception in the palace and will be only a small part of the magnificent tribute from all parts of the Empire.

Mrs. Hull Asks Guests to Party For Mrs. Coker

Informal Tea to Honor Daughter of Secretary and Mrs. Roper.

Mrs. Cordell Hull will entertain at another of her delightfully informal teas this afternoon in her apartment at the Carlton. The tea will be given for Mrs. David Coker, daughter of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, who arrived yesterday from her home in South Carolina. The company invited to meet Mrs. Coker includes the other Cabinet hostesses and several other guests.

Mrs. Hull is justly proud of her beautiful apartment which she and the Secretary occupy. Mrs. Hull selected the furnishings and to the very handsome pieces she has added many of her own possessions.

In the Secretary's study, one of the most attractive rooms in the apartment, the walls are covered with interesting pictures, many of them snapshots taken last year when the Hulls went to South America to attend the Pan-American Conference at Montevideo. Others were taken in London during the economic conference, and still others are autographed photographs of presidents and prominent men of the neighboring republics of the Southern Hemisphere.

Junior League Equips Cafeteria For Horse Show

Elaborate Plans Made to Serve the Patrons at Three-Day Meeting.

Elaborate plans have been made by members of the Junior League for serving luncheons to patrons of the National Capital Horse Show, which opens at Bradley Farms Thursday morning for a three-day meeting.

A well-equipped cafeteria has been established in the stone house on the show grounds, tables have been set up in the attractive structure and regular luncheons are to be sold between the morning and afternoon classes.

Mindful of the kiddies' welfare, Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., and Mrs. John A. Selby, joint chairmen have planned special luncheons for the children so that parents may bring their youngsters to the show early and stay throughout the day.

Several new features were announced last night by the committee for the children's day program Saturday. A tally-ho has been obtained and children will be taken for rides over the show grounds. It will be drawn by a team of ponies.

In addition, the committee has obtained an old-time peanut vendor and a fortune teller and they will be at the grounds to ply their trades.

Proceeds from the luncheons, pony and tally-ho rides, sale of soft drinks and other activities of the Junior League will be turned into the special fund which it maintains for welfare work at Children's Hospital and the Library of Congress.

Acne Cure Kit Proves a Boon In Mild Cases

Poppy Scent Popular for Summer; Poetry and Lipsticks.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

ONE OF the worst ills to which the skin seems heir, is acne. According to statistics, hundreds of thousands of women all over the country spend small fortunes trying to rid themselves of this condition Unfortunately a lot of them, instead of seeing reliable skin specialists or investing in bona fide remedies, are content to try this or that and experiment with one preparation after another. Naturally, using a variety of things aggravates the acne condition.

Remember, you can not expect results from any remedy until you have used it systematically and according to directions. You will need patience—and more patience. However, with the use of good products you should be able to check the condition in a reasonable length of time. If the acne is in an advanced stage, see a physician first and follow his directions.

The woman who has only a mild case of acne will find that an acne kit put out by a certain beautician will be of invaluable aid. It consists of a liquid pore cleanser, an acne cream—a carbolized skin ointment and a face lotion.

Before you begin your treatment, cleanse the skin thoroughly. The liquid included in the kit will help you do this. The acne cream and skin ointment are both curative preparations which will soothe the skin and help rid it of the unsightly blemishes. The special face lotion is in reality a liquid powder, purified especially for broken-out skins.

This complete acne kit will prove a big convenience. Instead of finding your preparations spread willy-nilly here and there, you can keep them neatly and compactly together. When you travel what a boon to have this little kit all ready to tuck into the pocket of your suitcase!

It's modestly priced—and highly recommended.

Poppy Scent Popular.

Perfume experts tell us that flower fragrances are by far the most popular during the summer. Maybe so, but there are still many women who are not suited by these light floral scents. At the same time they fear a stifling exotic perfume for the summer.

The solution to their problem lies in a poppy perfume, the only one of which we know that is light and dainty—and at the same time exotic.

Since the company—you'll recognize the name immediately—is going to cease making it, you can buy it now for very little more than half price.

It comes in exquisite bottles. The glass stoppers are shaped like poppies in full bloom.

Poetry and Lipsticks.

We need the muse of poetry to perch on top of our typewriter while we praise a new and intriguing lipstick just now making its debut in a local shop. Of course, for years and years there have been lipsticks constantly appearing in newer, lovelier forms but this one excels them all. It's the epitome of lipstick charm!

The case is one of those streamline affairs which you open with the flick of a finger. And when you open it, out pops the lipstick itself—a large, luscious stick that looks as good as it is.

The lipstick is made from unique ingredients which give the lips a warm, moist, youthful, glamorous shine. In young lips it intensifies that desirable sparkle. To parched, dried-out lips it brings the quality of glowing youth. In fact, it actually restores softness and healthy beauty to dull, chapped "old" lips.

Moths Coming Soon.

Optimism is a very fine thing, but, pray, don't be optimistic about the pesky little moths. They may be on a starvation diet now, but just let summer come and you'll find that your winter clothes will serve as their festive board unless you decree otherwise.

Packing up your furs and coats and woolen clothes isn't actually so much trouble, and safeguarding them from moths really costs very little. Proof of this lies in the notions department of a downtown store where white-lined cedarized moth-proof bags cost only 39 cents each, or else, three for $1.

The bags, 27x60, are amply large for men's overcoats and suits besides. It will take you only a short time to hang your winter things inside of these—and then you can rest assured they'll be well preserved all summer.

Capital Parley Attracts Delegate From Australia

Handicapped children often become sources of pride to their parents in later life, says Mrs. Margaret Thorp Watts, known as "mother" to 1,250 child cripples of Australia.

THEY CALL her "Mater" in far-off Sydney. And an appropriate title it is, too, in spite of her comparative youth. For 1,250 Australian children, deprived of the use of their limbs, have learned to regard her as a symbol of their own physical emancipation.

Mrs. Margaret Thorp Watts, pioneer in the New South Wales work for crippled children, has traveled thousands of miles for her "family," raised funds to launch the first comprehensive program in their behalf, and brought hope and comfort into more than 1,600 homes. Today she is in Washington, a delegate to the fourteenth annual convention of the International Society for Crippled Children.

"I'm thrilled to be here, too," Mrs. Watts exclaimed yesterday. "I am looking forward to meeting President and Mrs. Roosevelt. How fortunate you are over here to have the nation's leader so actively interested in this humanitarian cause! It has proved a great stimulus for achievement among the workers here, and an inspiration to the rest of us.

Meeting Provides Contacts.

"Then," she added enthusiastically, "this meeting will give me an opportunity to make contacts with medical and educational leaders in our work from many parts of the world. Already I have benefited by visits to the Los Angeles, Denver and Chicago centers on my way across the country. In these cities I was able to view the finished product in work for crippled children as well as plans in the experimental stages. Each provided a basis for constructive comparison."

Before returning to Australia, where she heads the New South Wales Society for Crippled Children, she will attend clinics and observe work in Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and a number of cities in England.

"The trend in our work today is toward prevention," Mrs. Watts explained. "In Australia as well as elsewhere measures are adopted which aim to cut down the present average of three cripples to every thousand children born.

"How can this be accomplished? In many ways. For example, there is the matter of improving prenatal and postnatal care, and the prompt and judicious handling of such causative diseases as infantile paralysis. Then the present program of education and sympathetic cooperation between parents and workers is aiding materially."

The most cheerful and co-operative people in the world to work with are the cripples, believes Mrs. Watts, who has devoted the last 14 years of her life to their interests. Bitterness caused by unhealthful environments and lack of interest on the part of their guardians is soon forgotten as soon as the hope of even partial recovery is held out to them.

"We have found some truly brilliant minds and great talent among the children we have contacted through our program," Mrs. Watts said. "Our first task from a psychological standpoint is to make the cripple and his guardians regard him as a normal human being in the home, instead of a novelty. With this mental attitude established it is easier to accomplish results from a physical as well as intellectual standpoint. Given the proper encouragement and co-operation, it is often the handicapped child who will exert the greatest effort to make his parents proud of him in later life."

Complete cures have been effected by the orthopedic surgeons in many of the New South Wales cases, according to Mrs. Watts, This resulted in a reduction of her original list of 1,600 charges to 1,250 during the last few years.

Gratitude Unexcelled.

"And there is no gratitude to match that of the cured cripple," Mrs. Watts declared. "Invariably those so blessed will send continual contributions from their earnings into the society, so that others may be helped toward recovery."

The employment of the vocationally trained incurable cripple is one of the most difficult tasks facing Mrs. Watts and her corps of workers.

Mrs. Watts, who was born in England, went to Australia with her parents while she was still a student at Westbrook College. Her father, a retiring physician, had devoted much of his time in Liverpool and London to relieving the slum dwellers who could not afford necessary medical aid.

The same spirit of philanthropy ruled the daughter's life. While little more than a youngster she enlisted in war work with the Quaker Relief Corps, and served among the stricken families of Central Europe, Poland and Russia.

Kuchen Ideal As Light Food For Breakfast

German Crumb Cake Goes Well With Milk or Orange Juice Diet.

By Dorothea Duncan.

THE LIGHT breakfast eater wants something different for her limited morning repast. Never will you find anything so delectable as this real German kaffee kuchen. It is a perfect accompaniment for that glass of orange juice and tumbler of cold milk. Perhaps you know it by the name crumb cake, often called this because of the appearance of the crust. Make it this way:

German Kaffee Kuchen.

1 cake compressed yeast
¾ cup milk
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 cups flour
6 tablespoons shortening
2 egg yolks
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Make sponge by scalding one-fourth cup of milk. Cool to lukewarm. Dissolve yeast cake in it. Add one-half teaspoon sugar and a pinch of salt; stir in one-half cup sifted flour. Mix thoroughly and put in a warm place to rise for one or two hours. Scald the remaining milk and add shortening and remaining sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm and add beaten yolks. Then stir in the sponge and remaining flour. Knead until dough is smooth and elastic. Cover closely and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Knead again lightly and roll into a square one-half inch thick. Place in a greased pan. Dust with nutmeg. Cover and let rise in a warm place until light. Sprinkle top with streusel. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit). Cut into 12 medium-sized pieces.

This streusel mixture is one dearly loved by the Germans. They use it to cover the tops of many kinds of coffee cake.

Streusel.

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons sugar
6 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon cinnamon

Sift dry ingredients and work into softened butter until the mixture has the appearance of crumbs.

Query—Should sherry be added to shrimp Newburg in the same proportion as used for lobster Newburg?

Answer—Lobster Newburg usually requires a greater amount of sherry than the shrimp dish of the same name. Try the following recipe for shrimp Newburg and if the sherry content is not great enough to meet with your approval add a little more.

Shrimp Newburg.

1½ cups shrimp meats
2 tablespoons sherry
1 teaspoon flour
½ cup cream
2 egg yolks, beaten slightly
4 tablespoons butter
Salt
Pepper

Heat shrimps in three tablespoons butter.

Melt one tablespoon butter, add flour, stir until smooth; stir in cream and cook five minutes. Gently stir in the shrimps. Then slowly stir in egg yolks, and finally the wine. Do not let mixture boil. Season and serve.

Query—Can a recipe for milk sherbet which merely calls for fruit juice, sugar and milk be successfully frozen in a mechanical refrigerator?

Answer—The mixture will be smooth and rich (tasting almost as though made of cream) if frozen rapidly in the trays of a mechanical refrigerator. The trick lies in rapid freezing, so turn the cold control to the highest point and stir several times during the freezing so the mixture will freeze evenly.

Dorothea Duncan will be glad to help you with your culinary problems. Write to her, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, in care of The Washington Post.

What's Etiquette of Married Couple's Registering at Hotel?

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I recently read an article purporting to have been written by a hotel bell-hop, in which the writer stated that when unmarried couples register in a hotel as man and wife, the woman always gives the deception away. He said whereas a married woman always goes to the hotel desk with her husband and has her say concerning the room to be occupied, the unmarried "wife" stays away from the desk and accepts the man's decision without a word.

• • • •

This amuses me. How many wise bell-hops I must have fooled. For I have been going about with one husband for over 20 years, yet never once have I gone to a hotel desk with him when he registered for us. Always I have chosen a convenient chair and waited without a word of advice or argument until he decided on a room.

• • • •

But Miss Haworth, what is considered proper procedure? I am not too old to mend my ways.

FAIR-AND-FORTY.

DEAR FAIR-AND-FORTY: You may congratulate yourself on the fact that during these past 20-odd years you have quite intuitively been practicing the proper procedure with regard to hotel registration, notwithstanding the bellhop's implied reproach and derogatory deductions.

• • • •

"If a woman enters a hotel with her husband, he registers for both," a recently issued textbok on etiquette decrees with brief finality. "A man and his wife are registered as 'Mr. and Mrs. George F. Wanderer, Ridgefield, N. J.'—the entry being made by the man," it subsequently states, as if to cinch the statement once and for all. "But if she enters with her brother, with whom she is traveling, she herself registers directly below the name of her brother."

• • • •

So far as I know, there is no law of social usage which prohibits a wife's accompanying her husband to a hotel desk, there to ponder a mutually satisfactory selection of rooms. Yet any woman sensitive to the gentle dictates of exquisite courtesy naturally shrinks from any gesture which might be construed as publicly reflecting upon her husband's ability to make a wise selection in so personal a matter; just as such a woman goes to considerable lengths to avoid making her presence conspicuous in a public place.

• • • •

The bellhop has evidently made the mistake of voicing some plausible-sounding generalities based on insufficient acquaintance with either accepted social usage or the gentlefolk who establish social precedent. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

What TODAY Means

"Taurus."

IF May 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 10:15 a. m. until noon, from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 12:15 to 2:15 p. m. and from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m.

It will be wise for you to avoid straining cordial home or outside relationships by bickering. If you seek trouble today, you will have no trouble finding it. The day should be very auspicious for the closing of business deals, as well as for the negotiation of new ones. Entertainments planned on this date should prove unqualified successes, providing ample time is allowed for the issuing of the invitations.

If a woman and May 7 is your birthday and you wish to advance yourself socially or in business, avoid being reluctant to meet strangers or form new friendships. You have the qualifications needed to be an ideal hostess, and should find entertaining a very easy matter. You have the faculty of being able to grasp things quickly, so your sense of humor should be very keen.

Both music and art in all its varied forms should have an unusual appeal, and afford you a great deal of pleasure. Having a very practical streak in your make-up you should be a very successful business woman. Employment in a real estate, insurance, radio broadcasting or advertising agency office may offer the best means through which to demonstrate your ability. You should be very happy married, and children should be a great comfort, as well as a source of continuous pride.

The child born on May 7, as soon as it is able to talk, generally is unusually demonstrative, and throughout its life is likely to be deeply sentimental and depend on a return of affection for its complete happiness.

If a man and May 7 is your natal day, you possess every requisite required to be successful. It might be best not to confide too many of your aspirations to your friends, for unfortunately some are so constituted that they feel it is their appointed duty to throw cold water on everything in which they can not personally participate. Educational or research work, politics, law, army or navy life, as well as music, may provide the means through which you will arrive at your goal.

Black and White Favored For Ensembles in Paris

Worn Every Hour of the Day From Luncheon ot Supper.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 6.—Black and white is the "dernier cri" in summer chic. The combination long loved by French women is smarter than ever this season and appears in every type of clothes for every hour of the day from luncheon to supper.

Navy blue and white are other fashionable twins, though they are less often seen after dark.

White collars and neck touches which appear on this year's crop of frocks are modern and distinctive. Flat little schoolgirl collars of white pique finished with small neat bows, organdy collars which curl out from the throat like the petals of a flower, star-shaped linen collars, "paper" collars made of a new glazed linen cut out to resemble lace and even white rubber jabots are all seen.

White capes appear too with black afternoon frocks. One is a double decker affair of white Indian lamb lined with black crepe, another is a four-tiered model of white organdy edged with white braid.

Many a white accent stands out with startling clearness on black belts. White leather wings clasp black calf belts, a white treble clef finishes a black patent leather and a white plaster lyre clasps a black suede. White buttons — daisies, primroses and poppies made of a composition "china"—string down the front of numerous black frocks.

White hats are shown by the most important designers and fashion experts predict their vogue will be great when warm days appear. Some of them are flat-crowned, narrow-brimmed affairs with dark veils floating off behind, others are small toques covered with white flower petals. A cluster of white flowers finishes many black hats.

The vogue for black and white goes on by night. Crisp black taffetas splashed with white dots or flowers fashion evening frocks, black dinner suits are topped by white jackets and white evening gowns are accompanied by sheer black tulle capes.

Black and white—a combination guaranteed to give distinction to the most mousey woman—is the color scheme of this print gown.

Titian Vogue Hits Europe; Blondes Passe

PARIS (U.P.).—A wave of red is sweeping Europe with the edict of famed coiffeurs that gentlemen no longer prefer blondes but now are going strong for red hair. Pink tints for elderly gray hairs have replaced the mauve tint of recent years.

The doom of the platinum blonde is decreed as experts have found that the chemicals producing the once popular platinum shade really turn the hair green and brittle in time.

Both Antoine and Emile are making red wigs and transformations for evening, and dressmakers are choosing new exotic colors that combine with titian tresses provoking the most seductive effects. Short hair, closely cropped and well groomed, is the vogue for daytime, but evening modes are more feminine, with copper curls pinned about the forehead, ear lobes and the nape of the neck. These are purchasable in varying shades to match dyed bobs. To appear in the evening without the waves and curls that are not worn with daytime sport and town ensembles is considered as bad taste as attending a gala clad in sport clothes.

Copper jewelry is a new red vogue, with wide handcuff bracelets, ball and chain earrings and wide sheet-metal belts that threaten to put corset makers out of business.

Birthmarks, Moles May Lead to Cancer

Tumor Growths Often Are the Result of Tiny Causes.

Dr. Cutter Gives Warning Against Development of Cancer Phobia.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Tiny, insignificant causes are often followed by results that may achieve huge proportions. The beginning of a tumor growth is at first but a single cell so small that it takes a powerful microscope to detect its presence. Given favorable conditions and in the presence of irritation this minute cell, if it becomes cancerous, may destroy life. Lay persons are rather well informed relative to skin growths and know that sores anywhere on the surface of the body that are chronic, that fail to heal within a reasonable time, or that increase in size must be regarded with suspicion. They also know that warts or moles, if they begin to enlarge, should be removed.

Inflammation of the skin or of the mucous membrane from any source results in body resentment, and there are many minor forms of injuries that may be avoided. Inflammation of the mucous membrane of the mouth sometimes results from decayed, jagged teeth. Not only may the mucous membrane be affected, but the tongue as well.

In older persons small growths may appear on the skin, and the usual situation is over the cheek bones, on the temples and on the backs of the hands. These growths are much more common in persons who have been exposed to all sorts of weather. As a rule, they are flat or slightly raised and vary in size from a split pea to a dime. The color is generally yellowish brown. Ordinarily, the surface is covered with a dry crust that feels rough and thick to the touch. Sometimes these areas show signs of ulceration.

Another type of cell growth is that which occurs in the vicinity of the skin glands on the chest, between the shoulder blades, or about the waistline. They are usually oval, flat elevations and are sometimes covered with greasy scales that are gray, yellow or brown in color. Of such lesions about 1 in 20 will undergo degeneration of malignant character and simple removal may be effected by the electric needle, X-ray, or radium.

Workers who are constantly in contact with tar and heavy oils may exhibit skin areas that are inclined to become inflamed and that sometimes undergo malignant change.

Many authorities believe that brown or dark moles wherever they occur on the body invite the development of cancer, and, because of this tendency, they are considered dangerous and their removal is advised. Birthmarks are thought of in much the same way. While no one would advise wholesale removal of all moles and birthmarks, yet such lesions should be watched for any sign of enlargement. If growth occurs, prompt removal must take place.

Disease of the nipple, sometimes associated with a slight discharge, whether painful or not, is often mistaken for eczema. This was described by Sir James Paget as an early form of malignancy. Fissures occasionally form at the corners of the mouth or around the rectum. They may not heal readily. In such cases they, too, must be watched.

In any discussion of cancer we must guard ourselves against developing a cancer phobia (cancer fear). It is relatively easy to become introspective, constantly searching for something wrong. On the other hand, we must not be foolishly or ignorantly optimistic, disregarding early signs when the condition can be remedied so easily.

A few days ago I saw a woman in her early fifties with a rodent ulcer (skin cancer) over the right cheek bone. She had noted the development of the sore for many weeks and had applied eczema ointment without effect. Her husband was inclined to make light of the matter. Careful examination showed a rapidly growing malignancy. Fortunately, radium or X-ray or both will completely eradicate the disease, and in the stage observed she is in no danger of losing her life. Her case, however, would present a far simpler problem had treatment begun several weeks earlier.

Late treatment, though it may be effective, is costlier because it must be more intensive and be continued over a longer period of time.

The Federal Diary

Trade-Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

SIX States and the District are in excess of their quotas in the civil service, while 45 States and territories are below, it was revealed by the Civil Service Commission yesterday.

BAKER.

Massachusetts, Utah and Iowa have joined Vermont, Virginia, Maryland and the District in the excess column, as of May 1, 1935. The close proximity to Federal employment opportunities accounts for Virginia, Maryland and District citizens leading in number of jobs held.

Vermont's strength is traced to the high interest in Federal positions that arose with the Coolidge Administration. This is partially true of Massachusetts. It is recalled that Coolidge was a native of Vermont, but was elected from the Bay State.

Sparsely settled Utah has always had prominent statesmen in the National Capital, hence that accounts largely for that State's quota being filled. The reason for Iowa's being in the excess column is harder to explain. Probably due to Iowa's high rank in education, poor agricultural conditions, prominent statesmen of both parties being constantly in Washington—select one or all those factors.

The condition of State apportionment (in arrears) at the beginning of May, follows:

The Game of Life

By Priscilla Wayne.

Ellen Mallory gives up her promising tennis career, and her job, to marry Michael Dale. Mrs. Mallory had protested vigorously, showing the girl a sheaf of bills, amounting to $2,700, which they have no money to pay. Loyal to her family, Ellen signs a note for $500 at the bank and promises to pay $20 a month.

In spite of her mother's debts, Mike won't consider Ellen's going back to her old job in a real estate office. The first weeks of their marriage are not blissfully happy, chiefly because of Mrs. Mallory's refusal to have Mike in her house or to set her foot inside her daughter's new home. Aunt Ellen tries unsuccessfully, to placate Ellen's mother.

AUNT ELLEN did not add, although she might well have added, that the reason Ellen went as well dressed as the other girls was because of Aunt Ellen's sitting up late at her sewing table, studying to make modish clothes and get exactly the right chic lines out of this remnant and that remnant artistically combined together.

With a magnificent gesture Rose Mallory flung such ideas away even in the thinking. "And then what does she do? Runs off and gets married to a man that hasn't any more respect for me, any more regard for the sacrifices I've made than—than anything——"

Again Ellen tried to explain to her mother. "But Michael—Mama, how can you be so bitter toward Michael? Why won't you let him explain? Come over to my house tonight and talk with us. Just see for yourself. Michael is so reasonable and so kind——"

"Yes, he must be reasonable and kind," bitterly, "insisting that I take bankruptcy. Take bankruptcy! When everybody knows that's a disgrace, just deadbeat's way of getting out of an obligation.

Mother Still Protested.

"Mama, he never insisted. He just suggested."

"Well, suggested, then. That isn't any better. As though I'd repudiate obligations that I'd made honestly. That would be dishonorable. And yet my son-in-law wants me to be dishonorable. Well, I'd die first."

It helped, of course, that Mike's automobile horn sounded just outside. At least the summons enabled Ellen to get away from the interminable argument.

But the memory of it did not make for a joyful, peace filled evening.

There was a letter waiting for them from Clarence and Lou, driving up to spend the week-end. Would they be welcomed at the new home of the Micheal Dales?

Michael laughed and pointed to the date line. "Gee whizz, Ellen, that means they're coming tonight. Why look, they'll be driving in most any minute."

Too Good to Be True.

It seemed almost too good to be true, to be welcoming their friends in their own home. Mike tied on a big apron and opened the sideboard where Ellen kept her hope chest linen.

"Well, Mrs. Dale, I suppose we'll put on a little swank?"

"All the swank we've got. That means the Russian hand-drawn cloth and the napkins to match."

"Hot diggity. How am I to tell a Russian hand-drawn cloth from a mere any kind? Is it built on the five-year plan?"

But Ellen wasn't giving any attention to hand-drawn linen cloths. "Thank goodness, I got a roast big enough for four, and a kind Providence certainly watched over me when I constructed two cherry pies."

"Constructed is right," Mike said, admiring the pies. Why, these pies are perfect, Ellen, so perfect that they look as though you'd made them to a blue print and scale and everything."

Visitors Came.

Clarence and Lou came driving in then tooting the horn of their second-hand car and laughing with joy to see their friends.

It was a merry meal. The roast was perfectly browned, the vegetables appetizingly cooked. Everything was just right.

"Do you know, Honey," Mike said, "this is the first meal we've had in our own home entertaining married folks of our own age. Why, this is just wonderful. I get a greater kick out of it than I do out of entertaining the gang. Why, they're just like kids—but when one gets to be an old married man—well—it's 'different——"

Clarence nodded gravely. "I know. Married folks have more worth-while things to think about. That's what I tell Lou. We go with an unmarried gang down home. All they talk about is dances and 'have you seen the new show?'"

Lou Sounded Caustic.

Lou interrupted. Ellen wondered if she just imagined that Lou's voice sounded a touch caustic. "And all we talk about is whether we'll put the south field into alfalfa again this year and what the price of corn may be and how many bushels to the acre."

Clarence pinched her plump cheek carefully. "Right you are, darlin'. It means a lot to this family firm how much corn will sell for at this time next year. More, I guess, than ever."

Ellen knew what Clarence meant a little later when she and Lou washed the dishes in the tiny kitchen.

The boys were out on the lawn, looking over the outside of the house and Mike was pointing out to Clarence how well the little house was built. "But why shouldn't it be? I watched every brick and board go into place."

Not Very Chipper.

"You don't seem very chipper to me," Ellen said, never dreaming. "Aren't you feeling well?"

"No, I'm not," Lou had answered abruptly. "Ellen, I might as well tell you right now. You'll know it soon enough—I'm going to have a baby."

"And—aren't you—glad?" But Ellen knew, as she framed the words, that Lou wasn't glad.

"No, I'm not. I've cried my eyes out—but there isn't anything I can do."

They made an excuse to go upstairs and look at Ellen's new dress. Lou wanted Ellen alone so she could talk with her and Ellen knew it without ever waiting for Lou to say so.

"Come on down as soon as you can and we'll play a few hands of bridge," Clarence said, lighting a cigaret and finding a comfortable chair. "Mike and I will have a hand or two of rummy while we wait."

Lou Complains.

"So don't make it long, girls," Michael laughed. "I don't like to play rummy with this man. He always beats me. I've got a fairer shake against him when we play bridge."

"Clarence just loves his bridge game," Lou said, once safely around the turn of the stairs. "We used to go to an occasional dance—I just love to dance—but not now since his mother has come to live with us. She loves bridge, too, and since she's been at our house we can play three handed bridge. Sometimes I think I'll just scream, much as I love Clarence, when I have to sit hour after hour and night after night playing three-handed bridge with him and his mother."

Ellen tried to change the subject.

"Well, you'll have to calm down now—with a baby coming. Won't it be a thrill making all the wee, dainty things? And it will be something for Clarence's mother to look forward to, too. She'll be easier to live with."

Not at All Pleased.

"That's just where you're wrong," Lou said bitterly. "I thought she'd be awfully pleased—she's raised a big family herself. Clarence has four brothers and three sisters."

"And she wasn't—pleased?"

"Pleased?—why say—you'd have thought we'd commited a crime. I didn't mean to tell her—meant to keep it a secret just as long as I could. But Ellen, Ive been so sick—she guessed it right away. And she talked just awful. She said Clarence might as well forget all about the future he had ahead of him—if he was going to be hampered with a wife and family—"

"Why, Lou, how terrible." But Ellen was wondering what her own mother would have to say if she had any such confession as Lou's to make to her.

"You mustn't think of those things," Ellen said. "Just be as cheerful as you can. It's going to be wonderful—having a baby—just the same."

15 Are Rescued As Bus Bursts Into Flames

Driver and Porter Awake Sleeping Passengers Near Salisbury, Md.

By the Associated Press.

Salisbury, Md., May 6.—Fifteen passengers of a Norfolk-New York bus narrowly escaped death five miles south of here early today when the vehicle caught fire.

Quick work by the driver and the porter of the coach, who aroused most of the passengers who were sleeping and carried several others to safety, probably prevented loss of life.

When flames burst from the battery box Huge Hitchens, driver, made a futile attempt to extinguish the blaze, then joined Earl Hunter, Negro porter, in arousing the occupants.

The interior of the vehicle was reduced to a charred mass by the rapidly spreading fire and personal effects and some of the baggage were destroyed.

Another bus, which arrived soon after the fire, took the passengers to Philadelphia.

Virginia Group To Hold Parley On a Sales Tax

Merchants, Food Dealers, Educators, Realtors to Discuss Plan.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., May 6.—Advantages and disadvantages of a retail sales tax in Virginia will be discussed Friday in Charlottesville when representatives of the Retail Merchants Association, Virginia Education Association, Virginia Real Estate Association and Virginia Produce and Food Distributors Association meet at the Farmington Country Club for two days of discussions.

Otto Hollowell, of Norfolk, secretary of the Virginia Association of Realtors, will attend the meeting, and Walter L. Fentress, Norfolk, will represent the produce and food distributors.

The merchants are on record as opposed to the sales tax system in Virginia on the ground that the burden of taxation would be placed on the poor man, but the real estate group favors legislation creating a sales tax on the ground it would help the Commonwealth to assume some of the cost of public instruction.

The education association, although not on record as to its position, is understood to be favorable to the sales tax.

At the conclusion of discussion of the sales tax, realtors will consider the Virginia regulatory license law, challenged by A. J. Chewning, Richmond realtor, in a letter to Gov. Peery declining an appointment as a member of the three-man commission administering the law.

James Dusenbury, of the underwriting and realty division of the Federal Housing Administration, on Saturday will discuss the sources of Government money available for instruction in real estate development.

Nice Will Ignore U. of Md. Dispute

Criticizes Zucker Charges Against Pearson.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 6.—Charges against Dr. Raymond Pearson, president of the University of Maryland, made by Dr. A. E. Zucker in resigning his post as head of the university's department of modern languages, will receive no official recognition from Gov. Nice, that executive indicated today.

Dr. Zucker declared Dr. Pearson has lowered academic standards at the university and lacks interest in research. Gov. Nice termed these charges an "utterly unjustified and unfair attack" and said he would leave consideration of the entire matter to the university's board of regents.

It was pointed out that a committee of the board already has undertaken an investigation of the university, particularly its organization, scholastic standing and the extent and nature of its services and general effectiveness. The probe, it was said, was undertaken at Dr. Pearson's request.

College Park Hears Nice Hit Agitators

Governor Tells Students Demagogues Create Public Hysteria.

Omicron Delta Kappa Makes Him Member at 'Tapping' Rites.

"Today is the day of the policy of ill-advised and destructive experimentation, a policy which will result in public hysteria," Gov. Harry W. Nice yesterday told a University of Maryland student assembly at College Park.

Delivering the main address at the spring "tapping" ceremonies of the university's chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary fraternity, he described hysteria as "that natural mother of the demogogue and tyrannical political dictator."

"These demagogues and dictators confuse and confound our minds through their ever-changing panaceas constantly suggested, advanced and forced upon us as a cure for every ill to which mankind is heir.

"We vainly search for a modern Moses to bring economic order out of the impenetrable wilderness of the present day chaos, so potentially a menace to agriculture, labor, business and finance."

Honorary Membership Conferred.

Gov. Nice, who was received into honorary membership in Omicron Delta Kappa, paid tribute to the fraternity as an organization devoting its "ability, thought and endeavor to the finding of a solution of the pressing problems now confronting the Nation."

He continued with an anti-climax on the subject of demagoguery, declaring that "our people must be taught to distinguish between demagoguery and leadership; between false prophets and the advice of those who chart the way to constructive achievement."

"We must inaugurate a 'homecoming' to the homely and honest principles of our pioneer forefathers, to the principles of government through constitutional limitations.

"Our public officials must be taught to fairly and equitably legislate in the interest of all rather than to attempt the regimentation of divergent and antagonistic groups, productive of unrest in each."

The ceremonies were opened with the annual installation of Student Government Association officials, Warren Tydings, retiring president, presided. He turned his office over to Louis Ennis.

Denzel E. Davis, retiring president of the fraternity, presided at the "tapping." The list of students who were "tapped" for membership included Robert Beall, Hyattstown, Md.; Walter Webb, Vienna, Md.; Thomas Robertson, 636 Quebec place northwest; Walter Lohr, Baltimore; Sidney McFarren, Baltimore; James F. Zimmerman, Frederick, Md.; Frank S. Hofteck, jr., Sparrows Point, Md., and J. Herbert Brill, Baltimore.

Capt. Everett Upson, military instructor at the university, who is leaving this summer for a new post in the Hawaiian Islands, also was received into membership.

Members of the relay track team, who captured first place at the recent Penn relay carnival, made their official presentation of two plaques and a cup to Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the school.

The meeitng was closed with the presentation to Mrs. Nice of a bouquet of flowers by the coeds of the schools, and the acceptance of office of Frank Duggan, of Baltimore, incoming president of Omricon Delta Kappa.

U. S. Reveals 'Liquor Ring' Sugar Deal

Shipments of Materials to Virginia County Are Cited.

Norfolk's Plot Trial of 23 Persons to Last Another Month.

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., May 6.—Adding machines clicked as hard-working Government counsel assistants, in the aftermath of today's statistical session of the trial of an alleged Franklin County conspiracy, assembled an array of figures pointing to the shipment into the county since 1927 of millions of pounds of sugar, corn meal, rye meal and other materials.

Beginning the third week of the trial of 23 defendants, expected to occupy possibly another month, Government counsel questioned witnesses who told of the shipment of huge quantities of materials—which the defense said had nothing to do with conspiracy—by train and by truck into Franklin.

Samuel R. Hill, Norfolk & Western Railway Co. chief auditor of revenues, who told of the large rail shipments to five points of delivery—Ferrum, Rocky Mount, Lanahan, Prilliman and Henry—said sugar shipments have been negligible since the beginning of 1935, during the time the grand jury was meeting at Harrisonburg.

He also said that he had not checked the voluminous records from which his statements were prepared for any duplication as to shipping points.

What items Franklin stores used was revealed by W. N. Shearer, the seventy-first Government witness and the last today. He said that the Rocky Mount Grocery & Milling Co. had furnished Willard R. Hodges, a defendant, or Hodges' Glade Hill garage, with these articles over the period 1929-1934:

Three hundred and twenty-five thousand pounds of corn meal, 81,700 pounds of rye meal, 820,000 pounds of sugar, 15,598 5-gallon tin cans, 323½ boxes of a brand of yeast unlike that of which 35 tons went into Franklin, it was testified last Friday; 24 cases of hops (30 pounds to the case), and 50 50-gallon and 9 10-gallon kegs.

Richmond, Va., May 6.—Allocations of $783,839 for their general relief programs during May were made to the counties and cities of the State today by the Virginia emergency relief administration, as Gov. Peery was formally advised from Washington that the State had been granted $1,738,255 in relief funds for the month.

The Federal grant is to cover all phases of the general and special relief programs during the month, while the allocations made by the VERA to localities are for general relief and administrative expenses only.

Allocations for rural rehabilitation and other special programs will be made in the next few days, State relief officials announced.

The May allotment is the second largest amount to be granted Virginia in any one month by the FERA. In April, the sum granted was $1,628,310, while in March the grant was slightly in excess of $1,900,000.

Death Is Imposed In Assault Case

Second Colored Man Convicted in 7-Hour Trial.

A colored man was convicted of criminal assault and sentenced to hang yesterday after a trial in Montgomery County Circuit Court lasting less than seven hours. He was accused of assaulting a young white girl in Chevy Chase, Md., last September.

The man, James Poindexter, was taken to the Baltimore penitentiary immediately after the trial. He wore leg-irons and handcuffs, and each of his hands was chained to a policeman. He will be kept in solitary confinement until he is executed. His companion in the crime, Alexander Jones, has already been sentenced to death.

The girl testified against Poindexter, as did five colored persons. The only defense witness was Poindexter himself, who denied the crime. The trial was held before a bench of three judges after Poindexter waived jury trial.

Receipts Tax For Maryland Faces Threat

Merchants Hold Section Is Illegal, Voiding New Gross Levy.

Counsel Hired to Study Alleged Retroactive Payment Rule.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, May 6.—Retail merchants probably will test the constitutionality of Maryland's new 1 per cent gross receipts tax on the ground that one of the rulings under which it is being collected makes the tax retroactive, it was learned today.

The ruling in question is one regarding installment buying. It has been held that a merchant must pay the tax on receipts from charge accounts during the month in which the payment was made, even if the purchase actually was made prior to enactment of the gross receipts levy.

For example: If a merchant sold a suit of clothes last December, but did not receive payment until after April 1, he still would be liable for the tax on that payment. Since the sale was made prior to enactment of the bill, some merchants contend that collection of a tax on it would, in effect, make the law retroactive.

Retail merchants of the State have employed the Baltimore law firm of which United States Senator Millard Tydings is a member to study the tax with a view to contesting its constitutionality. No formal statement has been issued in connection with the proposed contest, however.

The tax is the backbone of the plan devised by the recent legislature to finance the State's relief program. Without the tax it will be impossible for Maryland to raise relief revenue and a special session of the general assembly will be necessitated.

By the Associated Press.

Easton, Md., May 6.—Two of Comptroller William S. Gordy's "good will ambassadors" arrived in Easton today for a two-day stay to explain to merchants the working of the new 1 per cent gross receipts tax.

The representatives, F. Guy Murray and Carroll E. King, are to be in Denton Wednesday, Centreville Thursday, and Chestertown Friday and Saturday. They will help merchants unravel questions concerning payment of the tax.

Students to Help Salisbury Normal

Dr. Blackwell Lays Out Plan for Enrollments.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Salisbury, Md., May 6.—With a view to increasing enrollment in the reorganized State Teachers College here, Dr. J. D. Blackwell is urging students to visit high schools from which they graduated, make contact with principals and students and explain the new curriculum of the local institution.

In an announcement to the student body the new president, who succeeds Dr. William J. Holloway, resigned, stated that the school started with a two-year course planned for the training of elementary school teachers, but that, beginning this year, the school offers a four-year curriculum leading to the degree of bachelor of science in education and now ranks as a college. It was previously classified as a State normal school.

The first two years consist of regular academic training, Dr. Blackwell said, and the final two years are devoted to the training of elementary teachers through professional subject matter courses and direct teaching. Formerly State director of vocational education, Dr. Blackwell was immediately preceded in his present post by T. J. Carruthers, head of the department of education, who filled in the period following Dr. Holloway's resignation.

Music festivals in celebration of Music Week vie with flower shows for precedence this week.

In Hagerstown, Md., the music celebration opened Sunday morning with a special program by the Trinity Lutheran Sunday school orchestra. Today students of Estelle Young in piano and violin will give a concert in the afternoon and vocal students of Charles M. Cassel will hold a recital in the evening. Tomorrow, the Imperial Institute of Violin, under the direction of Kenneth Stewart, and piano students of Regina Feigley will present programs.

At the recent meeting of the National Federation of Music Clubs, held in Philadelphia, Gertrude Lyons was elected to the board of directors.

A sweepstakes prize was awarded to M. C. Wilson at the recent flower show held by the Woodbridge (Va.) Garden Club. The last week in May has been chosen as the time for the flower show to be held by the garden section of the Women's Club of Manassas, Va.

Many of the garden clubs in both Maryland and Virginia have become interested in the teaching of the fundamentals of gardening and plant lore in the public schools and to this end three members of the Winchester and Clarke County Garden Club, Mrs. Blackburn Smith, Mrs. Frank V. Tilford, and Mrs. Frank M. Wray, acted as judges in an exhibit of flowers in seven rural schools.

Under the direction of Mrs. L. W. Burus and Mrs. William A. Rooker, the garden section of the Women's Club of Martinsburg, W. Va., will hold a picnic and tour today.

The St. Thomas Business Men's Club of Orange, Va., held its monthly meeting last night at which Judge Alexander T. Browning, retiring president, turned over the chair to R. W. D. Taylor, recently elected head. The meeting included a dinner, followed by a speech by Carter Walker, of Woodberry Forest.

Mrs. A. W. Davis will be hostess to the Women's Club of Pleasant Grove, Md., today at a meeting featuring a current events program.

The Gerrardstown Women's Club of Martinsburg, W. Va., will be entertained today by Mrs. Allen Dunham. Miss Ruth Dunham is in charge of the program.

L. F. Zerkel, of the Homestead Subsistence office of Luray, Va., will speak to the members of the Women's Club of Page County, Va., today on the homestead project in Page County.

Mary Pickford Transfers Talents to Stage as Jolson Contemplates Film Offer

Form Reversal One of Freaks Of Profession

Times Causes Quaint Quirk Famous Plays Closing; About Showshops.

Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

What the picturesque patois of the profession denominates "show business" is an institution of odd quirks. By the peculiar potency of its artistic alchemy it finds it possible simultaneously to transmute one of the screen's legendary figures into an actress of the legitimate stage and one of the stage's foremost singing comedians into a figure to be known henceforth solely as a star of the cinema and radio. These would be Mary Pickford and Al Jolson.

Wire announcement from Hollywood, so hot that it still sizzles, brings word that Miss Pickford, whose name encompasses more of the romance of the motion picture than any other can boast, will appear soon on the legitimate stage, touring the Pacific Coast for a period of six weeks.

Miss Pickford has signed a contract with Henry Duffy, former Washington impresario — who, in partnership with Arthur Leslie Smith, launched Anne Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose" on its way to the theater's most fabulous run in the old President Theater, at Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue—to play in "Coquette," which she once did in pictures and which Helen Hayes, Washington's distinguished star, created on the stage.

May Desert Films.

It has been rather more than vaguely hinted that Miss Pickford's future career will lie behind the footlights instead of before the cameras and microphones. She is said to have other things of a theatrical, rather than cinematic, nature under consideration.

"Coquette" will mark the first full-length play in which Mary Pickford has appeared since the age of 16, when, first in the National Theater in this city and later on Broadway, she appeared in the role of Juliet, the blind girl, in David Belasco's production of "The Good Little Devil," opposite Ernest Truex, just then laying the foundation of his reputation as the stage's perennial juvenile.

Since "Secrets," her last picture, was completed and released several years ago, Miss Pickford has made a series of personal appearance tours in brief dramatic sketches and enacted several roles in radio broadcasts. There have been repeated rumors, in the meantime, that she has been in search of a suitable play and contemplated transferring her talents from the screen to the stage.

It was in the film version of "Coquette," incidentally, that Miss Pickford made one of her greatest financial successes in what then still were called the "movies." Her personal share of the profits of the film are reputed to have amounted to approximately $300,000.

The stage tour in "Coquette" under the Duffy aegis will begin in Seattle, Wash., on Monday, May 20.

Massa Jolson Steps Out.

Now then, about this ol' Massa Jolson fellow, for years the traditional embodiment of the spirit of the New York Winter Garden and known the universe around as "the world's greatest entertainer"—which he pretty nearly was—when he stepped off the Twentieth Century in New York a few weeks ago with a tin can full of "Go Into Your Dance" (now continuing its local downtown run at the Metropolitan) and a new Warner contract, the future opened to him what may be said to be vistas.

In addition to his work as a minnesinger and an actor, word from the Golden State indicates that Al will also very likely become supervisor of all the musical motion pictures produced by Warner Bros. and First National. If that comes to pass, one of the most experienced hands in show business, especially the musical end of it, will virtually insure the affiliated companies of more melodic films that will lilt as amusingly and entertainingly as the songs sung by Al and Ruby Keeler (Mrs. Al, of course) in "Go Into Your Dance."

Aside from being glad to get back to New York, Al also was glad to be able to keep on working—his new radio broadcast series started almost immediately.

"I can't quit," he said. "Gotta keep going. Lots to do. I wish I could take a real rest for a while, but something keeps me hitting the ball. I can't take time off. Maybe I'm just naturally a nervous guy."

Of course, he's nervous, but no one would call Jolson just plain nervous. It's nervous enthusiasm. When Jolson interests himself in something, and there's never a moment when he's not interested in something, he devotes an enthusiasm to his subject which would be exhausting to other people. Right now he is enthusiastic about "Go Into Your Dance" and his radio work. He thinks his new picture with Ruby is one of the best he's ever made.

Al was less expansive about the possibilities of his becoming a supervisor of all of the Warner-First National musical films. He wasn't sure that he would take that job, although he was flattered at the studio's tribute to his experience in, and knowledge of, show business. On the stage since he was, as he says, "a tadpole," his rise to the topmost rank was characterized by as varied an experience as it has been the lot of any entertainer to have. His familiarity with all divisions of his specialty on both stage and screen led to the decision of Warners to offer him the new job.

If Jolson accepts the post of supervisor of musical films to be produced at the Warner and First National studios he will have the highest rank in the screen's world of song and dance. The responsibility of carrying on the famous line of musicals begun with "Forty-second Street" and which "Go Into Your Dance" brings up to date will rest with him entirely.

Will Also Play.

The studios, however, do not care to lose his services as an entertainer in their productions, so he would also continue to sing and act in at least one of their musical features each year. His present schedule for picture-making is for one a year so that he may also heed the call of the radio fans for another part of the year.

While Al would not commit himself definiately to any statement as to the future activities either of himself or his wife, he was positive that he would fulfill his radio contract, with eight broadcasts to originate in New York, and that Ruby would complete her Warner Brothers-First National agreement which still has a long term to run.

The possibility of their teaming again has been given a rather decisively affirmative aspect by the great success that has attended the public showings of "Go Into Your Dance." If they can make another one as good as that, they better had!

In contradiction of the original announcement that "Children of Loneliness" would be the second attraction at the newly reopened Little Theater on Ninth street, Manager Sam Cummins now makes known that beginning tomorrow "Birth, or Sins of Love" will be presented to exclusively feminine audiences. This film made in Zurich, Switzerland, has already attracted favorable attention in the West and is being shown in Washington for the first time. It is said to be both dramatically impressive and valuably educational. It is supplied with a complete set of English titles and will be supplemented by another screen feature of unusual content.

Miss Cornell to Europe.

Katharine Cornell will end her New York season in the Martin Beck Theater on Saturday night of this week, May 11, with John van Druten's "Flowers of the Forest." She will sail on the S. S. Ile de France on May 18 to meet her husband, Guthrie McClintic, in Paris. Presumably, she then will proceed to her favorite haunt in the Bavarian Alps for the summer.

Thus it comes about that George Bernard Shaw's "Candida" will not be seen by Manhattan audiences this season. Having produced "Romeo and Juliet," "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "Flowers of the Forest" this winter, the actress-manager has decided not to make a fourth production this spring.

Beginning in October she will make a three-month tour in "Romeo and Juliet," the National Capital, happily, being included in her itinerary.

Was a Serious Effort.

Mr. van Druten's "Flowers of the Forest," of course, was a disappointment. None of the professional reviewers who attended its premier in Baltimore, I think, and certainly none of the "death watch" that reviewed it in New York had quite the temerity even to hint that the play would be a hit.

But it was a drama of such obviously serious intention, so excellently played and so impeccably staged that it was deemed by a majority worthy of being sat through in its entirety, respectfully considered as a conscientious, if unsuccessful, authorial effort and another example of Miss Cornell's irrepressible willingness to undertake those things which she deems to be a credit to the playhouse.

Her viewpoint, fortunately, extends into artistic precincts of the theater slightly beyond the building-line frontages of the box-office.

That familiar voice that came over the wire a moment or so ago from the publicity offices of the Loew interests in Washington, presided over by Lou Brown, was Jack Hurford's, down from Detroit for a brief visit with his mother and grandmother and going on today to New York, whence he will return Wednesday to set sail again for Detroit on Thursday night. Jack will be recalled as the black-haired sheik who served formerly as assistant manager of the Fox Theater in this city and for the past several seasons has been filling a similar capacity in the capital of motordom. Upon his unheralded reappearance in Washington, the secretarial Miss Weber, I dare say, went into a faint!

Travelogue.

Last Saturday night's closings of successful seasons of New York runs and road tours included, in addition to the Theater Guild's "Rain From Heaven," with Jane Cowl, John Halliday, Lily Cahill, Jay Fassett and Jose Ruben, in Pittsburgh, the long trek, following 42 weeks on Broadway, of "Dodsworth," starring Walter Huston, which called it a day in Rochester, N. Y.

These two suspensions set in motion a great deal of traveling.

Miss Cowl and Miss Cahill are rushing about preparatory to their departure for London to view the premiere of Miss Cowl's new play, "Hervey House," in His Majesty's Theater on May 15; Mr. Halliday is a little more leisurely taking his time about sailing back to his home in Hollywood. Mr. Huston is following Mr. Halliday's lead, but by slightly different modes of transportation.

Drives New Car.

He will travel with that vigor which characterizes his stage portrayals, not covering the 3,000 miles back to California in the superior luxuries of an extra-fare train, but in the new automobile he purchased while playing in Detroit. With him will be his wife, Ann Sunderland, also featured in "Dodsworth," as Washington well remembers.

After another season in "Dodsworth," which will open in Chicago in the fall, Mr. Huston will go to England to play the title role in Gaumont-British's film, "Cecil Rhodes," one of five historical pictures planned by that progressive company.

Plans for the summer ? vacation and a chance to play his favorite game, golf, and get at his hobby of furniture making in the workshop of his California home.

Manager Hardie Meakin of RKO-Keith's Theater is so sure of the superlative quality of his next attraction, "The Informer," starring Victor McLaglen, that he is screening it at private preview for the dramatic desks in the projection room of the Fox Film Exchange tomorrow afternoon at 2. This is reported by the subterranean and grapevine routes to be the first production supervised by Bob Sisk, formerly in charge of advertising and publicity for RKO-Radio Pictures, but a few months ago elevated to the post of producer in the West Coast studio of the company. It will be nice if his first picture is as swell as Bob is.

Dots and Dashes.

Since Dave Apollon's last appearance here about two months ago, he has been awarded the honorary degree of M. M.—Master of the Mandolin—by The School of Music of New York City. . . . I wouldn't be sure that what he plays is not a balalaika! . . . He still gets that floral tribute from a local admirer every time he plays here. . . . Friday, after the first show, along came a box of roses. . . . What is there about this guy? . . . Two new acts are with his "International Varieties" since the last engagement on the same stage. . . . That would be Loew's Fox. . . . One is Tommy Martin, the 25-year-old magician who does all—or almost all—of Cardini's stuff. . . . Appeared for 17 consecutive weeks in the Empire Room of the swanky Palmer House in Chicago. . . . The Japanese fan and eggs tricks are of his own invention. . . . Not done by any other contemporary practitioner of the black arts. . . . Other new act with the revue is Gene, DeQuincey and Lewis, the burlesque adagioers. . . . Gene is the lad who crunches celery stalks before every stage appearance. . . . Celery is supposed to have a steadying effect upon the nerves. . . . Boy, a bunch of celery hearts. . . . Preferably from Kalamazoo, Mich., the original "Celery City." . . . Roy Roberts, leading man of the National Theater Players, when he strolls up Pennsylvania avenue of a Saturday evening, is apt to be all trigged out in springs greys. . . . Last Saturday, anyhow. . . . Wish I'd felt as well as he looked! . . . And I didn't feel so badly, at that. . . . Panjandrum Cochran, of the National Players, on another jaunt to New York. . . . Dotted-lining a guest star or two for his season against the coming of the hotter weather, one imagines. . . . Nova Pilbeam in "Little Friend" the next attraction at the Belasco. . . . Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Federal Mint, will be "Mother of Honor" at today's Mothers' Day luncheon of the Variety Club in the Willard Hotel. . . . When I win that Studebaker that is to be awarded to the lucky voter in the club's drive for a charity fund, under the chairmanship of Sam Wheeler, I'll come take you riding. . . . On second thought, I probably won't. . . . I'll sell you the car for a few live dollars. . . . Mr. Wheeler, in case you haven't heard, is Washington manager of Fox Films Corporation. . . . It is in his projection room where we preview all those films. . . . Carter Barron, Loew division manager, and Harry Lohmeyer, manager of the Earle, are "Kings for a Day" at today's Variety going-on. . . . Wish I could be there. . . . Probably I will. . . . Not that it matters.

Memory-of-Long-Ago Note.

The summer of that house party at Diamond Lake, Mich., back about the time of the Indian wars, since we were speaking of Studebakers, it was one of the playful pranks of Clem Studebaker, jr., to race his Cadillac against the Grand Trunk trains from South Bend, Ind., to Cassopolis, Mich., the Diamond Lake stop. And sometimes he won!

The Studebakers, at the time, were still devoting their mechanical skill to surreys, phaetons and farm wagons.

Those were the happy days—except the one on which we skidded and did five complete revolutions on a slippery South Bend street!

That was where I lost my life, if the details of my untimely demise have been hazy in your mind.

Prizes for Plays

Plans for a national playwriting contest, to be sponsored by the Blackfriars Guild, were announced last evening at the guild's social meeting held at the Hotel Burlington.

The contest, which it is hoped will be able to start with the 1935-36 collegiate year, will be open to any full-length plays, with the only proviso that they must be at base philosophically sound.

First prize will be $1,000 and the second prize $500.

The speaker of the evening was the Rev. Paul Hanly Furfey, acting head of the department of sociology of the Catholic University of America, who took for his subject "The Catholic Stage as a Medium of Social Teaching."

The dramatic high spot of the evening was the presentation of E. Francis McDevitt's one-act, "The Adorable Crank," prize winner in Fordham University's 1926 contest. In the cast were Clarence Wittler, Julian Zier, Mary Crowley, Jack Victory and Mr. McDevitt.

Ethel Roddy sang several charming ballads, accompanied by Gertrude E. Walter.

"BROADWAY BABIES." Independent Burlesque Association production in two acts and 26 scenes, with Clyde Bates, Jack Hunt, Parker Gee, Fred Bishop, Lew Black, Harry White, Lillian Dixon, Margot Lopez, Mary Weldon, Irene Ross, Nora Ford, Shirley Mac, Lucille Wayne, and the Dancing Bryanettes. Book by Gus Fiala; dances routined by Frank Bryant. Staged by James J. Lake. Reviewed Sunday matinee by W. A. Whitney.

Time was and, for that matter, still is, when either the team of Bates and Hunt or of Black and White could easily be counted on to provide sufficient hilarious comedy for an entire show. With a waning burlesque season, and the consequent availability of talent, good Col. James J. Lake makes Washington's patrons of the girls-and-music shows the beneficiaries of the overstocked market this week, bringing both teams as the principal stars in "Broadway Babies."

And what a show they put on! Of course, there are well executed ballet routines and specialty artistes sandwiched in to break the steady stream of comedy; but, with Clyde Bates, Jack Hunt, Lew Black and Harry White working in top form, it really takes more than the dynamically ebullient Nora Ford, supplemented by Margot Lopez, Lillian Dixon, Mary Weldon and Irene Ross, to make any appreciable dent in the telling effect for that comic quartet.

The Gals and Straights.

Not that these gals are not good, for they are, and on a bill less starstudded with comics would be quite the ace attractions.

Fred Bishop, who is held in high esteem for his tenor voice, and Parker Gee, a barytone of no mean quality, are the straights who abet the comic four.

To Shirley Mac (no K, please) and Lucille Wayne should be handed a cuppla orchids apiece for their solo, acrobatic and ballet divertisements. The dancing Bryanettes and their routines are pleasing.

This Is 'Good-By,' Not Sign of Spring!

Because young folk only get like this when love is in bloom, this idyllic bit of camera art gives a first impression of being something along the line of "Spring is here." On the contrary, it is only Maxine Doyle, former mistress of ceremonies at the Earle Theater, and Robert Armstrong, grinning handsomely at each other because they have just finished their roles in "The Mystery Man," a Monogram production for early release. Maxine was loaned by Warner Brothers to Monogram for this picture in which she had the distinction of being co-starred with the considerably more experienced Mr. Armstrong.

The Gossipel Truth

Hollywood, May 6.

KATHARINE HEPBURN to play "Hamlet." A scenario of William Shakespeare's play is now on its way to Jock Whitney, and if all plans are approved this will be Whitney's big flicker to follow "Becky Sharp" . . . Miss Hepburn has expressed her willingness to be Hamlet . . . Myrna Loy is on her way for her first visit to New York. All is not quiet over at the Ralph Forbes-Heather Angel mansion . . . Alice Faye, who has just purchased a new home with a swimming pool, will help pay for it by collecting a heavy bit of money for appearing on the Ben Bernie program . . . The Sammy Lees are out of step and will be divorced . . . When Anna Sten invites you to a party she makes you sit on the floor . . . Regardless of the many females Edmund Lowe may escort about town, the genuine gal friend is Rita Kaufman . . . Cecil B. DeMille had to act and say a few lines in a trailer for "The Crusades." He blew up in his lines several times—and the actors and actresses he had been hollering at for doing the same thing let him have it with hee-haws.

Bing Crosby, Dixie Lee and the twins were offered $25,000 by Paramount to appear in a brief scene for "The Big Broadcast." But Bing vetoed appearing with Dixie, and Dixie wouldn't let the twins appear in a flicker . . . Gordon Westcott and Betty Furness have resumed their old romance . . . Jed Harris may be associated with Josef von Sternberg in the making of a picture; at least they are discussing it . . . Jed Harris may have to spend three days in Pasadena jail. Some months ago he got a ticket for speeding but ignored it. Then he was requested to appear in court and pay the fine, but Jed decided to fight the case. It's the old story of "For Gawd's sake, pay the $2."

HELEN TWELVETREES and husband Frank Woody are mumbling cross words to each other . . . Dave Gould is carrying a big diamond sparkler which he is going to give to Eleanor Powell when he starts to direct her in a dance number of "The Broadway Melody." Gould knows he doesn't stand a chance with Miss Powell, but he wants to show her he cares . . . Lionel Stander was hurried to the Coast to appear in "Hooray for Love" because he was heard on a radio program doing a Greek dialect. It was after Stander was signed that the producer realized that he wanted Parkyakarkus of the E. Cantor program . . . The Lyle Talbot-Peggy Watters romance has cooled again—if you're interested in the hot and cold running Hollywood romances . . . Marcel Lamaze, the Broadway favorite, is now in complete charge at the swanky Clover Club . . . "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean" will be made into a feature flicker by Mascot. Al Shean will be the Mr. Shean and the Mr. Gallagher will probably be played by Skeets Gallagher . . . The dime chain letter gag is the big nuisance here now. The kids rob your mail box to open the letters for dimes.

* * * *

Warners are still trying to get a suitable shooting script out of that weighty novel, "Anthony Adverse" . . . Sheridan Gibney has been working on scenarios for months and months—and they now have more scenario pages than there are in the novel. However, Gibney went East to visit Hervey Allen and let him read the final script, which Warners didn't like . . . Allen read the scenario and liked it so much that he told Gibney he would even appear in a short, telling what a grand job he had done in transplanting the novel to script form . . . And now Warners are angry with Hervey Allen, because he liked the scenario they believe is bad . . . Irene Dunne was first offered the feminine lead in "Peter Ibbetson." She returned the script saying she liked it and would play in it if they would find a spot in it for her to sing a song . . . Ann Harding was hired for the job.

* * * *

ROWLAND BROWN and the Countess di Frasso have cooled . . . Jack La Rue and Connie Simpson, who are off again, on again, are now on again . . . Ray Noble was employed by Paramount at $1,000 a week for ten weeks to write tunes for "The Big Broadcast." Mr. Noble left Hollywood without supplying a tune, but returns shortly to Paramount to appear with his orchestra in that flicker. Marylou Dix, former Broadway night club doll, is now under contract to Metro . . . Olive McClure, who came here to keep Bertram Traylor from being lonely, will remain to play a bit in the flicker, "Shanghai" . . . Francis Lederer doesn't go anywhere—well, practically anywhere, without Mary Anita Loos . . . Rosalind Culli, who will make her screen debut as George Raft's leading gal in "The Glass Key," is kept busy these evenings by Abey Dreyfus.

The title of the show Moss Hart and Cole Porter are writing is "Jubilee," according to a postal card Moss wrote to a friend here. Moss labeled the postal card, "personal and confidential" . . . Harold Arlen and Irving Berlin were playing songs for each other one evening last week . . . Berlin said to Arlen, "Of all the songs you have written, one of your best is 'I Love a Parade.'" Arlen was delighted. He answered: "I love a parade too—if it doesn't pass me by." . . . While Michael Balcon, the English producer, was in Hollywood he signed Peter Lorre and Boris Karloff, those two horror men, to contracts to make a flicker for him in London. Lorre has this clause in his contract: "Each day, before work, he has the right to go into Karloff's dressing room and frighten him."

Group Heads Urge Larger Pensions

Virginians Favor Aiding Confederate Veterans.

Richmond, Va., May 6.—The commander in chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans and the commander of the Army of Northern Virginia today announced their approval of a proposed move to ask the next General Assembly for an increase in the pension for Confederate veterans.

Walter L. Hopkins, commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, said there are 550 veterans on the pension rolls of Virginia and that the basic pension is $30 a month, with a slightly larger amount paid to those totally disabled.

There are 3,800 widows of veterans on the rolls, being paid at the rate of $10 a month.

Lieut. Gen. W. McK. Evans, commander of the Army of Northern Virginia, asserted it was "a shame" that Virginia has paid the veterans only $30 a month.

Idle Chisox Take League Lead as Red Sox Trim Indians, 2-1

Ostermueller Victorious In Duel

Bests Oral Hildebrand; Singles in Almada in Winning Rally.

All Other Contests in American League Are Rained Out.

CLEVELAND, May 6.—The Cleveland Indians yielded first place in the American League to the idle Chicago White Sox today when they dropped the first game of their series with the Boston Red Sox, 2 to 1, as Fritz Ostermueller outpointed Oral Hildebrand in a mound duel.

The defeat was the Indians' fourth setback in 13 games and left them with a percentage of .692, as compared to .733 for the White Sox, who have dropped four of their 15 contests. Rain forced the postponement of the Chicago-New York game as well as all others in the American League.

Ostermueller, Boston's sophomore southpaw star, held the Indians in check with six hits, fanned six and drove in the winning run in the seventh when he lined a single to center to send Mel Almada across the plate. Hildebrand allowed only one more safe blow, but was not quite as effective with men on bases.

Red Sox Take Lead.

The Red Sox got away to a lead in the opening frame when Max Bishop coaxed a pass out of Hildebrand, advanced on Bill Werber's sacrifice and scored on Roy Johnson's single. That was all the scoring until the sixth, when the Indians knotted the count on a base on balls to Sammy Hale and Bruce Campbell's pop double.

Joe Cronin's men were not long in taking the lead again, however. Almada led off with a single, moved to second on Babe Dahlgren's sacrifice and set the stage for Ostermueller to win his own game with a single.

Nats, Browns Stymied by Weather

Correspondent Is Moved to Laughter by Air Account of Game.

By Shirley L. Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 6.—What is there to say? By this time everybody knows that the Nats and Browns were rained out today, and everybody knew last February when the American League schedule was printed that the two clubs are supposed to meet tomorrow, so I won't bring that up.

I'll tell you right now, this story isn't worth the telegraph tolls. If you are looking for news, brother, you can quit right now. There ain't none. And, furthermore, after those two defeats in Chicago, Bucky Harris and the Washington players are about as talkative as the fellow whose friend didn't know the gun was loaded.

There is no sense trying to kid anybody, like that fellow who was broadcasting today's game between the Braves and the Pirates at Boston tried to do. I mean the fellow who was reading the play-by-play account off the studio's telegraph ticker and tried to make the radio listeners believe he was at the ball game.

Setting the Record.

When the game got exciting he had studio hands turn on that phoney phonograph record and you'd hear the crowd cheering. Those were the same cheers you heard if you listened to the Army-Navy game, or last fall's World Series, or the Kentucky Derby, or my own broadcast of my greatest thrill in sports. The way the radio people fake those cheers in and out of the broadcast is deceiving, sure nuff, but they are still the house cheers.

Well, the announcer pulled a faux pas today in the ninth inning of the Braves-Pirates game at Boston. He was wearying of it all himself, I guess, when the finish came, because when Cy Blanton struck out the last home-town hitter to win the game for the Pirates, you heard, if you were listening, a new high for sportsmanship.

You heard the home-town crowd send up a deafening cheer as Les Mallon struck out to kill the home-town team's last hope of winning the ball game. I guess up in Boston it mattered not who won or lost, but how you played the game, or something.

If, as and when the Nats take the field against the Browns, they will find the enemy thoroughly rested for the occasion. The Browns haven't played a ball game since, let me see, a week ago tomorrow. The lay-off

Derby Winner Placed in Special Stall; Begin Workouts Today.

By the Associated Press.

PIMLICO, Md., May 6.—The arrival today of Omaha, Kentucky Derby champion, gave a mighty impetus to racing interest here as preparations were speeded up for running the Preakness Saturday.

The strapping 3-year-old son of Gallant Fox made the long trip from Churchill Downs without a scratch. He was hurried to the Maryland Jockey Club's plant, where he is scheduled to begin workouts tomorrow.

Hardly had George Tappan, assistant trainer, finished installing Omaha in a double-screened stable to insure him against fretting before a new sharp challenge was sounded to the William Woodward colt for Saturday's classic.

It was in the form of a telegram from Louisville that Nellie Flag, the sturdy filly, which was the popular favorite, but ran fourth in the Derby, had been shipped and would be here early tomorrow. Warren Wright, her owner, asserted she was banged around and blocked in the Blue Grass classic and intimated she would be a more dangerous rival of Gallant Fox's son next Saturday than she was last.

The husky daughter of American Flag will have ample precedent for winning in the example of her famous dam, Bud Fisher's Nellie Morse, which topped the Preakness field in 1924.

Although Omaha was predominantly the favorite, keen horsemen pointed out there was a large field of Preakness eligibles out of which might come one to conquer him. Some expressed the opinion that balmy weather for the Preakness, compared with the chilly drizzle in the Derby, might give an advantage to some which failed against him Saturday.

Several of his Derby competitors came in today. Among them were Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' big bay gelding Commonwealth, Fairfield Stable's Sun Fairplay and Brandon

Pirates' 3 Runs In 9th Defeat Braves, 8-6

Capture Opener in Series; Hoyt, Blanton Hurl Well in Relief.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, May 6.—A three-run splurge in the ninth inning plus fine relief hurling by Waite Hoyt and Cy Blanton, gave the Pittsburgh Pirates an 8-to-6 decision over the Boston Braves in the first game of their series today.

The Pirates went into the final frame by trailing by one run, but Larry Benton, who had pitched scoreless ball after relieving Flint Rhem at the start of the third, was unable to hold the Corsairs at Bay. He passed pinch hitter Babe Herman to start the innnig. Floyd Young ran for Herman and, when Lloyd Waner connected with a double for his fourth hit of the game, raced to third. Wally Berger made a shoe-string catch of Paul Waner's short drive to center, but Young crossed the plate with the tying run.

Forrest Jensen followed with a sharp single to left, putting brother Lloyd on third. That was all for Benton, and Huck Betts was called to the rescue. He intentionally passed the hard-hitting Arky Vaughan. Manager Traynor grounded to Joe Coscarart, but Sophrer dropped the throw at the plate as Lloyd came in with the run that put the Pirates in front. Jensen then tallied with the third run of the frame after Gus Suhr's long fly.

Everett Beats Brown By Decision

Wins Unanimous Verdict in Furious Bout at Auditorium.

Barnett Tops Collucci Linkham Is Winner Over Wade.

BUCK EVERETT, the Gary (Ind.) iron puddler, turned professional boxer, took a unanimous decision from Natie Brown, Washington heavyweight, in a fast and furious ten-round main event at the Auditorium last night.

Barnett Beats Collucci.

Steve Barnett, former Western Maryland University heavyweight, hammered out a split decision over Steve Collucci, a squat New York noggin-knocker, in a six-round semi-final. Barnett, with a good knockout record behind him, might have added another to his score had he ben able to straighten the short one out of an ezaggerated crouch, which made him very, very difficult indeed to hit—and just as boring to watch. Judges Di Sibour and Schuyler voted Barnett; Referee Sullivan, Collucci.

Leroy Zinkham, heavy-hitting Baltimore lightweight, took a split six-round devision from Jimmy Wade in the best preliminary on the card.

Zinkham, who won on a technical knockout from Jimmy the last time they tangled, was unable to floor the Florida boy, but he go the vote of Judge Frank Schuyler and Referee Sullivan. Judge Henri di Sibour voted for Wade and The Post scoresheet showed Jimmy entitled to no worse than a draw.

Miller Stops Woods.

Baby Miller, Silver Spring, Fla., Seminole Indian lightweight, won a third-round technical knockout from Joey Woods, of Newark, in a set to scheduled for six rounds. The Indian southpaw clearly outclassed Woods from the opening bell. In the third, the Newark lad was floored for a nine count with a long left to the jaw. He arose to run into another which sent him down for seven and his seconds tossed in the towel as blood streamed from his right eye.

Andy Martin, a veteran Boston featherweight who still retains much of the youthful sparkle which once carried him to the top, pounded out a unanimous six-round decision over Johnny Canzoneri, of Allentown, in a lop-sided six-rounder. Martin had Canzoneri on the floor for two counts of nine and once for no count in the first round and kept the situation well under control thereafter, despite a cut eyelid which made him blind in the left eye from the fifth round on.

Joe Teems, flashy Florida featherweight, took a unanimous decision from Frankie Consolo, of New York, in a one-sided six-rounder which opened the program.

Fight Pilot Bankrupt.

Cincinnati, May 6 (AP).—Daniel F. Davis, boxing promotor who formerly was manager for Freddie Miller, N. B. A. featherweight champion, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy today. He listed liabilities of $8,432.66, and assets of $3,929.41, of which $2,058 was in insurance.

Baer 'Loses' His Title! Americans Get Laugh

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The International Boxing Union tonight "deprived" Maxie Baer of the world heavyweight championship, thereby blasting his plans for a European crown clash with Max Schmeling and causing widespread abdominal guffaws in American fistic circles.

The European ring rajahs, meeting in Paris, removed Baer's title because of his alleged failure to agree to defend it against Pierre Charles, of Belgium, a pug who has been campaigning for ten years with little success. The deadline for Maxie's acceptance was 6 o'clock tonight, according to Paris cables.

This action will have no effect upon Baer's championship standing in the United States, because the union's edicts are not binding upon American boxing organizations. But those edicts are law throughout Europe, and they can prevent Baer from meeting Schmeling in London or Rome in August. The German promoter, Walter Nothenburg, offered Maxie a $300,000 guarantee for such a bout, and Maxie is mighty interested in it.

As far as America is concerned, its just one of those things.

President Edward C. Foster, of the National Boxing Association, told the United Press at Providence, R. I.: "The International Union's action is a huge joke. But it doesn't matter over here, anyway. We do not recognize the union. We severed all connection with it two years ago. And Pierre Charles, of all people! Why, he hasn't been any good for years. We've got half a dozen heavies who could rock him to sleep in a couple of rounds."

Likewise, Brig. Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York commission, enjoyed a moment of merriment. While Phelan didn't exactly say so, it was evident that he figured at last other boxing officials were challenging New York's "three dumb dukes" for the blundering championship.

"Baer's still champion in New York State," Phelan said. "And this surprising action in Paris will

Fate Aids McLarnin; Misses Crash in Air

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, May 6.—The Barney Ross-Jimmy McLarnin welterweight championship fight to be held at the Polo Grounds here on May 28 well might have gone blooey today. McLarnin was on the first section of the New York-bound T. W. A. plane flight whose second-section ship crashed near Macon, Mo., killing United States Senator Cutting, of New Mexico, and three others.

The plane in which the Vancouver fighter flew from California was forced down last night in Arizona, but with no ill effects for either passengers or ship, and it took off again and made Chicago. There, however, McLarnin, who had been expected to fly on to New York, transferred to a train and will arrive here tomorrow morning.

Ruth Shoved In Center Of Muddle

Will Become Manager of Braves if He Sees Too Little Action.

Fuchs, if He Can Pay Off Adams, Will Retain Bill McKechnie.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, May 6.—Like most innocent pawns on financial chess boards, the one and only Babe Ruth, head cold and all, today was placed right in the "middle" of the Boston Braves muddled affairs.

But that dread spot probably will prove less uncomfortable to the Babe than it is to most of the others who find themselves in such a plight.

He has a 50-50 chance of being rescued but, strangely enough, if he wins, he is going to lose.

Would Become Pilot.

On the other hand if he loses, that is, if enough aches and pains keep his aging frame out of enough lineups, he will realize his dream of becoming a major league manager by August 1.

But if the Babe plays more or less regularly and keeps the customers pouring in through the gates, as he has been doing since he joined the Braves, he is going to provide enough money to enable Emil

Firethorn, Preakness Candidate, Romps to Victory at Pimlico

$9.70 Choice Beats Field In Stretch

Colt Wins Going Away; League Runs Second, Furfiber Third.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Baltimore, Md., May 6.—While Omaha, the Derby winner, stood in his stall just off the back stretch, Firethorn, Walter M. Jeffords' candidate for the Preakness here Saturday, toyed with a formidable field this afternoon over the mile-and-a-sixteenth course, making his first start of the year, the stocky-built, black colt left eight horses, six of them also Preakness candidates, in his wake.

Legume, the property of Ambassador Breckinridge Long, was closest in the dash for the wire, being a length and a half behind the flying Firethorn, which was not whipped, or even energetically ridden at any stage. Third, and another head away, came Furfiber, not named for the Preakness, but installed the public choice.

Demonstration, How's Chances, Thruster, Brown Twig and Cold Shoulder were in the sadly trounced group of eligibles for Maryland's classic, bringing up the rear.

Given an Easy Ride.

Jockey C. Rosengarten rode Firethorn, which is trained by Preston Burch, the Washington horseman. He had no difficult task either. It was a case only of finding clear sailing for the colt that is likely to go to the post coupled with Commonwealth Saturday.

Rosengarten eased Firethorn along during the first part of the race while Legume and How's Chances fought for the lead. The Jeffords' colt was no better than seventh as the field banked into the back stretch. Nearing the far turn, Rosengarten began bringing the colt up on the outside and it was apparent he had the race well within his grip.

Firethorn steadily and surely cut down the leaders. In the stretch, Firethorn galloped past the wild scramble of whips and horses to win going away.

Firethorn paid a $9.70 mutuel and it might be a good idea to look at that price three or four times for it may be a long time before you see that figure on this colt.

Despite the fact that the betting was light for the day, the daily double set a record for Monday, when $19,571 was played on the double wager. Last Saturday's $710 pay-off proved good missionary work, for the "doublers" came early and piled the cash in until the windows closed.

However, there was no fortune in the double today. It paid a low figure of $15.50, which did not match a parlay on the two heavily played winners, Mr. Pete and Smear.

Motley Wins Glencoe.

Motley won the day's secondary feature, the Glencoe, merely bouncing to the finish line ahead of Prince Abbot and Cohort Miss. Motley won like a 1-to-100 shot and paid a $10.10 mutuel.

Mr. Pete, the favorite, asserted his superiority over the cheap field that competed at 6 furlongs in the first race. With "Skinny" Fallon in the saddle, Mr. Pete took the lead at the far turn and outgamed Adam's Eve in the stretch run. Arctic Lad closed ground from a slow start to be third. The winner paid $7.20 and was timed in 1:16 2-5.

Mediocre steeplechasers competed in the second race over the 2-mile brush course and the trip proved an easy one for Matagain, the property of L. H. Drennan. The veteran mare forged to the front on the second trip around and won by some 30 lengths despite an apprentice rider. The boy, E. Mitchell, almost lost the purse by rushing his mount despite his long lead and the horse barely missed falling at the thirteenth and last jump. Flying Feathers, the Winmill-Baltazzi entry, was second and Mid Valley third. The only mishap came at the sixth fence when the favored Brad fell. Jockey E. Christian was not injured. Matagain was a $11 mutuel.

Smear Scores in Third.

Smear, made the favorite, while carrying Apprentice L. Piker, scored a decisive victory in the third race. The aged son of Mad Hatter looked like Man o' War in this field, going to the front when called upon and breaking through the stretch ahead of Dunfern. Retribution was third in the field of nine. O'Neill tired after setting the early pace. Smear was a $5.50 proposition.

My Colin, a son of the old E. B. McLean color bearer, ran out of the maiden class in the fourth race to defeat among others the well-liked Vanderbilt entry of Nouveau Riche, which was second, and Sobriety, which was third.

Someone Else, excellently ridden by Sonny Workman, won the seventh race by length from Dixie Dora, which had the same margin over Justa Flight. Someone Else was the favorite at a $6.70 mutuel.

Heiress won the finale from Pretty Wise and Gloritone.

ADAMS EVE followed close to the winner from the beginning, gained command in the closing furlong, but failed to rally under a hard drive. ARCTIC LAND bettered her position on the outside and came with good courage in the final drive. HIGH CHAIR saved a lot of ground, but could not threaten. CORA KAY went well. NERVY NELLA was unable to reach the leaders. LONE MISS was held safe. TODY CON would not extend herself in the footing.

SECOND RACE—Two miles. The Serleboy Steeplechase. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:52. Off at 2:53. Winner, L. H. Drennan's ch. m. (6), by Woodstone—Mattie Morgan. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $125; third, $75; fourth, $50. Time, 3:58 1-5 (13 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MATAGAIN, $11.00, $6.00, $5.00; FLYING FEATHERS (entry), $6.20, $2.80; MID VALLEY, $21.20.

MATAGAIN, reserved off the pace for the first mile, went to the leaders boldly, assumed command at the tenth fence, then opened up a commanding lead to win with much in reserve. FLYING FEATHERS went forwardly placed, fenced gamely and held on well to outstay the others. MID VALLEY raced prominently from the beginning, then responded with good courage in the final drive. BAD BOB went into contention after a mile, but tired and swerved badly coming to the last fence. WHITE LIGHTNING could never threaten. ELECTION DAY went wide most of the trip. CAPSTAN tired badly when the real issue came. MADAME WARD weakened badly after going a mile. BRAD lost his rider at the sixth fence.

THIRD RACE—One mile and 70 yards. The Homeland Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:22. Off at 3:23½. Winner, D. J. McAuliffe's b. c. (a), by Mad Hatter—Paint Brush. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:16 4-5, 1:43, 1:49 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMEAR, $5.50, $3.30, $3.00; DUNFERN, $6.70, $5.90; RETRIBUTION, $10.10.

SMEAR, restrained back of the leaders for the first six furlongs, circled the leaders when ready, opened up a winning lead when straightened into the home stretch, but was shaken up slightly approaching the finish. DUNFERN, slower than usual to settle in his stride, bettered his position stoutly in the last half-mile, and closed gamely. RETRIBUTION responded willingly when placed to a drive and came gamely under punishment. TEENIE R. gained fast on every contention, but faltered in the closing furlong. O'NEILL took command midway of the back stretch, but failed to stay when challenged. BARBIZON went well for six furlongs. VIVA PETE stopped as did HIDDEN LORE.

FOURTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. The Gittings. Purse, $900; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:50½. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MY COLIN, $7.70, $4.10, $3.20; NOUVEAU RICHE (entry), $2.50, $2.60; SOBRIETY (entry), $2.60.

MY COLIN, beginning quickly, stalled off persistent opposition from SOBRIETY, drew clear when reaching the home stretch, and held NOUVEAU RICHE safe in the closing drive. NOUVEAU RICHE raced on the inside during the opening furlongs, fell back approaching the home stretch when her stablemate was rushed up to the pace, then came again and was second in last few strides. SOBRIETY had a lot to offer to challenge the winner in the first quarter-mile and she tired in the closing drive. HIATUS could not better her position. PACKAGE and OLD IRONSIDES were outrun.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. The Glencoe. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:18. Off at 4:21½. Winner, H. Massey's ch. g. (3), by Hourless—Queen of Wenonah. Trained by E. Anthony. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time 0:24, 0:49 1-5, 1:15, 1:41 3-5, 1:46 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOTLEY, $10.10, $6.40, $3.50; PRINCE ABBOT, $11.20, $4.50; COHORT MISS, $2.70.

MOTLEY, saving ground and kept close up with the leaders in the early racing, challenged strongly when reaching the home stretch, took command with a rush, and drew out as if much the best. PRINCE ABBOT, stoutly restrained for the first six furlongs, raced MANAGER BILL into submission, but could not stay when the winner challenged. COHORT MISS worked her way up slowly and came with good courage. MANAGER BILL was used up racing SPIXI into defeat and tired. INDIAN RIDE raced in spots. FOUR SPOT was held safe. SPIXI stopped.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Prep. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:50. Winner, W. M. Jeffords's b. c. (3), by Sun Briar—Baton Rouge. Trained by P. M. Burch. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:49, 1:14 3-5, 1:42, 1:49 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIRETHORN, $9.70, $6.40, $3.60; LEGUME, $5.30, $3.60; FURFIBER, $3.30.

FIRETHORN, eased off the pace after reaching the back stretch, bettered his position stoutly while on the outside, took command when straightened into the home stretch, and then drew out in the closing furlong under slight pressure. LEGUME could not resist the pressure. FURFIBER, rated within striking distance of the leaders, closed courageously under a hard drive. DOKAS followed close to the pacemaker, responded nicely when shaken up and fought it out gamely. BROWN TWIG could not improve his position in the final drive. COLD SHOULDER was never a factor. HOWSCHANCES raced in the deepest footing throughout. DEMONSTRATION didn't fancy the footing.

SEVENTH RACE—Four and a half furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. The Garrick. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates for all but Lady Huntington. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:28½. Winner, E. K. Bryson's b. f. (2), by Masked Marvel II—Helen T. Trained by H. Baker. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50, 0:56 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOMEONE ELSE, $6.70, $4.60, $3.10; DIXIE DORA, $9.70, $6.30; JUSTA FLIGHT, $3.50.

SOMEONE ELSE favored by improved handling, went up fast when approaching the home stretch, wore JUSTA FLIGHT down and came out slowly in the final drive. DIXIE DORA raced strongly while holding a forward position, responded to punishment and outfinished JUSTA FLIGHT. Latter was hard urged to gain command in the first quarter-mile, but tired under punishment in the final drive. FLAG RAISING could not better his position. FLOWER SHOW was unable to menace the leaders. SQUAWKER weakened after reaching the home stretch. ZOIC lacked early speed. JOHN TIO tired. STOCK ARMS was never a factor.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:53. Off at 5:54. Winner, E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HEIRESS, $11.90, $5.30, $4.20; PRETTY WISE, $4.50, $3.40; GLORITONE, $3.20.

HEIRESS, hustled to the front going to the first turn, was rated along until nearing the home stretch, was placed to intermittent punishment during the stretch drive and drew out steadily. PRETTY WISE swung to the outside entering the home stretch, moved up fast, but weakened during the closing furlong. GLORITONE went promptly and held on gamely in the closing stages. SUN SPEAR weakened after making his effort in the last three-sixteenths. JIM BROWN had speed in spots.

Five Pros Qualify to Join Cruickshank in Japanese Matches

Treder in Tie At 144 With Houghton

Loving, Walper, Barnett Are Other Members of P. G. A. Team.

By Dave Herman.

THE Middle Atlantic Professional Golf Association team which will meet the Japanese all-stars on June 2 at Kenwood's course will be composed of the following players.

Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, captain; Al Houghton, of Kenwood; Al Treder, of Manor; Benny Loving, of Farmington, Va.; Leo Walper, of Bethesda, and Bob Barnett, of Chevy Chase.

Cruickshank, an automatic qualifier, spent yesterday leisurely at his hawking grounds, the Country Club of Virginia, but the rest of the boyls had to put in 36 holes of hard work over Kenwood's layout before they earned their berths.

Tie at 144 Each.

Houghton, the favorite, and Treder, who says little, but lets his golf sticks speak a plenty, tied for the medal with scores of, 144, each, 2 over par for the qualifying grind.

The diminutive Loving, who shot the last 18 holes in 69 for the most brilliant round of the day, wound up with 145.

Walper, professor of a driving range, pacesetter in the morning round by virtue of his even par 71, finished with 146, and the red-haired Barnett finished one stroke back of him, nosing out Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree pro, by a single shot.

Only five qualifying places were open.

Roland Mackenzie, Congressional pro, counted on as a sure qualifier, could do no better than 81 in his morning round, and called it "quits." His failure to qualify was the biggest disappointment of the day.

Although par for the 36 holes proved invulnerable, there was plenty of brilliant shooting, Loving's 34—35—69 was a thing of beauty, and came within 2 strokes of tying the competitive course record, which Willie Goggin, San Francisco pro, set in the National Capital Open last fall. It was a brilliant finish to a faulty morning round of 76.

Six Hurts Score.

Were it not for a six on the 488-yard twelfth, where the Virginian overshot the green with his third, Loving would have wound up in lower figures. He collected five birdies in his dizzy afternoon tour, pitching stone dead for a three on the eleventh, sinking a 10-footer for a three on the sixteenth and knocking his iron within 4 feet of the seventeenth pin for a birdie deuce.

Houghton also came through with some sparkling shooting in the final round. Plagued by an old-time putting disease, Houghton failed to click in the morning when he scored a 74. In the afternoon Houghton was 1 under par until he struck the seventh, where he took a 5, and finished 2 over for the next two holes to go out in 37. Houghton birdied the twelfth and thirteenth, got his birdie 3 on the fifteenth, and, with a chance to tie Treder for the medal, sank a 15-footer for another birdie 3 on the home hole. Such shooting gave him a 33 for a 70.

Seven Birdies for 18.

Treder's morning round was made up of spectacular and indifferent golf. He had seven birdies for the 18, making five of them on the incoming nine for a 72. The Manor pro collected four more birdies in the afternoon to score another 72. He stood on the thirty-sixth tee needing par for a 143 and the medal, but took three to reach the green and finished with a five.

Nine threes were made by Leo Walper, who had to sink a 10-footer on the home hole for a birdie 3 to finish with 146. A five on the short seventeenth ruined his chances for tying for the medal. Barnett finished with 5 on the home hole.

The veteran of the lot, Fred McLeod, still proved his worth as a master trap shot player when he holed out a 40-footer for a birdie 3 on the seventh hole of the afternoon round.

Colonials Trim Davis-Elkins Nine, 4-3

Johnson's Single in Ninth Provides Margin in Third Victory.

WITH Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, umpiring on bases, George Washington's nine yesterday defeated Davis-Elkins, 4 to 3, in a well-played game on the Ellipse. It was the Colonials' third consecutive victory.

Lefty Johnson's single scored Melpoder from second base in the ninth inning to swing the pendulum of victory toward the home team. Melpoder opened the inning with a single and moved up to second when Webb drew a pass.

Vince DeAngelis twirled for the winners and turned in a creditable performance after the second inning, when the visitors scored all of their runs. An infield error, walk, and hit batsman put three Davis-Elkins runners on the pathways, and DeAngelis brought them home by pitching singles to Gainor and Winter.

Winter hurled for Davis-Elkins and, in addition to a good performance on the mound, connected for three hits in five trips to the plate.

Tech, Eastern Battle Today For Right to Remain in Race

By John R. Vosburgh.

EITHER Tech or Eastern will be all but jolted out of the interhigh baseball race this afternoon. With ominous twin hurdles in the form of Roosevelt and Central still in the paths of both teams, a defeat today will be about as big a help to the loser's championship chances as a suit of armor to a 100-yard sprinter.

When hostilities begin at 3:30 o'clock at Eastern it will look very much like an equation, with an unknown quantity on the one side in the person of Eastern and a fairly well-known quantity in the person of Tech on the other.

On the basis of its record, Eastern actually is not such an unknown quantity, for it has lost three games out of five. In view of the tendency, however, of Eastern teams to explode at unexpected moments in the face of their opponents, it is not only an unknown quantity which takes the field today, but a rather dangerous quantity.

Chief Charlie Guyon helped to heighten this suspicion yesterday by adopting a Socratic mien and answering questions by asking riddles.

For instance, if you would ask him whether he thought he would beat Tech he would ask you, "Why not?" After all, that is not a bad answer. "Why not?" he shot back without batting an eye when asked whether Eastern would retain its title.

"No," said the chief growing a bit more wordy. "By golly, I can't see why we won't beat Tech, or beat all of 'em."

With Lefty Joe Sullivan pitching for Eastern, the chief has a good argument, but Coach Ed Foxley is all set with some strong rebuttal in the form of Bill Liggett or Specks Elgin. Tech has lost only one game this year, that to the Georgetown Freshmen, and this, together with the fact that Coach Foxley has a big edge on veterans available, is sure to add some zest to the occasion.

It will be the defending champion's first start in the series and Tech's second. The Techmen beat Western, 13 to 7, in the opener last week, preceding Roosevelt's upset, 11-to-3 win over Central, Friday in the second series game. Eastern has lost to Alexandria, 2 to 0; Marblehead (Mass.) High, 6 to 4, and to the Georgetown Freshmen, 20 to 2. It scalped Episcopal, 9 to 4, and Army War College, 11 to 8. Tech has beaten Episcopal, 6 to 3, the Navy Plebes, 1 to 0; Marblehead, 12 to 11, and Washington-Lee, 3 to 0—in addition to Western. It lost to the Georgetown Freshmen, 12 to 3.

Clearly, Tech is the logical favorite but Eastern is not a logical team.

Galvin, Richmond, Hits 3 Home Runs

Richmond, Va., May 6 (AP).—The Richmond Colts today took advantage of costly errors and pounded out 15 hits, including 4 home runs, to outdistance the Charlotte Hornets, 13 to 9, in a Piedmont League slugging bee here.

Big Jim Galvin, Colt catcher, rammed three circuit drives into the James River, and the fourth Colt homer came from the bat of Center Fielder Frank Rogers.

Senor Levaque, the Bee shortstop, also sent a pair to the fence for round trips.

Richmond pulled seventh and eighth inning rallies that netted 9 runs from only six hits. The Bees were leading before those two innings, and when the rally started were enjoying an 8-to-4 advantage. Two errors, three hits, including Galvin's second homer, and a base on balls were good for 4 runs in the seventh. The Hornets went ahead by 1 run in their half of the eighth, but the Colts rushed over 5 runs in their half of the inning.

Center Market And Gulf Win Openers

Acacia and Peoples Drug Nines Are Beaten in Capital League.

BUCK GRIMES and his mates from the Center Market hit everything except the first-ball toss of John A. Remon, assistant manager of the C. & P. Telephone Co., to slug out a 11-to-4 victory over the Acacia Insurance nine, and Gulf Refining Co., behind the two-hit pitching of Waple, staged a garrison finish to nose out Peoples Drug Store, 3 to 2, yesterday, as the National Capital League initiated its second season under the banner of The Washington Post Sandlot Baseball Association.

Carl Wolverton, second sacker of the Marketmen, led the hitting assault with a pair of home runs beyond the reaches of the North Ellipse diamond. He was closely pressed for honors by Healy, Tonker, Robey, Atwell and Dave Kaplan, all of whom took conspicuous roles in the 15-hit barrage which had accumulated a lead of 7 runs for the Market nine in the first three rounds.

Drugmen Take Lead.

Arch McDonald, radio sports announcer, tossed out the first ball in the Gulf-Peoples Drug Store game. The Drugmen, in the first three innings, took a lead of 2 to 0, but the Gulf hitters fell upon the offerings of Pitcher Packett and Rice in the final inning and pulled the game out of the fire with a thrilling 3-run rally.

Erman, Johnson and Babington were the leaders in this last-minute scoring spree. Darkness halted both games at the end of the fifth inning.

G. U. Prep Nine Wins From Rockville, 16-3

Georgetown Prep pounded three pitchers for 13 hits yesterday afternoon to trounce Rockville High, 16 to 3, on the Garrett Park diamond. It was the winners' third victory in five starts this season. A 9-run assault in the second inning marked the peak of the Prep attack, with Berwin Morse slugging a long homer to deep right-center with two on bases. De Sales Powell, versatile golfer-ball player, held the high school to six hits.

Dog Show Set Near Easton On June 2

Washingtonians Will Have Entries in Club's First Licensed Event.

By M. W. Meier.

CONSIDERABLE local interest is being evinced in the Talbot County Kennel Club's open-air show, which is to beld on Bruff's Island, near Easton, Md., Sunday, June 2. The event, an all-breed affair, will be held on the estate of Mrs. S. S. Schuyler, a 40-acre tract of shaded lawns.

It will be the first official A. K. C. licensed show ever held by the club and because championship points will thus be afforded, several Washington dogs will be entered. Considering the size of Easton, the premium list is little short of amazing, with cash and silver trophies up for practically every breed.

To Benefit Hospital.

Last year the club had more than 400 entries and attracted no end of attention from Eastern Shore society. This year's event will be staged as a benefit for the Easton Emergency Hospital and promises to be a gay affair.

The list of judges is comprised of such prominent authorities as Dr. Thomas B. Snyder, Dr. H. B. Kobler, Charles W. Berg, W. Fred Ford and Frank Downing, as well as Mrs. U. G. Van Ness and Mrs. W. Fred Ford.

Dr. Zerbee in Charge.

Cumberland Plans Fight Card Friday

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 6.—Plans for the Casey A. A. ring card here Friday night are taking definite shape in the matching of a quartet of local leather pushers with four members of the Pittsburgh Boy's Boxing Club team.

Because of the expense of importing the Smoky City clouters, it has been decided to limit the card to eight battles, four intercity clashes and four between topnotch performers of Cumberland and vicinity.

The feature will be the fight between Leo Sweeney, Allegheny Mountain A. A. U. lightweight championship for two years, finalist in that class at the National A. A. U. championship tourney at St. Louis, last month, and "Wild Bill" Niland of this city, South Atlantic A. A. U. title holder. Sweeney defeated Niland at Connellsville last summer.

Episcopal Held To 5 Hits, but Wins, 7-6

Scores Over Shenandoah; Hammersley Is Signed by Manassas A. C.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., May 6.—Episcopal High School, limited to five scattered singles, won its second game of the season this afternoon, downing Shenandoah Valley Academy, 7-6, in seven innings. The locals produced timely hits and capitalized allen errors in running up their scores.

Tom Kite, Cadet twirler, struck out 12 Episcopal batters, but the poor field play of his teammates nullified his good work.

Baker, Cadet catcher, was the batting star of the game with a home run and a double in three trips to the plate.

Derby Winner Arrives From Louisville in Special Car.

Stable's Tutticurio—none of them finishers in the money at the Downs.

Horsemen looked to several non-Derby starters for sharp competition here Saturday. Included in this list was Col. E. R. Bradley's Black Helen, W. M. Jeffords' Firethorn, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Gillie and William Dupont's Rosemont.

Nellie Flag Leaves For Preakness

Louisville, Ky., May 6 (AP).—Nellie Flag, the filly which unsuccessfully challenged the colts in the Kentucky Derby Saturday, left today for Pimlico, Md., to renew her challenge in the Preakness next Saturday.

Unwilling to concede superiority, even to Omaha, the Calumet Farm miss plans to give the Woodward colt another run for honors in the Preakness Stakes. After the Kentucky Derby, in which Nellie Flag encountered poor racing luck and ran fourth, it was thought she would remain at the Churchill Downs meeting and try her fortunes in less severe tests. Trainer Bert Williams went over to Calumet Farm Sunday and after a conference with Warren Wright it was agreed to ship Nellie to "Old Hilltop."

"Nellie didn't run her race," said Williams on his return. "I didn't see the race, a misplaced ticket and the mad rush shutting me out completely. But after a conference with Eddie (Jockey Arcaro) I am convinced she didn't have much chance.

"She was banged at the start by Plat Eye, ran into another jam at the lower turn and blocked when making her move between the half-mile and three-eighths poles. After that she couldn't regain her stride, and seemed to sulk.

"Omaha may prove himself a great horse—they tell me he won under wraps—but you know that with an even break they're not going to beat my Nellie in 2:05. She came out of the race in grand form. The effort didn't hurt her a bit."

Another filly will challenge Omaha at Pimlico, Col. E. R. Bradley's Black Helen. She won the Florida Derby and beat the same Roman Soldier which finished second to Omaha at Churchill Downs.

Whitehill Pitches If Nationals Play

hasn't affected the attendance here materially, inasmuch as the attendance figures at the Browns games were always being confused with the number of hits in the box score, but Manager Rogers Hornsby is anxious to learn if his boys have outgrown their uniforms.

In fact, the Browns are setting some kind of a modern American League record for St. Louis teams. They haven't lost a game in a week. Of course they haven't played a game in a week, but why rub it in? For a team that lost eight straight before the rain stopped them, that is something like a streak of moral victories.

When, as and if the Browns and Nats do get together, something has got to give way. It will be a triple collision between the two-game losing streak of the Nats, the eight-game losing streak of the Browns, and the six-day streak of the weatherman. With his moist delivery still in the sky, the weatherman is the favorite.

As the afternoon papers probably told you Earl Whitehill, for the Nats, and Buck Newsom, for the Browns, will be pitching opponents if they have a ball game here.

The American League's vital statistics show that the Nats are in fifth place, three games behind the lead, with their record of eight victories and eight defeats. But what they don't show is that the Nats are the most shut-out team in the league. Half of those eight defeats were shutouts, by Welch, of the Red Sox; Wilshire, of the A's; Gomez, of the Yanks, and Whitehead, of the White Sox.

G. W. Tennis Team Swamps V.P.I., 9-0

It was stormy weather yesterday for Virginia Poly's netmen, who suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of George Washington's racquet wielders in their match at the Columbia Country Club. The Colonials swept the entire program, winning by a 9-0 score.

Singles—F. Howard (G. W.) defeated E. Van Dyck (V. P. I.), 6—1, 6—1; T. Pierce (G. W.) defeated J. Lindsay (V. P. I.), 6—4, 3—6, 6—1; J. Dial (G. W.) defeated W. Buchanan (V. P. I.), 6—2, 6—2; W. Georgetown's powerful Freshman ball team won its fifth straight victory of the season yesterday, battering three Western High pitchers for 20 hits and a 16-to-4 victory on the Hilltop diamond. Home runs by Tommy Nolan, former Eastern High three-sport star; Karl Nau, former Tech athlete, and Al Cavadine featured the collegians' drive. Maryland Nine Today Faces Virginia

THE merry men of Maryland, who have won their last eight baseball games, will have it out with Virginia's nine this afternoon at College Park, while American University is entertaining Davis-Elkins at Griffith Stadium. Maryland swings into action at 4 o'clock, an hour after the American game gets under way.

The only other collegiate items on the docket are tennis matches, one between Maryland and V. P. I. at College Park and the other at Baltimore involving Johns Hopkins and Georgetown.

Physioc to Hurl.

Ambidextrous Steve Physioc, who started something he couldn't finish in the Georgetown fray, probably will be given another opportunity this afternoon. If he fails to start, Vic Willis will pitch. The matter is really trifling so long as Charley Keller continues to knock in five and ten runs a game.

American will be the underdog against the Methodists, who displayed plenty of power against George Washington yesterday, although finally emerging a loser. The Eagles appear to be none too strong, and if the dope runs true are in for a tough afternoon.

Baer Is 'Relieved' Of His Ring Crown

have no effect upon the Baer-Braddock title fight on June 13. The winner will be champion, regardless of the union's ruling. I thought Max Schmeling was the outstanding European contender, anyway."

The cables did not explain just why Pierre Charles was named the outstanding challenger, over Schmeling, Walter Neusel, Primo Carnera and Jack Petersen, who have been far more prominent recently.

After declaring Baer's title vacant, the union immediately announced plans for an elimination tourney to determine Maxie's successor. It expects Schmeling, Neusel, Carnera and ancient Paulino Uzcudun to be among the entrants.

Chairman Phelan of the New York outfit remarked that it was an amusing coincidence—this European heavyweight action, coming right on the heels of the Illinois commission's edict that the winner of Friday night's battle between Lou Ambers and Tony Canzoneri would not be recognized as lightweight champion.

"I spent 15 minutes assuring Ambers' manager at today's meeting that Friday night's winner would be world champion—and now I'm questioned about Baer's title," Phelan said.

Ancil Hoffman, manager of the champion now in training at Asbury Park, N. J., said he had received a notice from the union warning him that action would be taken in behalf of Charles, but that he regarded it as a joke.

"When Max was still a novice he used to knock Charles out every day in training," Hoffman said, "and if he couldn't hold up as a sparring partner what kind of an opponent would he make in a title fight?"

Regime Foes Brand Slav Vote 'Swindle'

Government Claims Three-Fifths of Parliament.

By the Associated Press.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, May 6.—The government of Bogolyub Yevtich announced today that yesterday's parliamentary elections gave the government three-fifths of all mandates, while the opposition leaders termed the official figures "a swindle."

The final count was reported as 1,600,000 votes for the government and 900,000 for the opposition. Already the air was filled with charges that much of the vote count was irregular.

The government disregarded the accusations as "baseless complaints of disgruntled losers," and announced that the official figures showed the government actually won 221 mandates in parliament. Because of a queer law which gives the victors more than they win, the government will come out with more than 300 seats, while the opposition will get between 40 and 60.

Rail Ruling Gives Stocks Brief Uplift

Profit Taking Sets in Soon After Decision Is Announced.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 6.—The stock market response today to the Supreme Court rail pension decision was something of a wet firecracker, a sort of diminutive pop followed by a half-hearted fizzling out.

The high court ruling against the carrier pension payments, sweeping as it was, had been awaited by many for weeks past as the thing needed to set the market winging. The news was followed by a rally in rail stocks that was the victim of profit taking within less than a half hour. The volume was 1,025,340 shares.

At their best, rail stocks were ahead fractions to a point or so after the judgment was rendered, while by the close of trading most carrier shares were fractionally lower, with several issues off a point or so. Secondary rail bonds fared a little better with many up a point or more at the finish.

Most Wall Street economic observers thought they saw the explanation of the indifferent market response to the rail news not only in the court's long delay, which had taken the edge off the speculative spirit, but, more important, in the poor current news on the carriers.

The seasonally declining trend of heavy industry, with the consequent likely falling off for some weeks in freight haulage, was also considered a factor.

Old Crop Sales Reduce Cotton

Closings, Low for the Day, Show Declines of 7 to 15 Points.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 6.—Old crop liquidation pulled down cotton prices today following early steadiness. The market closed barely steady at net declines of 7 to 15 points.

Early fluctuations were narrow, reflecting partly a holiday at Liverpool, but orders were quite evenly divided. Hedge selling and liquidation developed as May and July sold up to or a few points beyond 11.90. Temporarily new crops were independently firm, advancing to net gains of 3 to 6 points and into new high ground on unfavorable weather, and firmness of stocks and wheat.

Final prices were at the lows for the day. There were reports of a slightly improved demand for spots, but cotton goods markets remained quiet.

Business Failures Decline Abruptly

New York, May 6.—One of the outstanding indications that the depression was halted in 1932 and that the fundamental trend has been toward recovery since that time is the sharp decrease which has occured in business failures. This decrease has added significance, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute, since it has corresponded closely to the trend in the business recovery movement after the depression of 1873 which the current depression has duplicated in many respects.

According to the figures compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, the number of business failures in the United States declined from the record high figure of 31,822 in 1932 to 20,307 in 1933 and to 12,185 in 1934. The 1934 figure was the smallest since 1920. A further decrease occurred during the first quarter of 1935. During this period failures totaled 3,165 as against 3,515 a year ago, a reduction of 10 per cent.

N. Y. Central's Deficit Rises To $7,682,334

1934 Net of $29,160,928 Is $4,108,234 Less Than in 1933.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 6.—The New York Central Railroad Co. had net railway operating income of $29,160,928 for 1934, compared with $33,269,162 in 1933, F. E. Williamson, president, disclosed in his annual report today.

He said that there were increases in the more important items of transportation and incidental revenues "reflecting a slight improvement in business conditions, particularly during the early months of the year."

The year's operations resulted in a deficit of $7,682,334 after charges for depreciation and retirements of equipment, compared with a deficit of $5,412,513 in 1933. Operating revenues totaled $295,084,881, an increase of $11,743,778, or 4.1 per cent over 1933, the report stated.

Freight handled amounted to 100,115,111 tons, an increase of 8,866,765 tons, or 9.7 per cent. This freight brought revenues of $204,155,073, an increase of $9,868,530 over 1933.

Operating expenses increased $16,248,465 during the year to a total of $224,171,759. Throughout 1934, 45,595,809 passengers were carried, an increase of 477,297 over 1933.

Victory Forecast For U. S. Cotton

Problem Is to Make it Pay, Says Garside.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 6.—A victory for Southern cotton in the competition with foreign nations was predicted by Alston Hill Garside, economist of the New York Cotton Exchange, in his book, "Cotton Goes to Market," just published.

Characterizing the South as "the greatest cotton growing area in the world," Garside said, "there is no question that the South can more than hold its own in competition with foreign cotton growing territories, so far as concerns costs and prices.

"The problem is not how to keep for this country its dominance in world cotton production, but how to make cotton growing in the South a reasonably remunerative means of living for those who are dependent upon it."

Social Insurance Taxation, to Attain $2,000,000,000 Anually in Time, Will Increase Pressure on Weak Concerns; Burden Unequal.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, May 6.—Increased pressure on financially weak enterprises which may force many of them out of business, and additional incentive to industry to substitute labor-saving machinery for labor, are among the basic effects which industrialists expect from enactment of the social security program already adopted by the House, and now pending before the Senate.

Business men generally are giving increasing thought to the broader implications of social insurance. They have come to the conclusion that, despte the resolutions of the United States Chamber of Commerce asking delay on the pending Federal measure and other expressions of opposition from business quarters, Congress is quite likely to enact a comprehensive bill of this character at the current session.

The aggregate taxes to be paid by employers to Federal and State Governments for complusory old-age pensions and unemployment insurance will exceed $1,000,000,000 annually within five years, and $2,000,000,000 per year by 1950, if the program outlined in the Doughton measure already passed by the House should be adopted generally. Who is to pay this enormous annual contribution, which will soon surpass the entire annual income tax collections of the Federal Government? What will be the effects upon industry and upon labor? These are the questions eagerly discussed at recent private meetings of business men devoted to the subject.

May Drive Many Weak Concerns to Wall.

There is a fairly general agreement that the effect will be to drive weaker concerns to the wall in many industries. The Bureau of Internal Revenue tells us that 70 per cent of American manufacturing enterprises reported opering deficits for the year 1933. In many cases, especially for small concerns, this showing was doubtless based upon an ultra-conservative basis of computation. Large salaries paid owner-officers or liberal depreciation policies may have been chiefly responsible for the deficit reported. Nevertheless, even at best it is obvious that numerous enterprises are not in position to absorb additional costs unless there is a sharp rise in the level of business profits over the next few years.

Unlike corporate income taxes, the payroll excise taxes imposed by the pending social insurance legislation bear no relation to the earning power of the concerns that must pay them. Hence, they are especially burdensome to weak enterprises. If efforts are made to shift these taxes, they must be passed back to labor in the form of lower wages, or forward to the consumer in the shape of higher prices. The first alternative has been made more difficult by NRA codes and by the stronger organization of labor in many industries. The second may merely hasten the demise of weak concerns, by causing them to lose their business to stronger competitors who can absorb the social insurance taxes and keep down their prices.

The NRA codes, by seeking to make more uniform operating costs of all enterprises in an industry, have proved quite burdensome to weak concerns that could not easily absorb resulting increases in their expenses. Social insurance taxes will merely intensify this condition. Hence, that concentration of economic power which the President deplored so deeply in his last "fireside chat" may be furthered to a large extent by enactment of the pending Doughton bill.

Payroll Excise Taxes Unequal.

Furthermore, the payroll excise taxes imposed for social insurance will fall very unequally upon various industries. Both unemployment insurance and old-age pensions are to be financed by payroll taxes on employers. Since labor constitutes, it is estimated, about 12½ per cent of the cost of the finished product in chemical manufacturing, 24 per cent in steel manufacture and 27 per cent in textile production, to take three important examples, it is evident that the tax burden will be far from uniform.

The provisions of various State laws will exaggerate this inequality. Thus, the New York State unemployment insurance law, just enacted, imposes an unemployment insurance tax on employers of four or more persons. The pending Federal measure applies the tax to employers of 10 or more, and most State laws will tend to conform to the latter, thus placing New York State manufacturers at a relative disadvantage unless the law here is changed.

The heavier the load of such pay-roll excise taxation imposed upon a concern, the greater the incentive for it to substitute labor-saving machinery. If an employer pays 3 per cent as an unemployment insurance pay-roll tax to State authorities, he will obtain a credit of 90 per cent of the Federal levy, which is scheduled to attain its full rate of 3 per cent by 1938. Hence, there will remain a net Federal tax of 0.3 per cent in any event. The old-age pension plan will take another 1 per cent beginning with 1937, and attain its maximum rate of 3 per cent by 1949. By that year, therefore, social insurance will call for an aggregate tax of 6.3 per cent on pay rolls.

In industries having a substantial labor cost, the increase of 6.3 per cent thus imposed will doubtless justify increased use of labor-saving machinery in many cases. This is all the more true when combined with other wage raising measures that have been taken or encouraged under the New Deal program.

Specialties Up In Curb Deals

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 6.—Specialty shares advanced moderately on the curb market today, while in the general list gains and losses were about evenly divided. A few of the oils and metals extended their recent improvement. Transfers approximated 201,000 shares, compared with 224,000 last Friday.

Lake Shore Mines, Wright-Hargreaves and Pioneer Gold all finished with small fractional advances, but Newmont and Sunshine Mining yielded. Gainers of fractions to about a point included Commonwealth Edison, Flintkote "A," International Petroleum, Creole Petroleum, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, United Shoe Machinery and A. O. Smith. Moderate setbacks occurred in American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Shermin-Williams and Pan-American Airways.

By H. I. Phillips.

The Garble Sisters.

"I say, what did you think of the Kentucky Sweepstakes?"

"You mean the Kentucky Derby, doncher?"

'Yeah. That race that was won last week by King's Jubilee."

"Oh, I thought it was all right, only I thought Richberg gave his mount a very bad ride."

"Who was Richberg riding in the Derby this year?"

"Roman Flag or Nellie Plat Eye, I forget which."

• • • •

"Did you listen to President Roosevelt's recent fireside chat?"

"Yeah. I liked what he said about not building any secret air base on the Canadian border."

"It was a good speech and I was sorry to see the Senate vote to kill the NRA next April."

"Why April?"

"I guess they figure that by that time Gen. Johnson will have lost his radio influence or sumpin."

• • • •

"Did you read where an airplane was flown from coast to coast by a robot?"

"Uhuh. And it would have done better if a bug hadn't got in its eye."

"No bug got in the robot's eye."

"A bug got in somebody's eye. Whose was it?"

"Babe Didrikson. She was on a flight to Mexico."

"Oh, yeah. She took off after beating Amelia Earhart in that Texas women's golf tournament."

• • • •

"I see where that cup race yacht is on the way from America to England."

"You mean Mr. Lambert's Miss America?"

"That's the one. It's a nice boat, even if it didn't do so well against Gar Wood at Miami last winter."

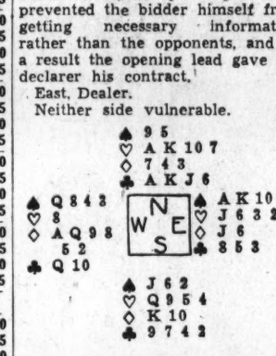
Opening Lead Kills Defense.

As I have said time and again, there is no better way to hamper good opponents than by firing preemptive bids at them. When you start off the bidding with three or four of a suit—even a minor—you are taking valuable rounds of bidding away from them and they, with most of the outstanding high card strength, can not reach their correct final contract.

Today's hand, which is given as a curiosity more than anything else, might be called the exception that proves the rule. West, by opening with a pre-emptive bid of three diamonds, instead of shutting the opponents out of a game, forced them into a game which actually could have been defeated six tricks. Furthermore, the pre-emptive bid prevented the bidder himself from getting necessary information rather than the opponents, and as a result the opening lead gave the declarer his contract.

East, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	3◇(1)	Dbl.(2)
Pass	3NT(3)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—This pre-emptive bid is not recommended, as the diamond suit is too weak. Had West held something like the A Q J x x x in diamonds, I would call the bid justifiable, but with his actual holding it was too risky, even when not vulnerable.

2—A co-operative double, preferring a take-out, but permitting a leave-in if partner's hand seems to call for it.

3—South expects from North a strong hand. The guarded King of diamonds looks like a valuable card for notrump purposes.

The Play.

West's three-diamond bid, instead of shutting the opponents out of the bidding, had shut out his partner. Consequentl West opened with his fourth-best diamond. South won the trick with the King and played the Ace and King of hearts, so that East's thrice-guarded Jack showed up. South could not miss making four club tricks the way the cards were divided. He ran his nine tricks and then conceded the balance to the opponents.

Comment.

The way the cards lay a spade opening, followed by a diamond shift from East at some point or other, would have given the defense four spade and six diamond tricks. Furthermore, East and West could have made a contract of four spades, though it would have been difficult to reach, as neither East nor West had anything approximating a sound opening bid. This is one instance in which a pre-emptive bid became a boomerang.
